How Sedition Law Operates in Ireland; Grinds Nationalists; Protects Carson's Followers

House of Commons Told Sir Edward Cannot Be Punished for Preaching Armed Rebellion, Yet in Nationalist Ireland Speakers Far Less Radical Are Prosecuted—Proclamation of Military Law in Erin Possible Only by Gross Perversion—Censorship Still in Full Swing.

By James M. Tuohy.
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 31.—In preceding letters I have endeavored to convey an impression of the practical working at this moment of Castle Government imposed on Ireland by the British Parliament. That impression has been painfully inadequate, because it has been possible to give in detail only a few examples out of hundreds of what it means in actual practice to the people condemned to live under it.

The Chief Secretary, Mr. Macpherson, the nominal head of the Castle and the representative in Parliament of the Irish Executive, when questioned by me as to whether he had ever prohibited any Orange meetings in Ulster, took refuge in the statement that sedition was never preached at these meetings and consequently there was no ground for interfering with them. That evasion was the only answer open to him then. But when on this 12th day of July Sir Edward Carson went again to Ulster and again preached rebellion and armed resistance to the law to an enormous assemblage of Orangemen, did Mr. Macpherson interfere with that meeting? Of course not. Did he attempt to prosecute Sir Edward Carson and his confederates? Not a bit of it.

Yet his reply to me was intended to convey that if such meetings were held under his regime he would deal with them as he did and is doing with Nationalist meetings throughout the rest of Ireland. But it would be more than Mr. Macpherson's place is worth to lay a hand on Sir Edward Carson or any of his associates.

The Attorney-General for England, one of Mr. Lloyd George's "Radical" colleagues, actually stated in the House of Commons that there was no ground for prosecuting Sir Edward Carson; yet almost every day in Ireland men of popular sympathies are prosecuted by Mr. Macpherson for speeches far less seditious, for threats far less formidable, and meetings are prohibited on the more apprehension that such speeches may be delivered.

What can any reasonable man think must be the reflections of the people of Ireland who are subjected to this grossly unfair treatment, when the English Radical Attorney-General has the nerve to stand up in the House of Commons and tell the House that Sir Edward Carson can't be prosecuted? It can only mean one of two things—either that the Sinn Feiners are prosecuted by an abuse of the law, or that Sir Edward Carson is allowed to go free by an equal abuse of it.

I have attempted to describe in previous letters the sufferings imposed on innocent people by the practice of proclaiming towns under martial law, imprisoning the whole population and harrying them by night raids on their houses, offensive interference with their liberty and all manner of mean police oppression, hitting them in the cowardliest manner in their self-respect, their persons and their property.

It may surprise Americans to learn that this proclamation of towns and country areas, with all that it means in the way of vindictive and undeserved punishment of their inhabitants, is only done by a gross and deliberate perversion of the law under which it is made possible. This is not my statement, but that of a high judicial authority in Ireland.

It may be asked why this illegality is not exposed and these proclamations overthrown by appeal to the courts. Unfortunately, it is one of the first tenets of the Sinn Fein faith that no British institution in Ireland can be recognized. Therefore, no appeal is made to the courts, and thousands of Irish men and women are allowed to groan under the injustice and injury involved in this British abuse of the law. Of course, these proclamations enormously strengthen the Sinn Fein position, but the price paid may seem somewhat excessive when one has personal knowledge of what living in a military area means to all but the police favorites.

These proclamations are issued under the Defense of the Realm Act—"Dora" for short—under a section devised and intended by Parliament for a wholly different purpose. That section was drafted to give the military authorities power to destroy as "a military area" districts which it was necessary for military reasons to keep under military control, such places as coast towns like Dover or Hull, towns in the neighborhood of important coast defenses where military precautions were essential to guard against spying.

"Dora" Suffers a Sea Change.

The use of the section in England, Scotland and Wales has been strictly confined to such places. But on the way to Ireland, Dora—like other British laws—undergoes a sea change and on her arrival she is immediately prostituted to the anti-Irish purposes of Dublin Castle. For it must be understood that the object of all these excursions and alarms by Dublin Castle, the police charges, proclamation of meetings, vindictive prosecutions and military parades, are intended to impress the British public and the world with the notion that Ireland—that is, Nationalist Ireland—is in such a chronic state of arid criminology that England is obliged to treat her as an enemy country and rule her by an army of occupation, and that, consequently, she is not fit to govern herself. It is all part of the anti-Home Rule conspiracy in which Dublin Castle and its congeners have been engaged in one way or another for the past 40 years.

Nor should it be forgotten that all this is done to keep five-sixths of the Irish people under the heel of the one-sixth who support the castle.

The censorship is in full swing in Ireland, although it has been suppressed in England, Scotland and Wales. It is used for the meanest purposes. Mr. Macpherson, for example, has used it to prevent the publication of letters that give the lie direct to his replies to the allegations of the Irish-American delegation. But copies of these replies were known to be in the possession of the editor of Nationality, Mr. Griffith, and in order to obtain and destroy them a raid was made on the Sinn Fein offices in Harcourt street, Dublin. The raid was successful, but knowing the ways of the castle, Arthur Griffith had deposited duplicates of the replies elsewhere so that the copies obtained by Mr. Macpherson's police were not the only ones in existence.

Raids With Tanks.

When the Castle has had nothing spectacular to do for a couple of weeks it almost invariably stirs things up by making a raid on the Sinn Fein offices in Dublin. These raids are in fact burlesque, but burlesque inspired by malice. The Sinn Fein offices are in a house in Harcourt street, not by any means imposing either inside or out.

When a raid is decided upon a number of plain clothes policemen arrive first to picket the offices, followed by the military detachment. This consists of several lorries full of soldiers in full battle kit, tin hats, hand grenades and all, a couple of tanks and some armored cars. The armored cars and tanks have their crews ready on the guns, whose nozzles peep out invitingly. Then a couple of aeroplanes fly about overhead just to complete the warlike effect.

While the military mount guard the police enter the offices and ransack them from top to bottom, emptying drawers of papers, tearing up floor boards, examining ceilings and chimneys, tapping walls for concealed cupboards and generally going through the motions of a serious search. All this time a crowd outside of passersby laugh provokingly at the military and police, for it is quite well known that with the possibility of being raided at any moment, the Sinn Feiners are not such idiots as to keep there any documents they don't wish the police to capture—if there are any such documents in existence.

Wilson's Speeches Contraband.

I witnessed one of these raids which Lord French, or Mr. Macpherson, or whoever was responsible, made on the day the peace treaty was signed at Versailles.

"What do they mean by it?" I asked of a stranger next to me in the crowd. He replied with a shrug:

"Ah, sure, it's their way of celebrating peace!"

It certainly was a felicitous touch to get up this military parade—gratuitous, bootless, merely provocative—on that day of all others. Probably it was agreed upon a late sitting the night before at the Kildare Street Club, which the Lord Lieutenant frequents, and where most of this mischievous dragooning is hatched. The greatest find that the horse, foot, artillery, tanks, airplanes, armored motors and police secured on this occasion was a copy of one of President Wilson's speeches. His principles are the worst kind of contraband in the eyes of the British officials in Ireland.

Lord French was sent to Ireland by Mr. Lloyd George under a double delusion. First he imagined that the Field Marshal with his military prestige would cow the Irish people into acquiescence in any sort of treatment the Castle chose to mete out to them. Secondly, Lord French was sent over there as an Irishman, and therefore likely to be received with greater cordiality than an English military Lord Lieutenant.

French Welcomed at Belfast.

He played the Irish game very strongly at first, but he soon realized that if he were 20 times more Irish in blood than he is, his Irishism wouldn't weigh one grain in his favor so long as he came to Ireland to administer the English system. In Dublin he found himself of no account one way or the other, except in so far as he came to carry out a new and particularly obnoxious and tyrannical coercion. But in Belfast they took him to their bosom and the Orange Corporation offered him the freedom of the city, which he accepted—an unprecented thing on the part of a Viceroy. This was equivalent to a declaration of war on the rest of the country for the Belfast Corporation would receive no official, not even the King himself, unless they knew he was prepared to bow the knee to and execute the behests of the Orange ascendancy party. This Lord French has since most humbly and faithfully done.

Sinn Fein's Error.

The condition of abject subjection to the Orangemen in which the Lloyd George government stands was most vividly illustrated by the fact that the Carsonites refused to give up their arms until Gen. Hackett Pain, Sir Edward Carson's Chief of Staff at the time of the 1914 Orange rebellion, was made Commander in Chief of the British forces in Ulster and the arms were placed in his custody! Yet at this moment any unfortunate Nationalist or Sinn Feiner who is found in possession of a firearm gets a heavy sentence of imprisonment from a military tribunal. That is one of the ways "British fair play" works out in Ireland right up to date.

Since the extinction of the Nationalist party and the adoption by the Sinn Feiners of the purblind policy of refusing to take their seats at Westminster, Ireland's one means of world-wide publicity has disappeared. It seems to be the acme of impracticable idealism to say, "We surrender the platform of Westminster to our enemies, to do their worst against us, because we are too proud to go there." National pride is a good thing, but where its assertion is equivalent to handing a deadly weapon to your enemy it is closely akin to madness.

The Sinn Feiners say, of course, that the Irish party failed to get Home Rule after all their years of toil and suffering in the British House of Commons, and why should they follow the same road? True, the Irish party were tricked out of Home Rule, but they constantly ex-

The Trying Times of Peace

WE FACE A NEW WORLD; WHAT ARE WE GOING TO DO?

By SAMUEL GOMPERS,
President of the American Federation of Labor.

THE United States of America is the greatest democracy in the world. It is a vast, far-flung country composed of many races, many creeds, many opinions, many beliefs. It is a country that prides itself on the independence of thought and action of the individual. And because of that pride of, and glory in, individual liberty, it is a country foredoomed to argument, to struggle, to conflict.

This is not to be deplored. Quite the contrary. It is to be exulted in and encouraged, given, of course, that the argument be intelligent, the struggle constructive and the conflict for the welfare and betterment of all its citizens. In many counsels lies wisdom. In the harmonious reconciliation of varied opinions lies progress. And in the very effort of every citizen to improve himself, his fellows and his country, lies the safety of democracy itself.

I am not of those who hold contentment to be the end of desire. Contentment, to my way of thinking, means stagnation. While a healthy discontent is the birth of aspiration for better things, and, even though we are the greatest and most successful democracy that the world has ever seen, it would be as foolish as it would be fatuous to deny our faults or ignore our weaknesses.

One of our greatest faults is that too many are extremists. Along the roads we follow, many are prone to go too far. Like our gallant boys in France, we are not content to stop at our objectives. We dash on ahead—and are caught in our own barrage!

This is understandable. It is in a way forgivable. It is because we are a young nation, full of enthusiasm and strength and courage. But it is dangerous and costly. And even before the war this fault had led us into grave trouble.

Business organization, from reasonable limits, had grown into great and menacing trusts, combinations and corporations; they had gone beyond the legitimate field of development into the illegitimate field of manipulation, stock jobbery and domination of our political and judicial life. The whole wealth of the land was being taken from the hands of the many and placed within the grip of the few. We were in danger of becoming, like the Mexico of a decade ago, a country of but two classes—the vastly rich and the pitifully poor.

That such a condition is both wrong and fatal is beyond argument. There is neither justice nor common sense in a condition that allows one man to have a hundred million dollars and a hundred million men to have nothing at all. A condition where the few possess much and the many possess little is not democracy. It is an oligarchy. Its further development could not, and would not, have been tolerated.

This condition was brought about by another extremism—the over-worship of a single god of all those that a democracy must serve. We had come to spend too much time before our favored fetish, individualism.

War Changed Trend.

Every man, each woman, had come to think too much of, and work too much for, himself and herself. We had forgotten that not individualism alone, but individualistic mutuality, means progress. It is not enough that each man becomes strong, each woman fine. It is the relation of each man and woman to all other men and women that makes a nation great. No matter how fine our soldiers were, they never could have defeated the Germans at Chateau-Thierry had they gone in one at a time.

This condition, in turn, had made for lack of interest in citizenry and in the country. When each citizen is thinking only of himself, their mutual affairs suffer. Their Government goes to incompetents, or worse. It is like a business with efficient clerks but inefficient management. Such a business cannot last, if it be continued in such a way.

In all the affairs of our republic there was no element or group which expressed, manifested and secured a larger thought and action for mutuality as well as individualism than the much-misunderstood and oft-misrepresented organized labor movement—the American Federation of Labor.

That the war contributed much toward changing the whole phase of our individualism, none can truthfully gainsay. Of a sudden one day we found a thing big enough to make us forget all others. And it was then that democracy arose in all its magnificent might. All internal differences vanished in the face of an external danger. All national conflicts were subordinated to the exigency of an international task. Almost in a single day we ceased to be individualists alone. We had become individualistic mutualists and, as such, members of and partners in a true democracy.

And during our 18 months of war we remained true to democracy. Labor, capital, business, society, worked hand in hand and shoulder to shoulder for victory. Never had the democracy of the United States of America risen to such an exalted height. It was the final test of our national abilities, and the last justification of our form of government. We had shown what a democracy could do, and how it could do it.

The Question of Today.

And now what?

We are once more at peace.

Shall we prove ourselves to be less able, less noble, less courageous, less firm in time of peace than in time of war? Did we have to have a direct and dire menace hanging over our heads to make us do what was right and just and sensible? Shall we, once that menace is removed, flop supinely back to confusion, injustice, selfishness and the hyper-individualism that was once our bane?

I know the American people. And I know they will not be at once so lax and so misguided. But they must make no mistake. The fight before them lies long and bitter.

There is the immigration question.

There are the trusts, the corporations, the railroads.

There is the problem of demobilization and the returned soldier.

There is the reorganization of industries.

Business must be relieved and encouraged.

There is an understanding to be gained between the employers and the workers.

There is the feeding and financing of the world, in which we must help to do our share.

There is justified as well as unwarranted unrest, the first of which must be met intelligently and sympathetically; the second must be contested at every step.

It will be the work of all of us, and for years.

There have been those, perhaps there still are some few, who have fondly and foolishly deemed that, at the signing of the peace, we could return at once to the soft and selfish days of before the war.

It is for these people, and for all the world, to know that those days are dead and buried. They lie as far behind us in fact as the middle ages. They are gone. And they will never return.

We face a new world today, with a new set of problems; problems so involved, so complicated, so far-reaching, as to be today for the most part even unimaginable. The future lies in the lap of the gods; and into that lap not even the wisest men of earth have been able to look.

The Russian Problem.

What will become of Russia?

Who can tell?

Into what country's breast will another year find the gaunt wolf of Bolshevism sinking its shining teeth and bloody claws?

No one knows. No one can know. We can only know that the one weapon that has been found to fight it is food. No matter what the ideals and aspirations of a country may be, it cannot get freedom, nor practice freedom, on an empty stomach. The hungry man may tear down. But he cannot upbuild. Hungry stomachs can never make reasoning brains. The discontent of hungry people leads nowhere except to confusion, chaos and reaction. Trotzky and Lenine may call their Government what they will; but it is in point of fact as bloody a tyranny as the world has ever known.

So it is first hunger that we must fight. And we must fight the causes of hunger. These are first economic unrest and unemployment. And we must begin that fight in our own country. To start in composing Europe before we protect our own citizens is as unthinkable as a man going to a neighboring city to build an almshouse while his own wife and children starve at home.

Day by day thousands upon thousands of honest, hard-working, self-respecting American citizens are being thrown out of work.

Work must be found for them. And it must be found now.

Day by day our soldiers are coming back from France. Work must be found for them. Shall gallant American boys who were ready and willing to lay down their very lives that we at home might be saved, come back to find themselves welcomed by words?

Moreover, they should be brought back as fast as it is humanly possible and economically advisable. Their job is done. It has been done gallantly and well. That they should now be left on a foreign soil, eating their hearts out in longing for home and friends, is an injustice as grave as it is terrible. They have done their work. They should be allowed to come back.

No Time for Reactionaries.

And not only that. There must be no relapse for them, for any workers, to the industrial conditions of before the war. It will not be possible. Our workers have learned their rights. They have learned what improved living conditions means. And they have learned of the sovereignty of citizenship.

Our soldiers have learned. They have traveled and studied and seen. They have thought. Through fighting for the United States they have come to know that they are partners in the United States; and that if they must share its responsibilities, they have a right to share its benefits. And this no man who has been to Europe during the war can fail to see and recognize as being one of the greatest factors for the United States to consider. Our soldiers, returning, will ask more. But they will ask no more than is just. They have seen at last what mutuality really means.

To ask these men to go back to mine or mill or lathe or shop under pre-war conditions will be impossible. Even if it were possible for us to ask, it would be impossible for them to grant. They could not in justice to themselves.

And above all must the people of the United States realize that this is no time for reaction or reactionaries. We of the United States must be not only forward looking, but forward-going. And we must travel fast and far.

Conditions, some of which we seem well-nigh unable to cope with, face us, from a world in ferment. It is no time to become frightened or to lose one's head. But, contrariwise, it is no time to be a Pollyanna.

The conditions are there. They must be met, faced, studied, analyzed, adjusted, solved. No few men can do it, however able they may be or think themselves to be. It is the work of all. And it is a work that must be based on mutual understanding, mutual faith, mutual endeavor, mutual patience and mutual trust. In that task no body of men will give more potential service than the organized labor movement of America.

Let us of America face these new labors, then, in the spirit of individualistic mutuality—in the spirit of real democracy!

"SECURITY LEAGUE" PLOTS AGAINST WHOLE NATION, SAYS WILLIAM J. BRYAN

"Application of Submarine Warfare to American Politics—It Introduces Dark Lantern Methods Into Our National Campaigns—Masquerades Under Name Which Enables It to Hide Real Purpose."

By WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

EVERY voter should read the report of the Special Committee to investigate the National Security League, submitted to the House of Representatives on March 3, 1919. Congressman Ben Johnson was chairman of the committee and conducted the investigation with thoroughness and energy. The House of Representatives adopted the report of the committee.

Attention is called to this report at this time because we are approaching the campaign of 1920, at which the people will choose an occupant of the White House for the next four years, one-third of the United States Senate and a House of Representatives.

The secret activities of the League in 1918, recently exposed to public view, permit an accurate judgment to be formed as to the character, purpose and methods of the organization.

It is the latest manifestation of the activity of the predatory interests in politics; it is an up-to-date method of deceiving the voters.

Hid Purposes Under Name.

The league has masqueraded under a name which enabled it to conceal its real purpose and to pose as a patriotic organization. It professed to have the "security" of the nation in view, and in the name of the nation's security attacked the loyalty of members of Congress who were objectionable to the "interests."

The league was organized by a corporation lawyer by the name of Menken, who conceived the idea of the league while listening to debates in the British House of Commons on Aug. 5, 1914—two and one-half years before we entered the war. The league professed a deep interest in the subject of "preparedness" and drew money for its work largely from large financial concerns, many of them manufacturers of war supplies.

While the management was in the hands of men of little personal or political influence, it courted confidence by the use of the names of well-known public men.

It was "nonpartisan," as all predatory interests are, in the sense that it was not hampered by loyalty to any party. It put subserviency to the special interests above party and only inquired whether a candidate could be trusted to represent the corporations instead of the people.

The "nonpartisan" character of the league is shown by the fact that it published as honorary vice presidents ex-Secretary Root, who led the cohorts of Wall street in the Republican National Convention at Chicago in 1912, and Judge Parker, who served in the same capacity in the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore a week later, although, as the testimony taken before the committee shows, the league did not consider it necessary to inform these gentlemen of the details of its work.

Mr. Root testified that he was not connected with the activities of the league, and that he had no knowledge of the issuance of the campaign "chart" attacking individuals in Congress whom the special interests desired to defeat. He did not even know such a chart was contemplated until he received a copy through the mails. He was candid enough to admit that in some respects the chart was misleading and incorrect and that it had done injustice to members of Congress. He said that he would not have approved of such a chart if he had known that it was contemplated.

Mr. Parker testified that he had not actively concerned himself with the work of the league and knew nothing of its contemplated action in issuing the "chart" until after it had been given to the public. Upon learning of it he protested that it was unfair and unjust and demanded that it be corrected. He was unable to secure its correction, but said that his efforts produced vital changes in a similar chart afterward sent out regarding the votes of Senators.

However, Mr. Root and Mr. Parker, generously forgiving past neglect, continue to lend the league the influence of their names.

Eight Measures as Standard.

The "chart" selected eight measures (out of more than one hundred and twenty war measures) as its standard, and rated the Congressmen according to the way they voted on these questions. Six of the eight measures selected as test measures were acted upon before our nation entered the war, and out of the 435 members of the House of Representatives only 47 measured up to the league's standard of perfection, and 45 of the 47 Congressmen honored with the league's verdict of "well done," thou good and faithful servant," represented districts along the Atlantic seaboard, leaving a paltry two for the rest of the country.

Among the Congressmen whose loyalty was unsatisfactory to the league's representatives was Royal C. Johnson, who left a seat in Congress, volunteered in the army as a private and was wounded in the battle of the Argonne Forest.

The league collected in New York alone $619,000, and spent $235,000 between January 1, 1918, and the end of that year—that being the year of the Congressional campaign. Besides this sum raised in New York, a considerable amount was raised in Philadelphia and Chicago.

According to the league's chart, the league selected 169 Congressional districts in which to be "active," and 44 districts in which to be "intensely active."

The largest contributor was the Carnegie Corporation, which subscribed $150,000. The next largest subscriber was John D. Rockefeller, who considered the league's activities worth $35,000 to him. Du Pont, the powder man, subscribed $9000, while a corporation whose excess profits ran up to nearly $15,000,000 was able to spare $29,000 for the work of the league. A leather company, with excess profits of $12,000,000, chipped in $7500.

Real Objects Revealed.

Now, what was the real purpose of this organization? Why did it slander loyal members of Congress? Why did it hide in ambush and attack with poisoned darts the men against whose names it marked the word "fight?" The real purpose of the league is shown by the character of the questions asked those whom it impudently presumed to call before it with a view of intimidation.

Mr. Juul, a member of Congress from a Chicago district, and a candidate for re-election, was marked for slaughter. He had stood the league's acid test; they could not mark him "wrong" on any one of the eight test war measures, but still the agents of the league did not trust him. Why? Because, when a member of the Illinois State Senate he opposed the demands of some of the big corporations whose interests the league seems to be guarding.

Congressman King, also of Illinois, and a candidate for re-election, was asked why he had made a speech in Congress attacking the packers, and why he had in his speech used the name of J. P. Morgan as a text for criticism. The league spokesman also inquired how he stood on the question of the Government ownership of railroads. Mr. Menken (quite naturally) favored less tax on big incomes and more tax on small incomes.

Here we have it; the secret is out. The men connected with the league as supporters or officials represented almost every predatory interest and favor-seeking corporation. The questions indicated that the two things uppermost in the minds of those in charge of the league's activities were, first, the protection of the meat packers, and, second, opposition to Government ownership of the railroads, and to this may be added the transfer of income tax from the rich to the poor.

The foresight of the league must be admitted; the Department of Justice has announced its intention to prosecute the packers for violations of the anti-trust laws, and the question of Government ownership of the railroads is now before Congress.

Did the officials of the league know that the packers were guilty? Or is it just a coincidence that they should have been at work two years ago trying to select a Congress friendly to the packers?

Did those officials know that the railroad magnates and their Wall street representatives would be engaged in a life and death struggle to regain control of the railroads of the country?

It is a matter of no concern to the public that an organization secretly working for the election of a Congress favorable to the special interests should cloak its unpatriotic activities in the garb of patriotism?

"National security?" On the contrary, it is a conspiracy against the security of the nation. It is an application of submarine warfare to American politics; it introduces dark-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Power of the Packers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Have read several letters recently in your people's column in regard to that much-discussed question, the "H. C. L.:" especially the part that the packers play in regard to the high price of meat and other packing-house products.

For several years I was employed by a large firm at the stockyards in a line of business that is closely allied with the packing and livestock industries, and while I do not claim to have any expert knowledge on the subject, I did form an opinion, which might serve as an answer to some of the letters above mentioned. If you care to publish it, you are at liberty to do so.

I believe that if the packers wanted to, they could set the livestock market back 20 to 50 per cent in a week, just by buying very lightly, or not at all, for several days. This would not interfere with the reserve supply of killed meat on hand enough to cause a shortage later on; for there have been times in the past when their output has been curtailed for several weeks on account of a strike, and there was never any shortage later on.

The fact that they have it in their power to break the high prices and do not do it naturally leads to the conclusion that they do not want to, and this is a logical conclusion, for the following reason:

I have read in the papers that they claim they only make a net profit of about 3 per cent on meats after all expenses are paid, and they may be telling the absolute truth when they say it. Even if they barely broken even on the meat, they would still have the hide, which is practically all profit, and the other by-products, which net them handsomely. Therefore, does it not stand to reason that they are going to keep the price on the hoof just as high as they dare to, because the higher the price on the hoof, the higher they can charge for the hide and other products, which are practically clear velvet to them.

I have known them to hammer the hog market down a dollar a hundred or more in two days, before the war, and they could do it again if they wanted to, and keep on doing so until they got it down to normal. But, as I stated above, they do not want to; for when the market on the hoof goes down, the by-products go down and there is less velvet in the game.

As Mark Twain would have said: "It is childlike in its simplicity." Perhaps the Government could stop it. But will it be done? I. WOOD THINKSO.

The French Treaty.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The French treaty should not be ratified without four vital amendments:

1. All references to the covenant should be stricken out, because it, the covenant, indirectly requires us to make what its advocates may describe as the "supreme sacrifice;" that is, to surrender our independence.

2. France should be given a defensible permanent frontier. Foch says the Rhine and all its bridgeheads. This has not yet been done.

3. Either reconstruct Russia, including Poland, or else give Poland Danzig and a defensible frontier against Russia, Germany and Austria. These former autocracies three times before partitioned Poland. Germany and Austria at least threaten to do it again.

4. Make Pan-Germany pay or work off every dollar of allied and associated war debt, war costs and war pensions, and punish every Pan-German war criminal. Otherwise, Pan-Germany will be financially stronger than the nations it invaded.

Suppose we guarantee France, while leaving her with a defenseless frontier. After Germany's partial compliance with the treaty, when the Rhine bridgeheads now temporarily held are evacuated, the only way we may keep our guarantee good will be to permanently keep not less than three-quarters of a million regular troops in Europe on the French frontier, after the Rhine bridgeheads have been yielded to Germany. Otherwise our guarantee will be only another scrap of paper.

The Argonne Cemetery.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Perhaps you would have occasion to print the below in your paper with other war information direct from soldiers:

"In regard to the Argonne Cemetery, there are 15,000 men buried here now, and when it is completed there will be 30,000.

"It is certainly beautiful and if their folks could only see how they are buried and what care is taken to beautify the graves they would feel a lot better."

As stated in the second paragraph, the relatives of those who fell in the Argonne battle would be more than pleased if they knew that those belonging to them were buried in individual graves and that the graves are not neglected, and to my mind there is no other medium that would reach so many people at one time to cheer the depressed as your paper.

FRIEND TO THE SOLDIERS.

IRELAND AND THE LEAGUE.

In the grossly misleading advertisement concerning the League of Nations published yesterday by the Friends of Irish Freedom to discredit President Wilson's statements was this phrase:

> Already with a keenness following centuries of persecution, the Irish among our citizenship have awakened to the fact that American institutions are threatened * * ***

Are there "Irish among our citizenship"? We do not recognize any citizenship but American citizenship, nor any citizens except Americans. If there are any such they belong to Ireland, not America. Their hearts are in Ireland, not America, and their interests are Irish, not American. What have they to do with American honor or interests or policies? The appeal to the Irish in America to interfere with great American policies dealing with international questions of vital moment to the United States, because they think they are not in harmony with Irish interests or desires, is as insolent and insufferable as the German appeal to Americans of German origin to stand by Germany against the honor and rights and interests of America.

When Irish agitators come to America and appeal to the Irish here and Americans of Irish origin to put Irish interests above American interests to the extent of destroying our friendly relations with Great Britain and inviting a war as costly and horrible as the war just ended; it is time to call a halt.

We have nothing to say to the Irish about American policies. We have something to say to Americans of Irish blood and Americans who sympathize with the cause of Irish self-government, because the Post-Dispatch from its birth has not only sympathized with that cause, but persistently advocated and aided it. We can reason together with Americans on the course that America should pursue, as a great, free nation, in helping the cause of freedom in a weak and helpless people.

We believe that the honor, the vital interests, national and commercial, the standing and future welfare from every standpoint of the American people and our greatest hope of escaping war lie in our adoption and participation in the League of Nations.

This is the first consideration for all Americans. But we say to Americans of Irish origin and all Americans interested in the Irish cause that the best hope for Irish self-government and the only hope of American intervention in behalf of Irish freedom without war lie in the League of Nations.

President Wilson touched indirectly upon the Irish interest in the League of Nations at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon when, designating Article X as the peace backbone of the covenant and the guarantee of the liberty and the rights of weak nations, he touched upon the significance of Article XI.

This article, he said, provides "that anything that is likely to affect the peace of the world or the good understanding upon which the peace of the world depends shall be everybody's business; that any nation, the littlest nation at the table, can stand up and challenge the right of the strongest nation there to keep on in a course of action or politics which is likely to disturb the peace of the world, and that it shall be its friendly right to do so."

Speaking of his writing this article, he added: "I wanted it to be our friendly right to do that, and everybody's friendly right to discuss everything that would be likely to affect the peace of the world, because that is everybody's business" * * *.

Herein lies Ireland's opportunity to win self-government. Under the League of Nations, with the definite charter of the peace covenant, she can appeal for her rights to the moral judgment of the world at the bar of public opinion with the support of all the other nations at the table. Any other nation can take up her cause without offense to Great Britain. Could Great Britain persist in injustice and tyranny under such an appeal against the moral force of world opinion and the judgment of other nations?

What hope is there for Ireland outside of the League? She will be at the mercy of England. She is not strong enough to win freedom by her own arms. Intervention by another nation would mean British hostility and if persisted in war, with appalling costs in blood, treasure and chaos.

At these risks, where will Ireland get arms and funds to fight Great Britain? What nation will intervene to give her freedom?

In all the black record of British oppression and the bitter struggle for Irish freedom, what nation has intervened? When American feeling was far more intense than it is today, and the reasons for intervention were far stronger, America did not intervene. After the horrors of the late war is America or any other nation more likely to intervene? It is folly to expect it. Despair lies that way.

In fighting the League of Nations and appealing to Americans for its destruction, are not our Irish friends appealing from reason to unreason? Are they not rejecting opportunity? Are they not abandoning their best hope?

If the peace covenant means anything it means a guarantee of peace, with justice and liberty for all peoples.

Senator Lodge is also mistaken in supposing that after reading Ludendorff's book Americans will be singing Deutschland Uber Alles as the national hymn.

KEEP THE RECORD STRAIGHT.

An error, probably due to hasty preparation, occurred in President Wilson's Indianapolis speech, when the President said that an Austrian Prince "was slain in one of the cities of Serbia." The heir to the Austrian throne was assassinated in Sarajevo, the chief city of Bosnia, then an Austrian province. Furthermore, he was killed by an Austrian subject.

This incident has been the subject of a great deal of confused speaking, but it is a matter on which the record should be kept clear.

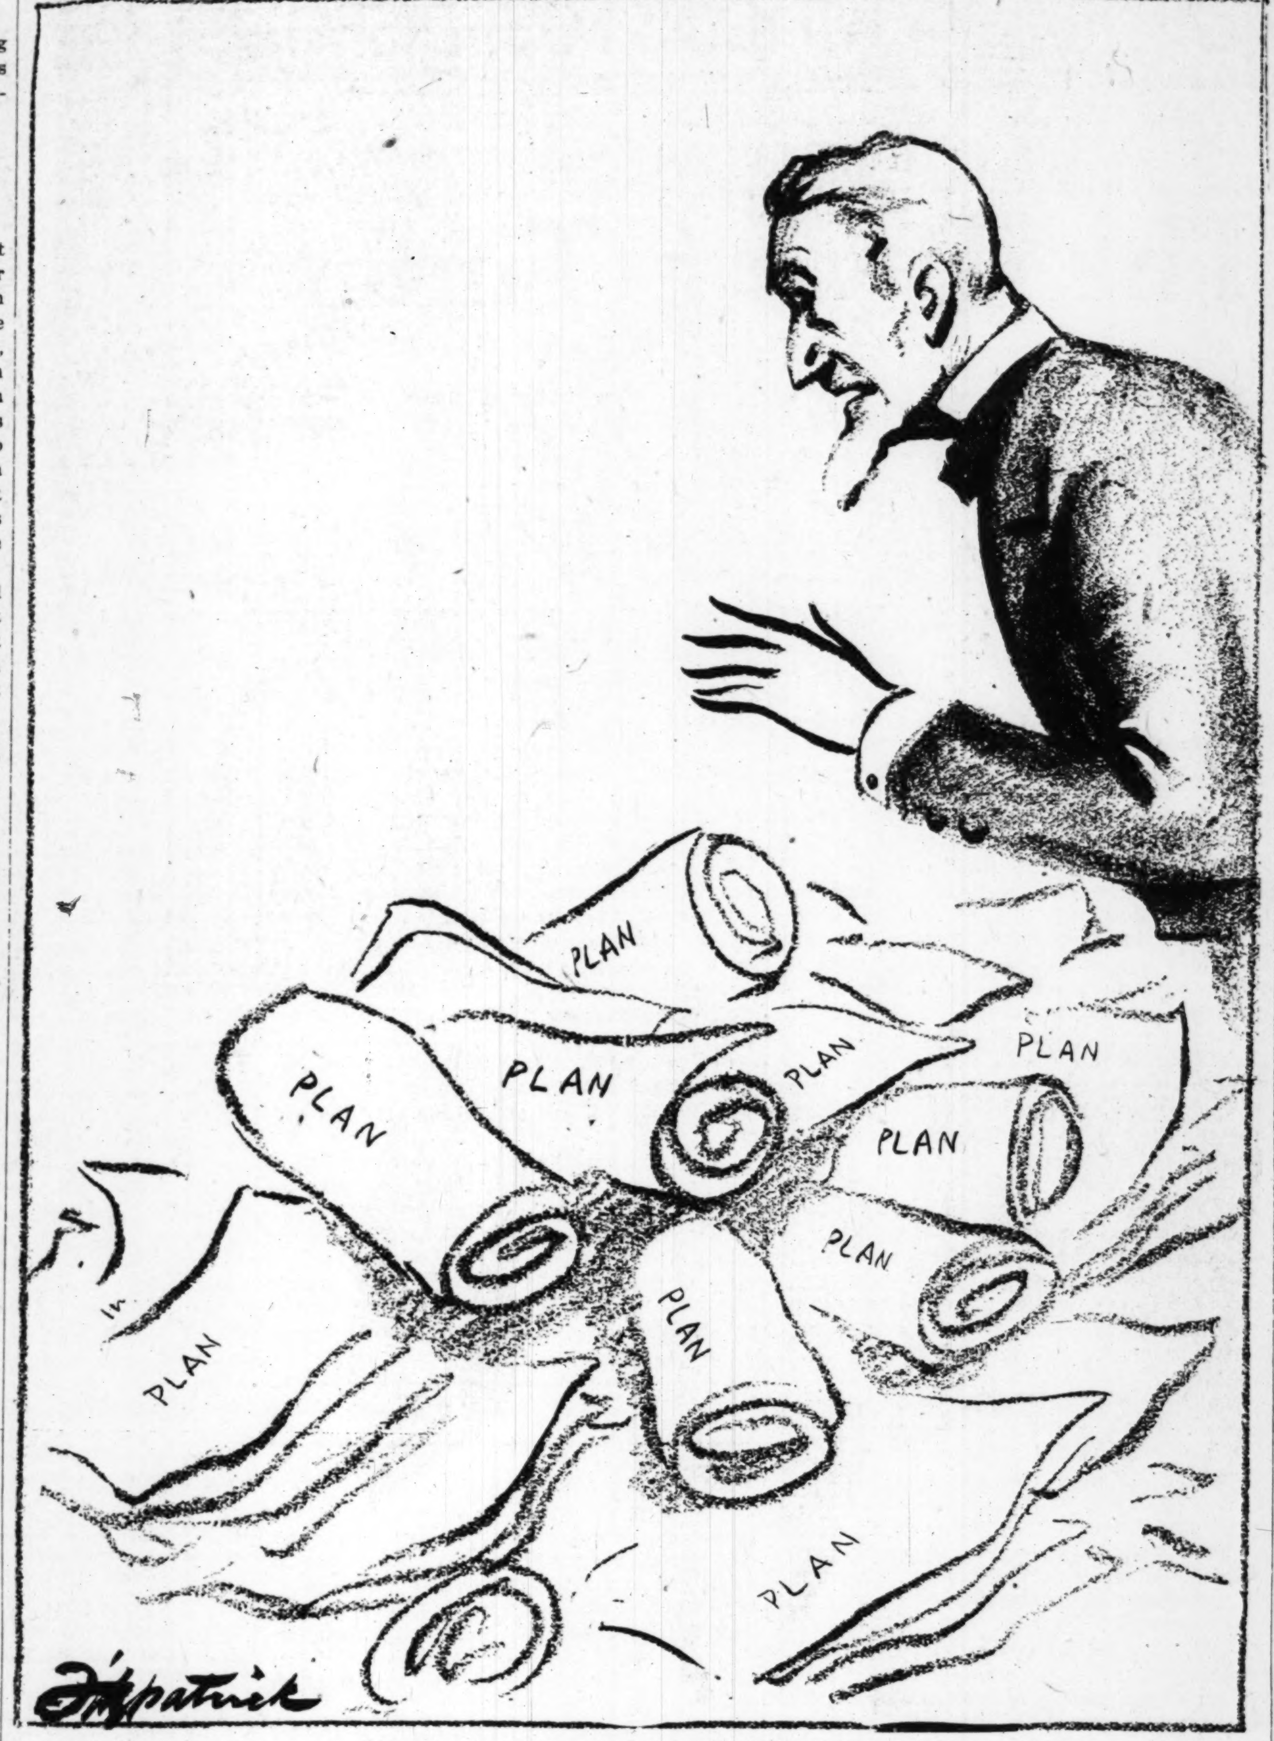
A BELATED CONSERVATION MEASURE.

A conservation measure, pending ever since the remarkable awakening following the campaign of education on the need of safeguarding national resources in 1912, has passed the Senate in the form of a land-leasing bill. The clause of the similar measure of the last session authorizing purchase has been stricken out and mineral lands of all sorts to which the Government still holds titles may be developed only under lease, with a scale of royalties based on those now exacted by private owners of land and running from 5 to 25 per cent. Attached to the bill are various general provisions designed to check exploitation by monopolies, particularly the Standard Oil Co.

So far as the purpose of insuring to the people and not to land grabbers reasonable rewards from the natural resources still under Government ownership, it is the best bill to which the Senate has ever given its assent.



WHAT TO DO WITH THE RAILROADS

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

THE NAKED TRUTH.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

SENATOR McCUMBER is a Republican, but he has refused to join Republican Leader Lodge in the desperate fight on the league of nations, the peace treaty and the President which the Lodge U-boaters have been making for months. He is the only Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee who does not follow Lodge's leash, though that does not affect Lodge's power in the committee, for the Lodgiacs have a majority without him, Lodge having carefully attended to that when he picked and packed the Republican membership of the committee.

Of course, Senator McCumber was the only Republican on the committee who voted against the Lodge proposition to overrule the peace conference and reverse that body's action with reference to the disposition of Shantung. He was, indeed, so outraged by the adoption of that proposition that he did not wait until it should come up in the open Senate to express his indignation, but made a speech on the subject in the Senate yesterday, in which he denounced his Republican comrades on the committee for their astonishing action. He flatly declared their object was to kill the peace treaty; that the Shantung amendment was a deliberate attempt to drive into it "a poisoned dagger" and to place the United States in the position of a "big bully."

Many of us have been suspecting this for a long time. Some of us have been saying it. The testimony of Senator McCumber, a man in intimate personal and official relations with the Lodgiacs, is decidedly strong confirmation of that view. Beginning with ill-tempered criticism of the league of nations covenant because of personal and partisan antagonism to Woodrow Wilson, the antagonism and the criticism have so grown in bitterness that now these monomaniacs—for that is literally what they have come to be—are more than willing to destroy both the league of nations and the peace treaty to gratify their enraged spleen. Senator McCumber knows them and is honest enough and courageous enough to tell what he knows of them.

OZARK ROSE.

SHE followed with a will untamed, elated,
The lure that Cupid throws;
But in the city found herself mismated,
Unhappy Ozark rose!

May He, the Gardener all-good, eternal,
Shield her from earthly woes,
And take her to his gardens ever vernal,
His glorified own rose.

And may my prayer to Him at last be granted,
There, where no evil grows,
May I behold her, by His care transplanted,
Unfading Ozark rose!

Sir: On a recent motor trip to Colorado and the Rockies, I saw quite a few amusing signs. Sign hunting at home is a pleasant diversion, but out there, where the territory has not been covered by your zealous band of hunters, there are more to find and consequently is even more pleasure in it.

At Rocheport, Mo., we were advised to take the ferry by this sign:

> Cross the river here and save > seven miles good roads.

After we climbed the hills on the other side of the river we concluded the error may have been intentional.

On the ferry:

> Stop and wait until cars come > of landing.

At Midway, Mo.:

> Car repair all work guaranteed.
> Stop and get try me

Another sign advertised:

> Black Rock. Pop. 45.
> Speed Limit 101 miles.
> Free Water—free air.
> Watch us grow.

At the top of a hill, west of Manhattan City, Kan., under a skull and crossbones, is this warning:

> Danger! Graveyard at bottom > of hill for reckless drivers.

At Boulder, Colo., we were informed that:

> Al keeps this store. This store > keeps Al.

The person who printed these signs for a Boulder shop must have obeyed the excellent old adage, "When in doubt, do nothing:"

> Ladies Overalls 2.95
> Childrens Play Suits 1.98

A fine example of irony at Palmer Lake:

> Palmer Garage—Wrecked cars
> our specialty.

A few from Osage, Kan.:

> My Brothers Store

> Klingburg & Skinner's
> The busy real estate men.

> Lenaxia—Speed limit 2 miles > school-children.

Query—For whom is this sign meant—autoists or children?

On Jackson road, near Kansas City:

> For Sale
> Otto Schmid,
> 1284 Temple Place.

A dubious bargain. Eh! What?

In Osage we find this chalked on a window:

> $1.15 Potatoes $1.15

The first and only time in our tourist experience that a price remained stationary instead of automatically aviating when we approached.

Three possessives got lost in Kansas, and while chasing the elusive prey we forgot their original camping place:

> Richards Store

> Sam Temples Restaurant
> (Sam Temples)
> Sams Place—eat short order

There are a few signs that look good to the weary traveler, such as:

> Welcome to Lakin

And

> Free Auto Camping Ground
> 1 Mile South

And when you leave you see:

> Thank you. Come again.

I wonder if you could write one of your paragraphs on hospitality? That of the West in unexcelled. St. Louis should be as cordial to its visitors as the Westerners were to us, and we would need little advertising. L. E. R.

Lafayette Day Celebrated in New York; Pershing and Poincare Send Messages

Ambassador Jusserand Principal Speaker—Exercises Also Held in Number of Other Cities.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Ambassador Jusserand of France, was the principal speaker at Franco-American exercises held here today in New York's historic city hall in commemoration of the 162d anniversary of the birth of Lafayette and the fifth anniversary of the first battle of the Marne. Amid the impressive services, messages of felicitation and congratulation upon the victory of allied arms, which had been brought to pass since the last celebration by the Lafayette Day National Committee were read from President Poincare of France, Gen. Pershing, Gen. Wood and Secretary of State Lansing.

Representatives of a number of foreign Governments were present at the ceremonies which were held in the aldermanic chamber. Other speakers were Myron T. Herrick, former Governor of Ohio and ex-United States Ambassador to France and Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education. The Governments represented included, besides France and the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Russia, Poland and Greece. In the afternoon, services were held at the Lafayette monument in Union square which were participated in by the Society of Cincinnati, Sons of the Revolution, G. A. R., Society of the Colonial Wars and the Society of Founders and Patriots of America.

Exercises in Other Cities.

Similar exercises were held at the same time in San Francisco, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Fayetteville, N. C., and Louisville, Ky., the same messages being read to the assemblages in those cities.

In Philadelphia, in addition, a cable message also was read from the president of the Paris Municipal Council.

"I am proud to be asked to associate myself with your celebration," wired the Prince of Wales." "The British empire can never forget its debt to France for the immortal victory of the Marne, the first great action of the war, in which the French and British armies, side by side, imposed their will upon the enemy."

Field Marshal Haig, Admiral Beatty, Premier Clemenceau of France, Andrew Tardeau and A. J. Balfour also sent characteristic greetings. Other messages were as follows:

From Poincare.

From the President of the French republic: "In the hours of trial and of the needed common efforts, the American people and French people united their thoughts in order to commemorate at once the birth of Lafayette and the battle of the Marne. How could our two nations not seize, in this year of internal peace, the occasion to celebrate together the same anniversaries?

"The brotherhood of America and France was born in the War of Independence. It has never been obscured since. It has found its final consecration in the great fight we have just fought shoulder to shoulder for the liberty of the world. It will keep all its strength in the future and contribute to consolidate, in the interest of humanity, the peace which has been established at the cost of so many sacrifices by the defenders of right.

"To the people of the United States I send the greetings of the French republic, to the American soldiers the cordial remembrance of their brothers in arms, to the American mothers who have lost their sons on the battle fields of Europe, the homage of my profound sympathy.

"RAYMOND POINCARE."

Regrets From Pershing.

From Gen. Pershing (Paris): "I sincerely regret that I shall not be present in New York for the exercises in the city hall celebrating the Lafayette-Marne anniversary. The first celebration of this joint anniversary since the signing of peace should be fraught with new significance to all Americans. Lafayette's services directly influenced our course of action in the war. The first battle of the Marne saved the world from an overwhelming disaster. The memory of Lafayette and of the Marne must be kept fresh in the minds of every generation of our people. PERSHING."

From Major-General Wood (Chicago): "Had it been possible to be present I should have been glad to be with you to pay my tribute of respect and affection to France and express my hope for the continuance of the warmest friendship and relation between the two countries, each of which has responded to the call of the other, at a moment of great national peril.

"LEONARD WOOD."

From Secretary Lansing (Washington)—"I deeply regret that my engagements prevent my presence at the celebration of two anniversaries which are so worthy of commemoration as those of Lafayette and the first battle of the Marne. Both stir our minds with the thought of the struggle and triumph of liberty, of sacrifice and glorious achievement. High among the heroes of America's war for independence is inscribed the name of Lafayette; and no name will find a higher place in the annals of the great war for democracy than that of Joffre, the victor of the Marne. Both fought that men might be free from autocracy. Both saw the cause of humanity triumphant. To these two great sons of France the new world and the old world owe a debt of gratitude which can never be forgotten while patriotism burns in the hearts of men.

"ROBERT LANSING."

Ended as It Should.

Ambassador Jusserand in his address, said that "the war has now ended as it should," and that the peace which has been signed was not a peace of "vengeance," but a peace of reparation and safety. He paid a touching tribute to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt, saying both nations mourned the absence of one man and "hearing no more a voice which, on momentous occasions reached from one end of the world to the other, teaching men how to attain better days through courage, sense of duty and good citizenship; a voice now hushed forever."

Referring to the horrors of German warfare and the devastation wrought throughout northern France, Jusserand painted a picture of French courage and indomitable will in the following words: "In spite of mistakes and imperfections future France is being built. Do not think that those sturdy men who in company with you stopped the onrush of the Germans, now stand aghast and disheartened at the sight of their ruins and the undeserved hardships in store for them or no peace. No, they flock on the contrary to the dismal regions where they are sure to suffer but where their fathers lived before them, and they want their children to live after them. They are busy clearing the wreckage, filling the shell-holes and the trenches and removing the barbed wire and the unexploded shells (several millions at Lens alone) preparing future crops."

Touching upon Lafayette's devotion to the American cause and America's later response he said: "When Lafayette heard of American independence his heart enlisted. When you heard of the danger of France your hearts enlisted the severest claims on you; the widening of the limits of military age for your population and the increase of war taxes passed by a unanimous vote in the two houses. Your descendants to the end of time will be proud of those ancestors of theirs who acted thus and fought so well in the great crisis."

LABOR UNIONS ASK THAT ST. LOUISAN BE NAMED JUDGE

Telegram Urges Man Familiar With Economic Conditions for Federal Bench.

Telegrams protesting the appointment of any person living outside of St. Louis to succeed United States District Judge Dyer have been sent to Attorney-General Palmer in Washington by the Central Trades and Labor Union, the iron workers' union and several other labor organizations.

The decision to send the telegrams resulted from newspaper reports that Supreme Judge Charles B. Faris of Caruthersville had been decided upon by the President for the Federal position.

The labor organizations urged that there were many St. Louis lawyers competent for the Federal judgeship and that labor demanded that a St. Louis man who was familiar with economic conditions in the city be named. Judge Faris' name was not mentioned in the telegrams.

Judge Faris, when here Friday to attend the reception to the President, said he had been unable to obtain confirmation of the report of his selection.

Letter Carriers to Appeal to Wilson.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—Self-determination for Ireland was indorsed today by the National Association of Letter Carriers, in convention here. A resolution to that effect was adopted without comment. Officers of the association were instructed to call on President Wilson and ask why Postmaster-General Burleson will not permit collective bargaining.

FEW PAYMENTS OF THIRD INCOME TAX INSTALLMENTS

Notices Were Sent Out a Week Ago—Penalty for Failure to Pay by Sept. 15 Is 5 Per Cent.

Although notices that the third installment of income taxes will be due Sept. 15 were sent out to taxpayers a week ago, few payments have been made up to this time. Most of those who have responded to the notices have paid both the September and December installments. The Government prefers that this be done where possible so as to facilitate the closing of the books at the end of the year.

If payment of the current installment is not made by Sept. 15 this installment and the final one automatically becomes due Sept. 16. The penalty for inexcusable failure to pay the tax is the addition of 5 per cent to the amount due, with an additional 1 per cent for each month it remains unpaid.

STORE TO SELL FOOD AT COST

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 6.—George Fabyan, wealthy resident of Geneva, Ill., called on District Attorney Charles F. Clyne today and announed his intention of opening a large store in the Fox River Valley where he will sell food and clothing to the consumer at cost.

The store will be located near his home, on the outskirts of Geneva. He plans to stock his store from the sales of surplus army foods and other necessities. He will also purchase supplies confiscated by the Government to aid in the fight on the high cost of living.

Events in the Social World

Many Young Women Busily Preparing to Go to Eastern Colleges—Most of Weddings in Prospect Are Scheduled for Latter Part of September.

LIKE all other good things that must end, the vacation season of 1919 is passing and scores of St. Louisans last week came flocking home by motor and rail, as if lured by the cool breezes which preceded them.

This is the period when Virgil and "French" repeat their annual victory over beach and mountain and the shops are filled daily with girls assembling their wardrobes in preparation for returning to school, their chief competitors being prospective brides making additions to their trousseaux.

Vassar opens Sept. 19, and among the girls who will go there in the next two weeks are Misses Lucy Butler, Catherine Treat, Carolyn Bailey, Virginia Gordon, Esther Capen, Beatrice Thomas and Josephine Garrett.

Wellesley and Smith also will claim their share of St. Louis girls: Misses Leah Taylor, Stephanie Jarvis, Margaret Nettleship, Genevieve Wilson, Janet Matthews and Elizabeth Williams will depart for Wellesley, and Misses Frances Hays, Mary Younglove, Gertrude Walther, Virginia Deacon, Dorothea Roeder, Esther Adele Williams, Dorothy and Vivian Partridge will go to Smith.

Most of the brides-to-be who have chosen September for their marriages have selected the latter part, and so far there are very few weddings scheduled for next week.

The most important one will take place Saturday, when Miss Emily Beck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Beck of Lockwood avenue, Webster, will become the bride of Archibald Hamilton of Chicago. The ceremony will be celebrated in the evening at the Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Webster, and a reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Katherine Beck, the bride's sister, will be maid of honor, and Miss Isabel Perry will be bridesmaid.

Mrs. Hines, an aunt of Miss Beck's, has arrived from Baltimore to be present at the ceremony, and is staying with Mrs. W. S. Walker of Aberdeen place. Another aunt, Mrs. Gundry, will arrive from Boston this week and will stay at the Beck home until after the wedding.

Word has just been received in St. Louis of the marriage of John Dwight Bridge, and Mrs. Edward Herter which took place on July 25 at Pasadena, Cal. The wedding was quietly solemnized at the home of friends of the bride and only a few intimate friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Bridge are visiting Mr. Bridge's parents at their summer home at Walpole, N. H. and will make their home in New York City.

Mrs. Herter was before her first marriage, Miss Caroline Heck of South Hampton, L. I. Mr. Bridge is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hudson E. Bridge of 23 Westmoreland place and a brother of George Leighton Bridge and of Laurence D. Bridge. He served as First-Lieutenant in the Camouflage Corps of the army.

An advanced showing of imported hats, scarfs and novelties. Sally Meagher, 801 Century Bldg.—Adv.

An engagement of interest announced last week is that of Mrs. Fairfax Spencer, formerly Miss Dorothy Sylvester, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Oakes Sylvester of 5924 Horton place, to Clark Garrison, son of Mrs. Price Lane, formerly Mrs. Cornelius K. Garrison. Mrs. Spencer's father, the late F. O. Sylvester, was one of the foremost landscape artists of St. Louis. Mr. Garrison, who resides in New York, formerly resided in St. Louis and attended Smith Academy here. He has recently returned from France, where he served for 14 months with a French ambulance unit.

The wedding will take place Oct. 4. It will be quietly celebrated at the home of the bride's mother, the Rev. Dr. R. C. Cave officiating. Reginald E. Garrison, a brother of the bridegroom, will attend him as best man.

Mr. Garrison and his bride will reside in Salamanca, N. Y.

One of the delightful affairs of last week was the dinner party and dance which Mrs. B. F. Bush of 5334 Waterman avenue gave Tuesday evening at the St. Louis Club in honor of Charles S. Drew and his bride, who recently arrived from Scotland. Covers were laid for 30 guests and the decorations were in pink and white, ophelia and russell roses being used.

Several other informal affairs have been given in Mrs. Drew's honor during her visit at the home of her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Drew of the Kingsbury Apartments. Mr. Drew departed for Baltimore last Friday and Mrs. Drew will join him there Sept. 13. They will reside in St. Louis and expect to return next January.

Miss Lily, head dressmaker of Schumack, Inc., 857 Century, is back from New York with the season's latest dictates.—Adv.

A wedding of last week was that of Miss Elmyra Sewing and Louis J. Johanning, who were married Sept. 3 at the home of the bride's brother, Dr. Arthur H. Sewing, 2349 St. Louis avenue, with whom she made her home. The Rev. George Morgan performed the ceremony and the bride's sister, Miss Grace Sewing, attended her as maid of honor, and the bridegroom's brother, Edward Johanning, was best man. Mr. Johanning is the son of Mrs. J. H. Johanning of 3504 Victor street. The young couple have departed for Estes Park, Colo., on a wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell of 5100 Washington boulevard and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. A. Vesper of 6440 Cecil avenue, who have been in the Canadian Rockies and on the Pacific Coast for seven weeks have returned home.

Miss Florence Wade of 5290 Waterman avenue, who has been in Hot Springs, Va., for the last three weeks, has gone to New York City and will return to St. Louis the latter part of September.

Miss C. Linneman is now associated with the Apparel Department of Sonnenfeld's, 610 Washington avenue.—Adv.

Mrs. F. W. Thiery of Newark, N. J., announced the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Pauline T. Preyer, to Curby Jamerson of Boston, formerly of St. Louis, on Sept. 1.

One of the early October weddings will be that of Miss Florence Frees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Frees of the Hotel Buckingham, and Fred Malinson of Dallas. The marriage will take place Oct. 8 in the rose parlor of the Buckingham, and will be quietly celebrated with only the members of the two families present. There will be no attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Malinson will reside in Dallas.

Beaver, Felt and Velour Hats cleaned and pressed like new. J. J. Ryan, 617 Lucas. —Adv.

Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Neville of 5861 Washington boulevard have returned from a six weeks' automobile tour of the New England States.

Miss Martha Ryan of 4374 Laclede avenue entertained last Thursday afternoon with a bridge party in honor of Miss Mary Sheehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Sheehan of 5851 Nina place, whose marriage to Dr. Humbert Ghio will take place Sept. 24.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Carp of 6119 Washington boulevard will entertain today in honor of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carp, who are visiting them. The young couple were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Hodes, in Brooklyn last Aug. 30. Mr. and Mrs. Carp will make their home in Helena, Ark.

Mme. Mack's made-to-order corsets and surgical garments are the best obtainable. 510 Odd Fellows' Bldg.—Adv.

The marriage of Miss Cecil Jaeger of 3821 St. Louis avenue to William Toehl took place Wednesday evening at Friedens Evangelical Church, the Rev. Theo. Oberhellman performing the ceremony. A cousin of the bride, Miss Opal Venkman of Kansas City, Mo., was her only attendant. Oscar Limberg acted as best man. The ushers were E. T. Oberhellman and J. Lawrence Hartwig. A reception for the immediate family followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Toehl will be at home after Sept. 18 at 3821 St. Louis avenue.

The marriage of Miss Lulu Hooper and Philip H. Chamberlain of Chicago will take place Sept. 10 at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lillie Hooper of 5319 Terry avenue. The Rev. Dr. F. M. Keller will perform the ceremony and there will be a reception and wedding supper afterward. Miss Sarah Hooper will be maid of honor and sole attendant. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain will reside in Keokuk, Io.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Simon of 3523 University street are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a daughter.

FURS AND MYSTERY

There are enough grades of genuine mink fur itself to send one scampering to the fur dealer of reliability—not to even mention the clever substitutes that abound in places where dollars rule instead of reputations!

The mink is a larger species of the weasel family, found in all parts of the United States and Canada. The quality of mink skins varies more widely than the climate in the numerous sections in which the animals are found—the month in which each animal is caught, helping further to govern the worth of its skin.

The beauty of mink skin is in its long, lustrous overhairs, rather than the soft under fur, and skins taken along the North Atlantic coast in the months of December and January possess greater density and brilliancy than those taken in any other place, or at any other time.

It is a part of the unreliable fur dealer's business to darken or "blend" inferior Southern or Western skins of yellower cast, by applying a tincture to the fur, and then sell them as natural Eastern skins.

Another so-called "trick of the trade" is to lengthen small skins by piecing-in or by cutting small slits in the edges and carefully pulling lengthwise until the notches are drawn out and the sides of the skin have again become straight edges.

Now what does all this convey to the prospective purchaser of "the most economical of furs?"

That she must depend upon her dealer's integrity, first, for prime Eastern pelts, not Southern or Western—second, for skins that have been caught at the proper time of the year, even though in the right section—third, for skins that were the right color when caught, not "doctored" afterwards—fourth, for selected skins of the proper size, not lengthened to suit—and fifth, for fair pricing upon the basis of purchase, not upon the basis of what they might be worth next season!

BEWARE OF THE WOLF IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING!

To Be Continued.

HOW SEDITION LAW OPERATES IN IRELAND; GRINDS NATIONALISTS

posed the Irish scandal to the world and they got numerous measures, especially on behalf of the Irish tenants, education and development schemes, even if mean and niggardly and granted solely under stress of parliamentary pressure, as has been every reform for Ireland. To these measures are due the material prosperity of Ireland today and the training of a large number of her sons in the work of Government.

The Sinn Feiners expect to get control at the next elections of the bulk of the Irish County Councils, and through them to extend their power over the internal parochial affairs of the country. There would be no County Councils but for the Irish party. Ireland would today be in the same slough of despond as in the seventies, but for the toil, the unselfishness, and the sufferings of the members of the Irish party founded by Parnell on principles as independent of England as those of the Sinn Feiners themselves. Parnell, Redmond, John Dillon, the late William Redmond, Michael Davitt, Healy—many others—all underwent the same species of persecution from the British Government that the Sinn Feiners are now facing. Every one of them was sent to jail, the late John Redmond having been twice if not thrice in jail for "sedition" for six months' hard labor each time. When mere confinement failed to break their spirit, Mr. Arthur Balfour enacted that they should be treated as felons and have plank beds to sleep upon.

The attempt to fix the stigma of being faineants on the Irish party involves falsehood as gross as it does ingratitude. The worst that can be said of the party is that it was led on to its ruin by trusting the good faith of Liberal and Radical ministries. They had the most solemn pledges of home rule time after time from Messrs. Asquith, Lloyd George and all the responsible heads of these parties. The Liberal and Radical press betrayed the promises and professions of the Liberal and Radical leaders. It was unbelievable that whole series of Ministers and publicists should all be trained with the same streak of dishonesty and time-serving, but so it turned out. None of them had the courage to face the Orange outcry when it came to the sticking point.

That, however, is the worst reason possible for the abstention of the Sinn Feiners from Westminster. If they knew how to avail of their opportunities, they should be there every day and all day, in full strength, making the life of this, the worst House of Commons since the days of Walpole, impossible; showing up incessantly the humbug, hypocrisy, corruption that pervades it and all its ancillary departments; exposing to the world not merely what is being done in Ireland, but in Persia, Mesopotamia, German East Afirca, in India, in Egypt, in Syria—everywhere that the principles on which Great Britain entered on the war and on which she concluded peace are being shamelessly violated.

If the Irish party had had 70 members in the House these last nine months, the position of the Lloyd George Government, if it still existed, would be very different today, and the position in Ireland would be vastly better. By thrusting aside the unrivalled opportunities for damaging criticism and exposure of British policy in Ireland and elsewhere offered by the House of Commons the Sinn Feiners are playing into the hands of Ireland's enemies and betraying the cause they have at heart. Though it is true that they owe their possession of the Irish representation to Mr. Lloyd George's policy in Ireland, the return they are making him in allowing him a free hand at Westminster is altogether disproportionate. It is exactly what he had been playing for.

What is it possible to say of strategists whose plan of campaign involves the surrender of one of its deadliest weapons because it is too proud to use it against a foe that always has and always will use any weapon against them? It may be Sinn Fein but it isn't sanity. It means wasted and misdirected effort; it is the reverse of political efficiency.

One lesson has been learned by the whole of Nationalist and Sinn Fein Ireland from the history of the Irish party. That is, that any party that enters into negotiations with any English party or Government is lost. It would be equivalent to walking into a quicksand open-eyed—a quicksand in which are swallowed up already the bodies of all the Irish politicians who have ever been inveigled into it. If this House of Commons intends to deal with the Irish problem—which as a matter of fact it is sedulously trying to evade doing—it must do it on its own responsibility. It must pass an act and offer it to Ireland.

Another indisputable factor in the present Irish situation is that no act short of full Dominion Home Rule, giving fiscal independence to Ireland, will be accepted by the Irish people. The question might have been settled on easier terms before now. But England will now have to pay the penalty for the unscrupulous mistreatment of the question by her politicians all these years.

Mr. Lloyd George's Royal Commission to examine the possibility of a Federal solution involving all three kingdoms is a mere dilatory dodge. There is no real demand for a Federal system in England, Scotland and Wales, and the object is to trade on their indifference as a means of delaying facing the Irish problem.

At present the talk of an Irish republic is not indulged in by any responsible persons in Ireland as a solution of the Irish question. Full Dominion Home Rule—but no lesser measure—would deprive it of such adherents as it has, or at least leave them in an insignificant minority.

"SECURITY LEAGUE" PLOTS AGAINST NATION, SAYS WILLIAM J. BRYAN

lantern methods into our national campaigns; it furnishes new proof of the necessity for vigilance upon the part of well-meaning and high-minded citizens.

At this time the Security League is ostensibly deeply interested in universal military training, but we shall not know until after another investigation what "side lines" it carries or what questions it will put to those whose attitude on public matters is displeasing to the managing officials of the league.

Corrupt Practices Act Violated.

The Johnson committee calls attention to the Federal statute known as the corrupt practices act, declaring that the National Security League has violated that act, and points out that the league has failed to make a report of its expenditures, as required by the act.

The penalty for the violation of this act is a fine of not more than $1000, or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. The penalty may be sufficient for the failure of a political organization which works openly, but it is inadequate punishment for an organization which carries out a purpose which it dare not proclaim, by methods which cannot be defended, and claims respectability through the use of the names of honorary officials whom it does not consult.

The law should compel political organizations to adopt a name indicating their purpose and the scope of their activities.

The voters of the United States should be warned, not only against the National Security League, but against the activities of the special interests that resort to such reprehensible methods to gain political power.

REALTY HOLDINGS OF THE VON VERSEN ESTATE SEIZED

Eighteen Parcels in St. Louis and Farm in County Taken Over by Alien Property Custodian.

OWNED BY CHILDREN LIVING IN GERMANY

Heirs of Mrs. Alice Clemens-Von Versen Never Visited St. Louis — Income From Property Small.

The St. Louis realty holdings of the estate of the late Alice B. Clemens-Von Versen, whose wedding, 35 years ago, to Gen. Maximillian von Versen of the German army was a notable event in St. Louis society, have been seized by local agents of Francis P. Garvan, United States Alien Property Custodian. Five children, all of whom reside in Germany, control the estate at present.

The property consists of 18 parcels of real estate in St. Louis and a small farm in St. Louis County, south of the River des Peres in Carondelet. It is valued at $541,300. It was left to Mrs. von Versen by her father, the late James R. Clemens, a capitalist, who resided on Cass avenue, near Eighteenth street. Following her marriage Mrs. von Versen went to Germany with her husband and resided there until her death.

Deeds Name Children.

Deeds were filed in the office of the Recorder of Deeds Friday, vesting the title to the property in the Government. The deeds name the following children of Mrs. von Versen, as owners of the property: Hulda E. von Arnim-Suckow, Maj. Frederich von Versen of the German army, Maximillian W. F. von Versen, William R. von Versen and Lotte Elizabeth von Versen.

F. G. Zeibig, member of a local real estate firm which handled the property before the seizure, said little income was derived from it, as most of it is unimproved. The seizure, he declared, was a matter of form and if the usual procedure is followed the real estate will be restored to its owners at some future date.

Dr. James Ross Clemens of 4615 Pershing avenue, a nephew of Mrs. Clemens von Versen, said yesterday that Von Versen avenue, changed since the war to Enright avenue, was named in honor of the German General. Von Versen avenue, together with Clemens, Cates and Vernon avenues, he said, are on what formerly was the "Clemens Farm." The various streets above mentioned were named after members of families related to the late James R. Clemens.

Von Versen avenue was changed to Enright avenue to honor a soldier named Enright, who was one of the first three members of the American Expeditionary forces to fall in battle.

Children Never Came Here.

Dr. Clemens said that the children of Gen. and Mrs. von Versen have never visited the United States and that virtually no communications have been exchanged since the war.

The seizure of the Von Versen property by the Alien Property Custodian is the second of the kind in St. Louis. On August 19, last, agents of the custodian seized real estate owned by the heirs of Wilhelm Johansman, a former St. Louisan. The heirs reside in Germany.

RESCUE MISSION NEEDS FUNDS

A joint committee of 50 business and professional men and 50 women, at a conference at the Home of the Good Shepherd, Gravois and Bamberger avenues, this afternoon will consider providing assistance for the home. No financial aid is afforded the institution, either by State or city, and the sisterhood, being unendowed, is dependent entirely upon its own resources for finances.

The committee is expected to decide upon promoting a concert to obtain funds for the institution, Oct. 28 to 29, at the Odeon by Professional musicians who have volunteered their services.

WASHINGTON U. NIGHT COURSES BENEFIT CITY

Professor Says Business Men Indorse Plan to Train Competent Office Help.

Organization of the evening courses at Washington University, especially since the start of the war period and the need for close cooperation with the National Government, has been upon the basis of greatest direct benefit to St. Louis, it was stated yesterday by Prof. F. W. Shipley, director of that division of the university's activities.

Knowledge as to this benefit has this year been obtained by personal conferences between Dr. Shipley and executives of many of the larger industries and commercial houses of the city.

"Since about the first of August I have been putting in most of my time to ascertain in what directions the university could contribute most largely to the advantage of St. Louis busineses," Dr. Shipley stated. "In many instances the men to whom I put that question were prepared to reply only in a general way, the purport being that men and women must be trained to think and adapt themselves to whatever duty might be intrusted to them. In the wide range of courses arranged, including numerous phases of industry, commerce, finance and professions, it was generally conceded that we had gone far toward covering the requirements.

"The course on Secretarial Studies and Office Organization, which will be inaugurated the coming season, I found to be especially popular. The product of the course we can use to vast advantage and will pay well for the service," was the way most of the business men put their assurance. This course is intended primarily to aid young women to equip themselves for positions as private secretaries of the sort that are capable of taking practically full charge of office organization and effort."

Enrollment for the evening courses at Washington University last year was about 550. This year, according to present indications, will show an increase of not less than 50 per cent.

The regular enrollment period includes the three days prior to Sept. 25, the opening date, but some students have already registered and all those who desire to do so may enroll at any time on and after tomorrow, in the office of the registrar of any of the schools constituting the university.

Capt. I. L. Lummis, assistant of Maj. Wallace M. Craigie as professor of military science and tactics at Washington University last school year, whose rank was temporary, is undergoing examination at Omaha to determine his permanent appointment as Captain. Maj. Craigie, who was called upon for information as to the fitness of his assistant for permanent promotion, gave him unqualified indorsement

REFUSES TO CUT RAISIN PRICE

In response to a protest by the St. Louis Wholesale Grocers' Association to the California Associated Raisin Co. against the increase in the price of raisins, the latter company has wired that it is taking no further business and indications are that further offerings will be merely odds and ends. It also states that the prices were based on fair returns to growers in accordance with general conditions.

The St. Louis Wholesale Grocers' Association, in conjunction with the Wholesale Grocers' Exchange at Chicago and the Iowa-Nebraska Wholesale Grocers' Association, has reiterated the protest.

Secretary Hugh Mace of the local organization said that reports are to the effect that this year's crop of raisins is much in excess of the crop of last year. The Government was a large buyer of raisins last year, and is not nearly so large a buyer this year. In the interest of the consuming public of the territory served by the St. Louis wholesale grocers, Mace said, the association feels that it must lend every effort to have the price of raisins cut.

The strength of the army on that date was 421,988, officers and men, of whom 323,798 were in this country. Soldiers en route home from Europe numbered 21,531. Enlistments now total 110,047, but the weekly rate had decreased from the high record established in July and August.

NEW OPERETTA COMES TO SHUBERT-JEFFERSON

"Sunshine," by Composer of "Fiddlers Three," Presents Richard Carle Tonight.

Alexander Johnstone, whose excellent musical score for "Fiddlers Three" raised that product of last season from musical comedy to operetta rank, will present his newest work, "Sunshine," at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater tonight, with Richard Carle as the featured performer.

"Sunshine" made its debut in Chicago during the summer, and enjoyed a run of three months at the Studebaker Theater. Then it spent a week in Detroit, and was to have arrived in this city last Sunday night. But the actors' strike, causing the managers to withhold most of their road companies from tour, opened up a booking for "Sunshine" in Indianapolis. The company availed itself of the opportunity, thus postponing its St. Louis visit for a week.

As Johnstone, the owner and manager of "Sunshine," is an independent manager and not a member of the Producing Managers' Association, and as all members of the company have Actors' Equity Association contracts, no difficulty was made in this city, according to a representative of the troupe, against putting the play on at the Shubert-Jefferson.

The libretto, by William Carey Duncan, sets Carle, in the part of an American insurance agent, down in a picturesque melee of Southern Spain, which is supposed to be densely populated by smugglers, matadors, dancers and charming senoritas. Many diverting complications are said to enliven the two acts of the play, and the chances for colorful costumes, scenery and music are by no means overlooked. In the cast are Marjorie Owen, Betty Booth, Caroline Andrews, Leona Stäter, David Quixaro, Phil McDermott and others, including the Murdoch brothers, dancers. A chorus of 40 girls is promised.

"Fall of Babylon at American."

David Wark Griffith's spectacular film production, "The Fall of Babylon" will open at the American Theater tonight for a week's run. As an added feature, Kyra, an Oriental dancer, will appear in person.

"The Fall of Babylon" is a much-heralded "big picture" with an unusually large cast and many supernumeraries. A special musical accompaniment has been provided. The film will be shown twice daily.

For one of its headliners this week the Orpheum invades the Metropolitan Opera Co. and presents its popular American bass-baritone, Henri Scott. His rich and artistically trained voice has often been heard in this city, both in opera and in productions of oratorios by the Pageant Choral Society. He is well-known on the concert stage, but this is his first excursion into vaudeville. The other featured number is one by Alan Brooks. Others on the bill are Nina Payne, dancer; Bob Hall, Dolly Kay, Whitfield and Ireland, with Joe Donahue, Bender and Meehan, the Van Cellos, and Enos Frazzere.

At the Gayety this week is billed Al Reeves, with his own "Big Show," and at the Standard "Grown Up Babies."

TABLET FOR TENEMENT'S HEROES

Names of 25 Tenants Who Died in War Listed on Paris Building.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—There has just been placed on the wall of a building at 212 rue Saint-Maur a marble tablet to the memory of 25 of its former tenants who died on the battlefield. Of 180 workingmen who lived in the tenement, 85 went to war and only 60 returned.

"Never forget those who fell as heroes for the defense of the fatherland and the liberty of the peoples," says the inscription on the tablet. The names of the 25 dead follow, beginning with Corp. Charles Bonnet, the first to fall, on Sept. 21, 1914, and ending with Andre Labainville, killed on Nov. 11, 1918, the very last day of hostilities. Under the tablet there is a palm with this dedication: "To the boys of 212 rue Saint-Maur, who died for France."

THINK THRIFT STAMPS CONTRIBUTION TO U. S.

Many Persons Don't Know They Are as Good as Money in Pockets.

The investment value of thrift and savings stamps and savings certificates will be emphasized in the future by the savings division of the Treasury Department, Eighth Federal Reserve District, of which L. A. Wilson is the director, with less stress laid upon the patriotic duty of buying Government securities.

A rather curious condition which seems widespread has been discovered by salesmen of the savings division, who find that many persons seem to feel that the close of the war ended the necessity of buying savings stamps and certificates because heretofore they have been known as war savings stamps, and that the purchase of stamps had been only to help the Government pay war expenses instead of being a means of making an investment and an encouragement of thrift and saving.

Actual cases have been found of women who did not realize that the stamps they bought were just as good as money in their pockets, and salesmen have been told "Oh, I bought some stamps to help Uncle Sam win the war, but I don't know what I did with them." Then again, many have bought the 25-cent thrift stamps and have failed to exchange them, when they had 16, for the "baby bonds," as the savings stamps are now called.

One man last week refused to buy any more thrift stamps because he said he did not want to wait five years to get his money back, and was astonished when he was told in case of emergency he did not have to wait for the stamps to mature, but could have his money refunded in 10 days by applying to the postoffice where the stamps were registered.

The Savings Division in the future will preach the necessity of economy and thrift for the welfare of the individual and urge investment of thrift stamps, baby bonds and Treasury savings certificates, and has opened a campaign to sell a half million dollars of the new Treasury savings certificates in the Eighth Federal Reserve District during September. The $100 and $1000 certificates bear 4 per cent interest, compounded quarterly, and mature in 1924. They are on sale at all banks and trust companies which are authorized selling agents of the Savings Division. The $100 certificates are also sold at all first and second class postoffices.

The $100 certificates cost $84 this month, and will be raised 20 cents Oct. 1. The $1000 certificates which cost $848 this month will be $2 more next month. Sixteen of the thrift stamps with the payment of 20 cents additional may be exchanged for a baby bond, or $5 savings stamps maturing in 1924.

WOULD RETIRE CAPT. MATLACK

Kentucky Congressman Urges Recognition for Services in Mexico.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 6.—Representative Charles F. Ogden is trying to effect, by special act of Congress, the retirement of Capt. Leonard F. Matlack, the Louisville man who distinguished himself in the recent American expedition into Mexico, according to City Attorney Joseph S. Lawton, who has just returned from the national capitol.

Capt. Matlack's temporary commission expires soon. Due to an injury received in line of duty, he will be unable to re-enlist to serve 30 years, the retirement period of an enlisted man, although he had nearly completed this when he was given a temporary commission during the world war.

Existing laws provide for retirement for disabled officers of the regular establishment and those given emergency commissions from civilian life during the war, but do not protect the enlisted men of the regular army who were given temporary commissions.

In addition to activities to obtain Capt. Matlack's retirement at his present rank, citizens of Texas, where he has dealt with bandit raids and other border troubles, are trying to obtain for him a Congressional Medal in recognition of his gallantry in rescuing two American aviators held for ransom by bandits in Mexico and later leading the American expeditionary force that hunted down and killed a number of the bandits.

ST. LOUISANS TO PAY $575,833 STATE TAX

1918 Income Assessments on Individuals and Corporations Made Public by Collector.

St. Louis individuals and corporations will pay $575,833.11 to the state under the income tax for 1918, according to a report made yesterday by Collector Koeln to Assessor Wollbrinck. The tax is due on or before Dec. 31 next.

The rate for last year is one-half of 1 per cent. Married men earning less than $4000 a year and single men earning less than $3000 a year are exempted.

The report shows that 5104 St. Louisans are assessed $122,103.43; that 2941 corporations must pay $442,154.36; that 18 railroads will contribute $10,589.45, and that nine insurance companies are taxed $985.84. Individuals to the number of 2571 and 1375 corporations also made returns but were exempted.

The State income tax for the present year, to be paid by the end of 1920, will be at the rate of 1½ per cent, or three times the present rate, and the exemptions will be made the same as those of the Federal income tax—$2000 for married men and $1000 for single men without dependents.

SUIT TO RECOVER $332,500 ON BOAT CONTRACT IS ANSWERED

Defendants Aver France Refused Converted Barges Because of Excessive Tonnage.

The Inland Navigation Co., which formerly operated barges on the Mississippi River, and the Philip Rohan Boat, Boiler and Tank Co. yesterday answered the suit of the French republic to recover $332,500 paid by France for the purchase of three barges of the navigation company and their conversion by the boat company into sea-going craft. The contract was made at a time when the allies were seeking shipping to counteract the submarine menace of the Germans. The French republic alleged failure of the contractors to deliver the barges.

The answer declares that the reason the barges were not delivered was that France refused to accept them, repudiating the contract. The season for the refusal, the answer states, was that the barges were of reason for the refusal, the answer the greater tonnage came about through their transformation from river craft to sea-worthy ones, self-propelled.

TAILOR PUTS UP $647 WITH STRANGER TO PROVE HE'S HONEST

He Then Goes for Powders to Relieve Ailing Man, and Still Has Them, He Tells Police.

Max Bleicht of 2739 Gamble street, a tailor, yesterday reported to the police that two strangers whom he met Friday swindled him out of $647 in an ancient confidence game. One of the strangers said he wanted to buy a steamship ticket, but didn't know how, and he asked Bleicht to take charge of his money and buy the ticket for him.

The second stranger suggested that Bleicht put up an equal amount of money to show that he was honest. Bleicht went home and got the money and met the strangers at Seventh and St. Charles streets. He put his money with a "roll" which they showed him. One of the strangers complained of a headache and Bleicht volunteered to go to a drug store for headache powders. When he returned the strangers and his money were gone. He has the headache powders.

The bodies were found near the Sito ranch house. The heads of the victims had been nearly severed.

DECREE FOR $36,114 TO CONNECT SEWERS

More Than 3000 Persons in County Involved in Judgments to Be Handed Down This Week.

Judgments aggregating $36,114.30 will be rendered against more than 3000 St. Louis County property owners this week, when Circuit Judge Wurdeman of Clayton, hands down a decree establishing St. Louis Sewer District No. 1, connecting the sewerage systems of Glendale, Webster Groves and Shrewsbury with the Mill Creek Valley sewer of St. Louis. The Judgments will be levied against 5500 parcels of real estate and will range from 6 cents to $262.

The decree, according to Judge Wurdeman, will contain 930,000 words, the longest he has ever handed down. When entered into court record it is estimated that it will fill two volumes.

The judgments, however, will not end the worries of the property owners affected, inasmuch as the money derived in this way will merely pay for the establishment of the district. Additional funds will be required to pay for construction of the sewer

The expenses of establishing the district are divided as follows: Cost of surveying and expenses of commissioners appointed to lay out the district, $9,028.68; court cost, $6,953.30; cost of connecting with the Mill Creek Valley sewer and amount paid to the city of St. Louis for use of Mill Creek sewer, $19,132.32.

Bids for the construction of the sewer have been received, but will not be let until Oct. 1. It is expected that the sewer will be completed by Jan. 1 next.

CREDIT TOWARD GRADUATION FOR MUSIC COURSE IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Student to Qualify Must Have General Knowledge of Harmony, Appreciation and History.

In order to develop musical knowledge and feeling that will eventuate in artistic singing and playing, a plan has been put into effect in the high schools by which the study of applied music may be substituted for one of the four other academic subjects formerly required to be taken. This course may be taken either in or outside the school. In order to qualify for it, however, the student must show by examination that he already has a general theoretical knowledge of music equivalent in educational value to that gained in the regular high school music course in harmony, musical appreciation and history.

All high school pupils are at present required to take at least two years' of chorus music. For this, they are allowed half a credit toward graduation. If they take two more years they are allowed an additional half credit. These units may be substituted for any units the student may have lost by failure in one of the academic subjects. Besides the above, there is also a two-year course in music theory. Four credits in music is the maximum that may be offered by a student of the 16 required for graduation.

POISON LABEL REQUIRED ON DENATURED ALCOHOL

Internal Revenue Collector Moore has been notified by the Acting Commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service in Washington that hereafter receptacles in which completely denatured alcohol is sold must bear not only the present label, but the word "Poison" in large red letters, the skull and bones symbol, and the following statement:

"Completely denatured alcohol is a violent poison. It cannot be applied externally to human or animal tissues without serious injurious results. It cannot be taken internally without inducing blindness and general physical decay, ultimately resulting in death."

Further instructions state that reports recently received indicate an extensive use of completely denatured alcohol for bathing and rubbing purposes, and also its sale by irresponsible dealers under such circumstances as to assure them that it will be used for beverage purposes.

Grieved by German Gun.

LONDON.—Pending consultation of the townspeople's wishes, the Ashby-de-la-Zouch Urban District Council have postponed acceptance of a German field-gun captured by the 6th and 7th Battalions of the Leicestershire Regiment and offered to the town by the War Office. Councillor Tugby urged that the exhibition of the trophy would add to the grief of parents whose children had been killed by German guns.

ARMY SCHOOL WILL TEACH AMERICAN OFFENSIVE TACTICS

Fort Leavenworth Instructors Announce Adherence to Old Doctrine of Aggression From Open Positions.

VALUE OF SYSTEM PROVED IN FRANCE

Final Campaigns Showed Error of Europeans in Relying Upon "Stabilized" and "Trench" Warfare.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan.—The United States army not only had nothing to learn of the general principles of warfare in Europe, but the final campaign upheld in every essential the military strategy upon which the American army has been trained. It is true, of course, that of trench warfare there was much to be learned, but learned merely as a temporary expedient and not for the general conduct of the campaign upon which the American army purposed to embark.

These things are being emphasized here with the opening of the army service schools. The term opened with a greatly increased enrollment over former years, due to the increase in the size of the army. A large majority of the student officers are men with overseas service, and all of the instructors are officers who, in France, had the opportunity of putting their West Point and service schools teachings into practical operation either in direct command or in staff service. What before was taught only as learned theoretically is now to be taught in the light of actual experience.

The "American Doctrine."

A memorandum explaining the course of study to be pursued in the line school and the staff school was issued over the signatures of Maj. Hugh A. Drum, senior instructor of the line school, and Maj. Leroy Eltinge, senior instructor of the staff school. Both were Brigadier-Generals with the A. E. F., holding high General Staff positions. One of the first statements made in the memorandum is this:

"Our experiences in the European war have been sufficient and the results so creditable that we have little or no need to borrow tactical doctrines from a foreign country. * * * The tactical doctrine to be imparted at this school will be the American doctrine as illustrated by our own teachings and experiences."

What, then, may be asked, is the American doctrine, which proved so successful in the face of the experience of other nations in the war?

Tactics Same as Always.

Broadly stated, it is a refusal to recognize warfare as divided into various classifications such as "open," "position," "stabilized" and "trench." The conduct of war is along the same general lines as always. Napoleon's tactics are as applicable today as are Grant's and Stonewall Jackson's. The difference, according to Maj. Drum exists only in the utilization of new weapons, which have forced the adoption of new methods and new ways of executing the same tactical principles. The memorandum continues:

"While some situations representing the peculiarities of the so-called stabilized and trench warfare are desirable, the main part of the course will be based on the so-called open and position warfare situations. The inculcation of the offensive spirit which must be the primary object of the course, is best obtained by the study of open warfare offensive situations."

An Army of Offense.

In other words, our army will be taught, as it always has been, to carry the fight to the enemy and not depend on prepared positions to checkmate him. In this connection, certain events that took place in France are significant of the American attitude toward the war.

From the arrival of the first American troops overseas the method of training, as laid out by American officers, was based on open warfare situations. Little heed was paid to trench warfare ideas. The American officers knew that if the war was to be won it could only be won by "getting the boys out of the trenches" and into the broad, open country where maneuvering of large bodies of men could be made to accomplish the desired end—victory.

And yet, the French military officers assigned to the American units as instructors and advisers tried greatly to dissuade Gen. Pershing and his associates from adopting what they considered a suicidal course. They wanted the Americans to give more attention to trench warfare methods; they stood aghast at the thought of losses to be incurred through such teachings as the Americans were using. In fact, they didn't like the idea at all. But the Americans persisted and won their point. St. Mihiel and the Argonne are the answer.

No German Books Now.

And because of the experiences in the war, the American textbooks—which have yet to be written, of course—will be devoid of French military terminology, which began to invade even the every-day life of the American people. Camouflage and liaison may be mentioned as examples. In addition, the German text-system of instruction in the past, will not be used in the future for psychological reasons.

All this does not mean that the

Leavenworth schools will not adopt ideas used in the British, French and German armies. But the contribution of the other nations to the mili tary teachings of America will be decidedly small, even in the aggregate.

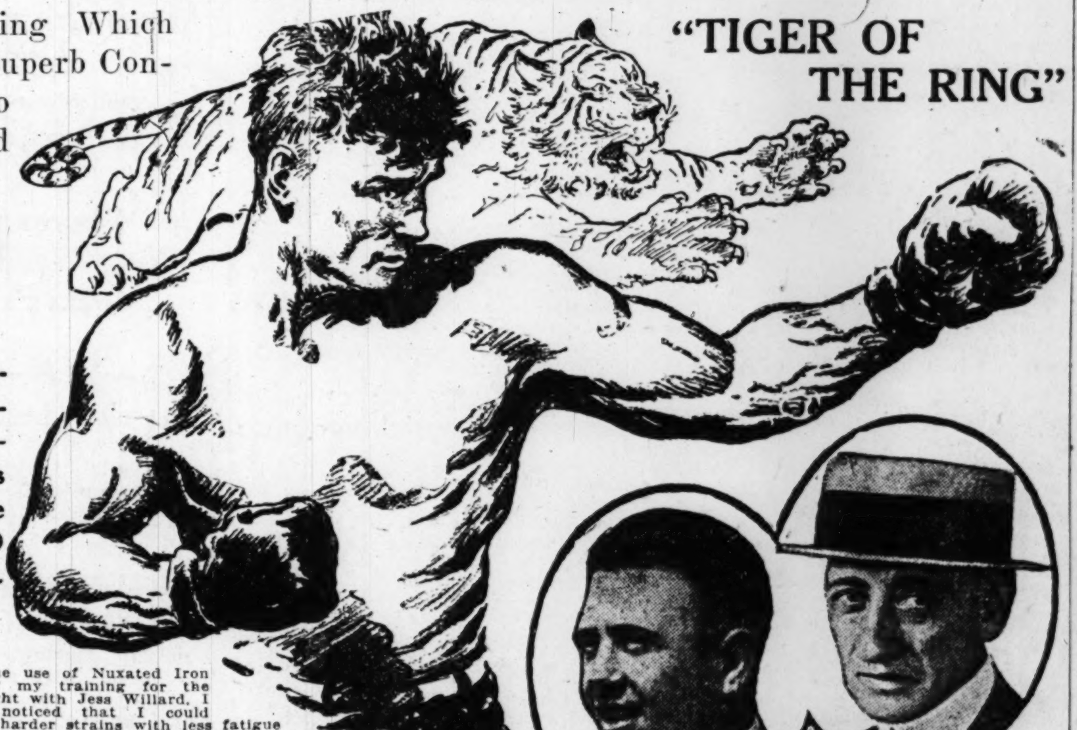
"Nuxated Iron Put Added Power Behind My Punch"

Says Jack Dempsey, Heavyweight Champion of the World

Tells a Secret of the Training Which Helped Get Him Into Such Superb Condition That He Was Able to Whip the Mighty Jess Willard and Prove Himself.



THE SUPERMAN OF THE AGE

Jack Kearns, Manager for Dempsey, Jimmy DeForest, Chief Trainer, and Others Give Opinions—How Nuxated Iron Helps Strengthen the Nerves, Restore Wasted Tissue and Build RED BLOOD, STRENGTH and ENDURANCE.

Since his overwhelming victory at Toledo, when he wrested the World's Championship title from the Goliath-like Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey, the modern David and Miracle Man of the Fistic World—Jack Kearns, his manager, and Jimmy De Forest, his chief trainer, have been besieged with inquiries as to the methods employed in rounding him into such superb condition. That Jack Dempsey used Nuxated Iron as a part of the training which produced such marvelous physical development as to make him a veritable human dynamo, should prove conclusively the paramount value he attached to this master strength and blood builder and he explains below why he now recommends it to others.

Just as when a man's life is at stake, physicians seek only the tried and proven treatment, so when the World's Championship hung in the balance, Dempsey's trainers did not stop to experiment with metallic iron preparations—Nux and Iron—or other products of questionable value, but they insisted upon having only genuine Nuxated Iron, which they felt could be absolutely relied upon to help build red blood, power and stamina.

In connection with this feature of his training regarding which Dempsey himself makes a statement below, Jimmy DeForest, the Champion's Chief Trainer, is quoted as saying: "I rate Jack Dempsey as the greatest heavyweight of all times. Unlike Willard, he heeded advice and counsel during his training from those whom he trusted." De Forest further states: "For seven weeks previous to July 4th I was in sole charge of the training and preparing of Jack Dempsey for his fight with Jess Willard. During the training period Dempsey was regularly given by me Nuxated Iron and I believe it contributed to his success."

The importance that the Champion himself places upon the part Nuxated Iron played in winning for him the highest laurels known in the athletic world is clearly shown in the following statement made by Jack Dempsey at his training quarters in Toledo, the scene of the big ing the use of Nuxated Iron during my training for the big fight with Jess Willard, I soon noticed that I could stand harder strains with less fatigue than before, and I realized that I had found a tonic and blood builder which played an important part in getting me into fine condition. Formerly I had relied solely upon strength-building foods and outdoor exercise to keep my blood rich in red corpuscles, but with the World's Championship at stake, I felt that I should leave nothing undone that might help me to win. I was advised of the great value of Nuxated Iron for building up the blood, strengthening the nerves and aiding in keeping the body fit, and I am firmly convinced that its use has helped to wonderfully increase my stamina and endurance. Nuxated Iron put added power behind my punch and helped me to accomplish what I did at Toledo. From the results in my own case where the possession of super endurance is necessary, I feel that I am in a position to strongly recommend Nuxated Iron to every man and woman who wants to build greater strength, energy and power."

In connection with the foregoing statement made by Jack Dempsey, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "The methods of training adopted by Willard and Dempsey may have had a great deal to do with the outcome of this fight. According to reports Dempsey placed himself unreservedly in the hands of expert trainers and competent physicians and heeded their advice. In my opinion whoever made the suggestion that Nuxated Iron should play a part in getting Dempsey into condition is to be commended for his foresight. No man without plenty of rich, red blood filled with health-giving and strength-building iron could withstand the terrific onslaughts of a giant like Willard. It should occur to every thinking person that if a man as physic-advisable to take Nuxated Iron, how much more important it is for the average man or woman to see that there is no lack of iron in the blood. There is today a surprising number of persons who suffer from iron deficiency. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron.

Dr. John Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of the City of New York says: "Strong, healthy men and women with plenty of iron in their blood are the ones who go through life with a smile, self-reliant and fearless and their dynamic power and energy make them virtually masters of their own destinies. It is surprising how many people who do not get along in life are in reality suffering from iron deficiency and do not know it. To supply this lack of Manager Jack Kearns who closely watched from day to day the progress of Dempsey's training, in which Nuxated Iron played a part, and who predicted Dempsey's victory over Willard.

Jimmy DeForest, the Champion's Chief Trainer, who gave Nuxated Iron to Dempsey and tells why he believes it contributed to his success.

iron and help build stronger, healthier men and women better able physically to meet the problems of everyday life, I believe that physicians should, at every opportunity, prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for in my experience it is one of the best tonic and red blood builders known to medical science."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which has been used by Jack Dempsey and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Weinert Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Store, Enderle Drug Co. and Merker's 3 Stores, East St. Louis and all other druggists.—ADV.

MILLIONS Suffer from Acid-Stomach

Millions of people suffer year after year from ailments affecting practically every part of the body, never dreaming that their ill health can be traced directly to acid-stomach. Here is the reason: poor digestion means poor nourishment of the different organs and tissues of the body. The blood is impoverished—becomes weak, thin, sluggish. Ailments of many kinds spring from such conditions. Biliousness, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, general weakness, loss of power and energy, headache, insomnia, nervousness, mental depression—even more serious ailments such as catarrh and cancer of the stomach, intestinal ulcers, cirrhosis of the liver, heart trouble—all of these can often be traced directly to acid-stomach.

Keep a sharp lookout for the first symptoms of acid-stomach—indigestion, heartburn, belching, food repeating, that awful painful bloat after eating, and sour, gassy stomach. EATONIC, the wonderful modern remedy for acid-stomach, is guaranteed to bring quick relief from these stomach miseries. Thousands say they never dreamed that anything could bring such speedy relief—and make them feel so much better in every way. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise. Make your life worth living—no aches or pains—no blues or melancholy—no more of that tired, listless feeling. Be well and strong. Get back your physical and mental punch; your health and strength. You will always be weak and ailing as long as you have acid-stomach. So get rid of it now. Take EATONIC Tablets—they taste good—you eat them like a bit of candy. To Discard Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Blotches

The use of creams containing animal grease sometimes causes hair to grow. You run no risk of acquiring superfluous hair when you use ordinary mercolized wax. There is nothing better for a discolored skin, as the wax actually absorbs the offensive cuticle—gradually, gently, so there is no detention indoors and no inconvenience. The discarded complexion naturally is replaced by a clear, smooth, healthy one—full of life and expression. It's the sensible way to get rid of a freckled, tanned, over-red, blotchy or pimpled skin. Just procure an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist's and apply nightly like cold cream, erasing in the morning with soap and water. It takes a week or so to complete the transformation.—ADV.

4000 BANKERS TO BE AT CONVENTION HERE

Men at Sessions Beginning Sept. 29 Will Represent Billions of Dollars and 20,000 Firms.

More than 4000 financiers representing many billions of dollars and 20,000 banks will gather in St. Louis the week of Sept. 29 to participate in the forty-fifth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association.

The St. Louis Clearing House Association and the associated banks of the city are arranging to care for the welfare of the delegates and their families. Special trains from New York and Chicago will bring members from Eastern states and special cars are being chartered to bring delegates from nearly every state in the Union.

St. Louis has been the scene of two previous conventions of the association, in 1896 and in 1906. Unusual interest is attached to this year's meeting by St. Louis bankers and business men in connection with the annual election of officers. Richard S. Hawes, first vice president of the First National Bank, will be automatically elevated from the position of first vice president to president of the association in accordance with the prevailing custom of the association of promoting ranking officers. Robert F. Maddox of Atlanta, Ga., is the present president.

The convention this year will occupy four days, and an elaborate entertainment program has been so arranged as not to interfere with the business sessions.

There will be a Circus Royal, Hippodrome and Dansant at the Coliseum Tuesday night, Sept. 30, while the details have not been worked out, it is said that nothing on so large a scale has ever been produced by any theatrical organization in the United States. Special street cars will leave the Planters, Statler and Jefferson Hotels at 7:30 o'clock for the Coliseum on the evening of the performance.

There will be a smoker at the Hotel Statler Monday night, Sept. 29, and an informal dance on Wednesday night at the Planters Hotel. Card parties also will be arranged.

The Statler, Planters and Jefferson have been designated as "headquarters hotels". The general convention sessions will be held in the Shubert-Jefferson-Theater.

Prominent financiers and statesmen have been invited to deliver addresses, and much significance is attached to the conference, it being the first big financial conclave of American bankers since the signing of the peace treaty. St. Lous has come to be regarded as the center of finance in the western section of the country, and its popularity as a convention city is expected to increase the attendance at this year's gathering.

SEVERAL HOMES ROBBED WHILE WILSON SPOKE FRIDAY NIGHT

Woman Who Announced Purpose to Hear President Loses Parlor and Bedroom Furniture.

Thieves took advantage of the fact that many policemen were detailed to duty at the Coliseum during President Wilson's speech Friday night, and robbed several houses. One robbery, at least, was carefully planned.

Mrs. Elsie Stephenson of 1103½ North Vandeventer avenue, was called on the telephone Friday morning by a man who said he wanted to talk to her on business Friday night. She replied that she was going to hear the President. When she returned from the meeting she found her parlor and bedroom furniture gone, as well as nearly all the clothing in the house.

Several persons also reported losing things in the crush at the coliseum. Those who made their losses known were Miss Willie Fondrem, 5561 Chamberlain avenue, brooch worth $35, from a shirt waist; Mrs. H. C. Johnston, Booneville, Mo., fox fur, $75; Mrs. Edgar Hendricks, Madison, Ill., purse containing $39; H. H. Walton, 4265 Washington boulevard, chain and fob, $5; Robert Wilson, Hillsboro, Mo., sweater, and I. B. Horrell, 2629 Oak View terrace, a coat, $12.

SURVEY VALUES CITY'S REALTY AT $89,000,000

Is Increase of $31,000,000 Over Former Estimate — Nolte's Report Shows Increase in Cost of Government.

ALL DEPARTMENTS ASKED TO ECONOMIZE

Limit of Revenue From Taxes for Municipal Purposes Reached — Bonded Indebtedness Now Is $19,884,000.

The preamble of Comptroller Nolte's annual report for the fiscal year ending April 7, 1919, made public yesterday points out that the city has reached the limit of its revenue from taxes for municipal purposes, and that the continued upward cost of labor, supplies and materials makes it doubtful if the maximum rate of $2.35 on each $100 of the assessed valuation of property will produce revenue suficient for the increased cost of city government, augmented by the introduction of new activities and constantly broadening scope of municipal functions necessary to meet the demands of a large scope of municipal functions necessary to meet the demands of a large element of the city's population.

The Comptroller asks the heads of city departments to conduct their branches of the Government efficiently and economically, so as to reach the close of the present fiscal year with a moderate increase in revenue expended and an overdraft not exceeding the estimate.

A survey just completed by Assessor Wollbrinck, to determine the value of real estate and improvements owned by the city, according to the report, fixes the value at slightly more than $89,000,000.

Increase of $31,000,000.

This is an increase of $31,000,000 over the value heretofore carried as the actual worth of all such holdings, and is a good showing of the city's financial standing. It will be of benefit in the proposed $22,000,000 bond issue, the report states. The previous survey was made 12 years ago. The total bonded indebtedness of the city now is $19,884,000.

Under the heading of disbursements and appropriation the report shows that the total expenditures for the year 1918-1919 were $17,665,978.47, of which $8,742,801.29, or 49.49 per cent, went for salaries and wages.

New public work cost $1,588,845.07, or 8.95 per cent of the total; interest and expenses connected with bonded indebtedness and sinking fund $2,603,342.63; materials and supplies, $3,816,551.42, and personal services, such as jury fees and team hire, $922,438.06.

Balance of $1,321,259.

The unincumbered balance on hand at the conclusion of the year's business was $1,321,259.99, divided as follows: Surplus in the municipal revenue found $109,834.35; waterworks revenue fund, $796,976.54, and left over in the interest and public debt fund, $414,449.10.

The report shows that by investing $1,500,000 in Liberty Bonds and by the redemption of $1,200,000 outstanding city bonds, the municipal Government saved $58,000 in interest.

A comparative itemized list of the expenditures of each city department shows that $12,139,776.78 was spent in 1918-1919 as against $11,326,837.59 in 1917-1918. The Comptroller accounts for the increase of approximately $800,000 in last year's expenditures as due to the increased wages of labor union help, the increase in police salaries and the increased cost of supplies and materials.

Revenue from dramshop licenses for the year ending last April was $752,524.96, or 4.06 per cent of the entire revenue derived by the city, as compared with $947,921.20 in 1917-1918. The decrease is attributed to the operation of fewer saloons since war-time prohibition went into effect.

How Revenue Is Divided.

The revenue from the city's tax rate is divided as follows: Amount deducted from the $2.35 on each $100 for State purposes, 18 cents; for school purposes, 68 cents, and for city expenses, $1.54. The city expenses are divided as follows: Municipal purposes, $1.27; interest on bonded debt existing prior to April 7, 1890, 2 cents; interest and sinking fund for World's Fair bonds, 5 cents; interest and sinking funds for public improvement bonds, 12 cents; Public Library, 4 cents; Art Museum, 2 cents, and Zoo, 2 cents.

Each $1,000,000 of assessed valuation of property for the current year produced for State purposes $1620, public schools, $5670; municipal purposes, $11,230; interest on bonds prior to 1890, $180; interest on World's Fair bonds, $450; public improvement bonds, $1080; library, $360; museum, $180, and zoo, $180.

The total assessed valuation of property for 1918-1919 was $720,000,000, as compared with $693,557,140 last year. Of this year's assessment real estate and improved property was valued at $583,659,010, personal property at $101,340,990, and property of railroads, bridges, telegraph and telephone lines, $35,000,000. The assessment of 1917-1918 placed the valuation on real estate and improved property at $554,186,710, personal property, $104,770,430 and railroads, bridges and telegraph and telephone lines, $35,000,000.

WRITERS HAVE TOO MUCH MONEY

The St. Louis Association of Journalists will hold its regular monthly meeting at noon today in the chambers of the Board of Public Service, room 208, at the city hall.

One of the proposals to be made will be for the reduction of the monthly dues from $1 to 25 cents. The organization has found that at the former rate its collections far exceed its expenses, resulting in too plethoric a treasury.

Mr. Lane is so proud of his discovery and has so much confidence in its ability to cure that he will send a $1.25 bottle postpaid to anyone who will write for it. His offer is that he is to be paid for it if it cures. The one taking it is to be the judge and report its effect within 10 days after using the remedy. COCOANUT OIL MAKES A SPLENDID SHAMPOO

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—ADV.

INQUIRY INTO COAL PRICES TO START IN ST. LOUIS TUESDAY

Investigation of Alleged Violation of Missouri Anti-Trust Laws by Dealers Was Halted in 1917.

PRICES CONTROLLED, M'ALLISTER SAYS

Attorney-General Declares There Is Much Evidence of Agreement Between Producers and Wholesalers.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 6.—The investigation for the Missouri Supreme Court of alleged violation of the anti-trust laws of Missouri and Illinois coal companies, which was interrupted by the creation of the National Fuel Administration in 1917, will be resumed Tuesday morning at the Planter's Hotel in St. Louis.

McAllister said today that since the Fuel Administration was dissolved, he had been waiting to see how the coal dealers would conduct their business, but says there is every indication that they are working in a hard and fast agreement to regulate prices and production.

One of the evidences he cites is the fact that local coal dealers, even in outlying sections have been notified by various wholesalers and producers that there will be a uniform increase in the price of coal several months in advance, and the predictions never fail to materialize.

Lilly Heard Testimony.

Originally the investigaion was ordered on the application of Attorney-General McAllister. The Supreme Court appointed Maj. J. Lilly of Moberly as Special Commissioner to hear the testimony.

Following the hearings in St. Louis in the summer of 1917, McAllister announced that he had obtained ample evidence upon which to sustain the charge of violation of the anti-trust laws, but before the invesigation was completed, the whole matter was laid on the shelf by the appointment by the President of a Fuel Administrator who had absolute charge of all price fixing and production.

At the hearings in St. Louis in 1917, McAllister developed the fact that nearly all coal producers in certain districts of Illinois are members of an organization which issues daily a master sheet, showing the production, sales and prices for the day.

Under a mutual understanding that the closing price for the day before shall be the opening price for the ensuing day, this master sheet automatically shows each producer what the price shall be.

200 to 300 Per Cent Profit.

The testimony developed that at the price of coal then, which since has been increased, the producers were making a profit of from 200 to 300 per cent on every ton of coal sold.

F. W. Kleine, president of the St. Clair Coal Co., testified, it will be remembered, that coal which was being sold at the mines for $2.75 and $3.50 per ton cost $1.35 to produce, and that a reasonable profit would be of 50 to 75 cents per ton.

William Scott, president of the Missouri and Illinois Coal Co., admitted, on the witness stand, that the coal producers were getting all they could, but said everybody else was doing the same thing.

Thomas T. Brewster, general manager of the Mt. Olive and Staunton Coal Co., testifying as to the price of fuel agreed upon by the Fuel Advisory Committee, said, "there is no bug under the chip in this bureau.

"There never was any injunction as to prices or as to restriction of production. There was only one injunction: 'Go do as you damn please, but tell the truth about it.'"

Enormous Profits.

Joseph Lumaghi, president of the Lumaghi Brothers' Coal Co., admitted the coal dealers were making an enormous profit, but sought to justify it by saying they wanted to make enough to make up for the losses of many poor years, and also to cover the losses of four or five probably poor years in the future.

William K. Kavanaugh, president of the Southern Coal, Coke and Mining Co., testified that he considered $1,500,000 a year a fair profit on an investment of $1,000,000 in his company or an annual profit of 150 per cent.

How to Instantly Have a Beautiful White Skin

A Free Prescription Does This for You. You Can Prepare It at Your Home.

New York: It is my own discovery and it takes just one application to get such marvelous results, says Mae Edna Wilder, when her friends ask her about her wonderful white skin and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. You can do the same thing if you follow my advice, she says. I feel it is my duty to tell every girl or woman what this remarkable prescription did for me. Just think of it. All this change in a single application. I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. Here is the identical prescription that whitened my skin and removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make. The prescription which you can prepare at your own home is as follows: Go to any grocery and get 10 cents worth of ordinary oatmeal, and from any drug store a bottle of derwillo. Prepare the oatmeal as directed in every package of derwillo and apply night and morning. The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin appear white, transparent, smooth and velvety. I especially recommend it for freckles, tan, sun spots, coarse pores, dark, sallow, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles, and in fact, every blemish the face, neck, hands and arms are heir to. If your neck is dark one application of this Derwillo-Oatmeal combination will make it look as white as a lily. It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. No matter how rough and ungainly the hands and arms, or what abuses they have had through hard work and exposure to the sun and wind, this prescription will work a wonderful transformation in 12 hours at the most. Thousands who have used it have had the same results as I have had.

NOTE—To get the best effect be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of Derwillo. You have only to get derwillo and oatmeal. You need nothing else and it is so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive that any girl or woman can afford it. Druggists and department stores guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after first application or they will refund the money. It is sold in this city at all toilet counters under a money-refund guarantee by all department stores and druggists, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Drug Co.—ADV.

How do you read a newspaper?

Off at one side?
Ridiculous, isn't it!

Of course you don't—and yet look into our most modern and up-to-date business offices for a moment and you'll see stenographers reading notes from the side just because, —? habit!

Habit has ruined the health of thousands and at the same time stunted the work that they do.

Girls don't want to read notes at the side.

Men don't want them to become listless and inefficient.

Directly in front of YOU is the natural way to read.

Let's do the natural thing in the office as elsewhere und use the Line-a-Time System of Transcribing a thought at a time from notes to letter sheet.

The Line-a-Time position for reading is directly back of the typewriter in front of the operator.

Back, shoulders, eyes, energy, efficiency all helped. Why shouldn't Line-a-Time operators be preferred?

Are they? ASK

FIRE IN FOOD PRODUCTS PLANT THREATENS $12,000,000 OF FURS

Bayle Company Suffers Loss Estimated at $35,000 From Early Morning Blaze.

Fire at 12:15 a. m. yesterday in the Bayle Food Products Co., 111-13 South Second street, a four-story building, caused damage estimated at $35,000, and for a time threatened the Funsten Bros. & Co. fur exchange, next door, where about $12,000,000 worth of furs, to be sold at auction this month, are stored.

A general alarm brought sufficient apparatus to extinguish the fire without damage to adjoining property. Col. Philip B. Fouke of the Police Board, who is president of the Funsten Co., was called and directed the firemen in removing and covering furs to protect them from damage.

Another fire, at 2 a. m. in the Superior Manufacturing & Supply Co., 506 North Third street, was put out after damage to building and contents estimated at $5000.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT WILSON'S KANSAS CITY SPEECH

WILSON SAYS CAUSE IS GREATER THAN SENATE AND HE'LL GIVE HIS LIFE TO IT

Like His "Troublesome" Scotch Ancestors, He Is a Covenanter—Assails "Selfish" Men Who Look From "Jaundiced" Eyes.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 6.—The text of President Wilson's speech here today follows:

"I came back from Paris bringing one of the greatest documents of human history. One of the things that made it great was that it was penetrated throughout with the principles to which America has devoted her life. Let me hasten to say that one of the most delightful circumstances of the work on the other side of the water was that I discovered that what we called American principles had penetrated to the heart and to the understanding, not only of the great peoples of Europe, but to the hearts and understandings of the great men who were representing the peoples of Europe.

"I think that I can say that one of the things that America has had most at heart throughout her existence has been that there should be substituted for the brutal processes of war the friendly processes of consultation and arbitration, and that is done in the covenant of the League of Nations. I am very anxious that my fellow citizens should realize that that is the chief topic of the covenant of the League of Nations, the greater part of its provisions. The whole intent and purpose of the document are expressed in provisions by which all the member states agree that they will never go to war without first having done one or other of two things, either submitted the matter in controversy to arbitration, in which case they agree to abide by the verdict, or submitting it to discussion in the council of the League of Nations, and for that purpose they consent to allow six months for the discussion, and whether they like the opinion expressed or not, that they will not go to war for three months after that opinion has been expressed, so that you have, whether you get arbitration or not, nine months' discussion, and I want to remind you that that is the central principle of some 30 treaties entered into between the United States of America and some 30 other sovereign nations, all of which are confirmed by the Senate of the United States.

Why Germany Stayed Out.

"We have such an agreement with France, we have such an agreement with Great Britain, we have such an agreement with practically every great nation except Germany which refused to enter into such an arrangement because, my fellow citizens, Germany knew that she intended some time that which didn't bear discussion and that if she had submitted the purpose which led to this war so much as one month discussion she would not have dared to go into the enterprise against mankind which she finally did go into (applause), and therefore I say that this principle of discussion is the principle already adopted by America. And what is the compulsion to do this? The compulsion is this, that if any member state violates that promise to submit either to arbitration or discussion, it is thereby ipso facto deemed to have committed an act of war against all the rest. Then you will ask, do we at once take up arms and fight them? No. We do something very much more terrible than that. We absolutely boycott them.

"Let any merchant put up to himself, that if he enters into a covenant and then breaks it and the people all around absolutely desert his establishment and will have nothing to do with him, ask him after that if it will be necessary to send the police The most terrible thing that can happen to any individual and the most conclusive thing that can happen to a nation is to be read out of decent society. (applause.)

"There was another thing that we needed to accomplish that is accomplished in this document. We wanted disarmament and this document provides in the only possible way for disarmament by common agreement. Observe, my fellow citizens, that just now every great fighting nation in the world is a member of this partnership except Germany and inasmuch as Germany has accepted a limitation of her army to 100,000 men, I don't think for the time being she may be regarded as a great fighting nation.

"And you know, my fellow citizens, that armaments mean great standing armies, and great stores of war material. They do not mean burdensome taxation merely, they do not mean merely compulsory military service, which saps the economic strength of the nation, but they mean the building up of a military class. Again and again, my fellow citizens, in the conference at Paris, we were face to face with this situation; that in dealing with a particular civil government we found that they would not dare to promise what their general staff was not willing that they should promise; and that they were dominated by the military machine which they had created, nominally for their own defense, but really—whether they willed it or not—for the provocation of war. And so, as long as you have a military class, it does not make any difference what your form of government is. If you are determined to be armed to the teeth, you must obey the orders and directions of the only men who can control the great machinery of war. It is not merely the cost of it (armament), although that is overwhelming, but it is the spirit of it, and America has never had, and I hope in the providence of God, never will have that spirit. (Great applause.)

German People Emancipated.

"And there is no other way to dispense with great armaments except by the common agreement of the fighting nations of the world. And here is the agreement. They promise disarmament, and promise to agree upon a plan. But there was something else we wanted, that is accomplished by this treaty. We wanted to destroy autocratic authority everywhere in the world. We wanted to see to it that there was no place in the world where a small group of men could use their fellow citizens as pawns in a game; that there was no place in the world where a small group of men, without consulting their fellow citizens, could send their fellow citizens to the battle field, and to deal in accomplishing something dynastic, some political plan that had been conceived in private, some object that had been prepared for by universal, world-wide intrigue. That is what we wanted to accomplish. The most startling thing that developed itself at the opening of our participation in this war was not the military preparation of Germany—we were familiar with that, though we had been dreaming that she would not use it—but her political preparation; to find that every community in the civilized world was penetrated by her intrigues. The German people did not know that, but it was known in Wilhelmstrasse, where the Central offices of the German Government were, and Wilhelmstrasse was the master of the German people; and this war, my fellow citizens, has amencipated the German people as well as the rest of the world.

"We don't want to see anything like that done again, because we know that democracy will only have to destroy that form of Government; and if we don't destroy it now, the job is still to be done, and by a combination of all the great fighting peoples of the world to see to it that the aggressive purposes of such Government cannot be realized, you make it no longer worth while for little groups of men to contrive the downfall of civilization in private conference.

"My fellow citizens, it does not make any difference what kind of a minority governs you, if it is a minority. And the thing we must see to is that no minority anywhere masters the majority. That is at the heart, my fellow citizens, of the tragical things that are happening in that great country which we long to help and can find no way that is effective to help—I mean the great realm of Russia. The men who are now measurably in control of the affairs of Russia represent nobody but themselves. They have again and again been challenged to call a constitutional convention. They have again and again been challenged to prove that they had some kind of a mandate even from a single class of their fellow citizens. And they dared not attempt it; they have no mandate from anybody. There are only 34 of them, I am told, and there were more than 34

Notice thereof shall be sent to all other Members of the League.

Any fully self-governing State, Dominion or Colony not named in the Annex may become a member of the League if its admission is agreed to by two-thirds of the Assembly, provided that it shall give effective guarantees of its sincere intention to observe its international obligations, and shall accept such regulations as may be prescribed by the League in regard to its military, naval and air forces and armaments.

Any member of the League may, after two years' notice of its intention so to do, withdraw from the League, provided that all its international obligations and all its obligations under this Covenant shall have been fulfilled at the time of its withdrawal.

ARTICLE 2.

The action of the League under this Covenant shall be effective through the instrumentality of an Assembly and of a Council, with a permanent Secretariat.

ARTICLE 3.

The Assemby shall consist of Representatives of the Members of the League.

The Assembly shall meet at stated intervals from time to time as occasion may require at the Seat of the League or at such other place as may be decided upon.

The Assembly may deal at its meetings with any matter wthin the sphere of action of the League or affecting the peace of the world.

At meetings of the Assembly each Member of the League shall have one vote, and may have not more than three Representatives.

ARTICLE 4.

The Council shall consist of Representatives of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers, together with Representatives of four other Members of the League. These four Members of the League shall be selected by the Assembly from time to time in its discretion. Until the appointment of the Representatives of the four Members of the League first selected by the Assembly, Representatives of Belgium, Brazil, Spain and Greece shall be members of the Council.

With the approval of the majority of the Assembly, the Council may name additional Members of the League whose Representatives shall always be members of the Council; the Council with like approval may increase the number of Members of the League to be selected by the Assembly for representation on the Council.

The Council shall meet from time to time as occasion may require, and at least once a year, at the Seat of the League, or at such other place as may be decided upon.

The Council may deal at its meetings with any matter within the sphere of action of the League or affecting the peace of the world.

Any member of the League represented on the Council shall be invited to send a Representative to sit as a member at any meeting of the Council during the consideration of matters specially affecting the interests of that member of the League.

At meetings of the Council, each Member of the League represented on the Council shall have one vote, and may have not more than one Representative.

ARTICLE 5.

Except where otherwise expressly provided in this Covenant or by the terms of the present Treaty, decisions at any meeting of the Assembly or of the Council shall require the agreement of all the Members of the League represented at the meeting.

All matters of procedure at meetings of the Assembly or of the Council, including the appointment of Committees to investigate particular matters, shall be regulated by the Assembly or by the Council and may be decided by a majority of the Members of the League represented at the meeting.

The first meeting of the Assembly and the first meeting of the Council shall be summoned by the President of the United States of America.

ARTICLE 6.

The permanent Secretariat shall be established at the Seat of the League. The Secretariat shall comprise a Secretary General and such secretaries and staff as may be required.

The first Secretary General shall be the person named in the Annex; thereafter the Secretary General shall be appointed by the Council with the approval of the majority of the Assembly.

The secretaries and staff of the Secretariat shall be appointed by the Secretary General with the approval of the Council.

The Secretary General shall act in that capacity at all meetings of the Assembly and of the Council.

The expenses of the Secretariat shall be borne by the Members of the League in accordance with the apportionment of the expenses of the International Bureau of the Universal Postal Union.

ARTICLE 7

The seat of the League is established at Geneva.

The Council may at any time decide that the Seat of the League shall be established elsewhere.

All positions under or in connection with the League, including the Secretariat, shall be open equally to men and women.

Representatives of the Members of the League and officials of the League when engaged on the business of the League shall enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunities.

The buildings and other property occupied by the League or its officials or by Representatives attending its meetings shall be inviolable.

ARTICLE 8.

The Members of the League recognize that the maintenance of peace requires the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety and the enforcement by common action of international obligations.

The Council, taking account of the geographical situation and circumstances of each State, shall formulate plans for such reduction for the consideration and action of the several Governments.

Such plans shall be subject to reconsideration and revision at least every ten years.

After these plans shall have been adopted by the several Governments, the limits of armaments therein fixed shall not be exceeded without the concurrence of the Council.

The Members of the League agree that the manufacture by private enterprise of munitions and implements of war is open to grave objections. The Council shall advise how the evil effects attendant upon such manufacture can be prevented, due regard being had to the necessities of those Members of the League which are not able to manufacture the munitions and implements of war necessary for their safety.

The members of the League undertake to interchange full and frank information as to the scale of their armaments, their military, naval and air programmes and the condition of such of their industries as are adaptable to war-like purposes.

ARTICLE 9.

A permanent Commission shall be constituted to advise the Council on the execution of the provision of Articles 1 and 8 and on military, naval and air questions generally.

ARTICLE 10.

The Members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all Members of the League. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled.

ARTICLE 11.

Any war or threat of war, whether immediately affecting any of the Members of the League or not, is hereby declared a matter of concern to the whole League, and the League shall take any action that may be deemed wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations. In case any such emergency should arise the Secretary General shall on the request of any Member of the League forthwith summon a meeting of the Council.

It is also declared to be the friendly right of each Member of the League to bring to the attention of the Assembly or of the Council any circumstance whatever affecting international relations which threatens to disturb international peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends.

ARTICLE 12.

The Members of the League agree that if there should arise between them any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, they will submit the matter either to arbitration or to inquiry by the Council and they agree in no case to resort to war until three months after the award by the arbtrators or the report by the Council.

In any case under this Article the award of the arbitrators shall be made within a reasonable time, and the report of the Council shall be made within six months after the submission of the dispute.

ARTICLE 13.

The Members of the League agree that whenever any dispute shall arise between them which they recognize to be suitable for submission to arbitration and which cannot be satisfactorily settled by diplomacy, they will submit the whole subject-matter to arbitration.

Disputes as to the interpretation of a treaty as to any question of international law, as to the existence of any fact which if established would constitute a breach of any international obligation, or as to the extent and nature of the reparation to be made for any such breach, are declared to be among those which are generally suitable for submission to arbitration.

For the consideration of any such dispute the court of arbitration to which the case is referred shall be the Court agreed on by the parties to the dispute or stipulated in any convention existing between them.

The Members of the League agree that they will carry out in full good faith any award that may be rendered, and that they will not resort to war against a Member of the League which complies therewith. In the event of any faiure to carry out such an award, the Council shall propose what steps should be taken to give effect thereto.

ARTICLE 14.

The Council shall formulate and submit to the Members of the League for adoption plans for the establishment of a Permanent Court of international Justice. The Court shall be competent to hear and determine any dispute of an international character which the parties thereto submit to it. The Court may also give an advisory opinion upon any dispute or question referred to it by the Council or by the Assembly.

ARTICLE 15.

If there should arise between Members of the League any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, which is not submitted to arbitration in accordance with Article 13, the Members of the League agree that they will submit the matter to the Council. Any party to the dispute may effect such submission by giving notice of the existence of the dispute to the Secretary General, who will make all necessary arrangements for a full investigation and consideration thereof.

For this purpose the parties to the dispute will communicate to the Secretary General, as promptly as possible, statements of their case with all the relevant facts and papers, and the Council may forthwith direct the publication thereof.

The Council shall endeavor to effect a settlement of the dispute, and if such efforts are successful, a statement shall be made public giving such facts and explanations regarding the dispute and the terms of settlement thereof as the Council may deem appropriate.

If the dispute is not thus settled, the Council either unanimously or by a majority vote shall make and publish a report containing a statement of the facts of the dispute and the recommendations which are deemed just and proper in regard thereto.

Any member of the League represented on the Council may make public a statement of the facts of the dispute and of the conclusions regarding the same.

If a report by the Council is unanimously agreed to by the members thereof other than the Representatives of one or more of the parties to the dispute, the Members of the League agree that they will not go to war with any party to the dispute which complies with the recommendations of the report.

If the Council fails to reach a report which is unanimously agreed to by the members thereof, other than the Representatives of one or more of the parties to the dispute, the Members of the League reserve to themselves the right to take such action as they shall consider necessary for the maintenance of right and justice.

If the dispute between the parties is claimed by one of them, and is found by the Council, to arise out of a matter which by international law is soley within the domestic jurisdiction of that party, the Council shall so report, and shall make no recommendation as to its settlement.

The Council may in any case under this Article refer the dispute to the Assembly. The dispute shall be so referred at the request of either party to the dispute, provided that such request be made within fourteen days after the submission of the dispute to the Council.

In any case referred to the Assembly, all the provisions of this Article and of Article 12 relating to the action and powers of the Council shall apply to the action and powers of the Assembly, provided that a report made by the Assembly, if concurred in by the Representatives of those Members of the League represented on the Council and of a majority of the other Members of the League exclusive in each case of the Representatives of the parties to the dispute, shall have the same force as a report by the Council concurred in by all members thereof other than the Representatives of one or more of the parties to the dispute.

ARTICLE 16.

Should any Member of the League resort to war in disregard of its covenant under Article 12, 13 or15,it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other Members of theLeague, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals and the nationals of the covenant-breaking State, and the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between the nationals of the covenant-breaking State and the nationals of any other State, whether a Member of the League or not.

It shall be the duty of the Council in such cases to recommend to the several Governments concerned what effective military, naval or air force the Members of the League shall severally contribute to the armed forces to be used to protect the covenants of the League.

The Members of the League agree, further, that they will mutually support one another in the financial and economic measures which are taken under this Article, in order to minimize the loss and inconvenience resulting from the above measures, and that they will mutually support one another in resisting any special measures aimed at one of their number by the covenant-breaking State, and that they will take the necessary steps to afford passage through their territory to the forces of any Members of the League which are co-operating to protect the covenants of the League.

Any Member of the League which has violated any covenant of the League may be declared to be no longer a Member of the League by a vote of the Council concurred in by the Representatives of all the other Members of the League representing thereon.

ARTICLE 17.

In the event of a dispute between a Member of the League and a State which is not a Member of the League, or between States not Members of the League, the State or States not Members of the League shall be invited to accept the obligations of membership in the League for the purposes of such disputes, upon such conditions as the Council may deem just. If such invitation is accepted, the provisions of Articles 12 to 16 inclusive shall be applied with such modifications as may be deemed necessary by the Council.

Upon such invitation being given the Council shall immediately institute an inquiry into the circumstances of the disputes and recommend such action as may seem best and most effectual in the circumstances.

If a State so invited shall refuse to accept the obligations of membership in the League for the purpose of such dispute, and shall resort to war against a Member of the League, the provisions of Article 16 shall be applicable as against the State taking such action.

If both parties to the dispute when so invited refuse to accept the obligations of a membership in the League for the purpose of such dispute, the Council may take such measures and make such recommendations as will prevent hostilities and will result in the settlement of the dispute.

ARTICLE 18.

Every treaty or international engagement entered into hereafter by any Member of the League shall be forthwith registered with the Secretariat and shall as soon as possible be published by it. No such treaty or international engagement shall be binding until so registered.

ARTICLE 19.

The Assembly may from time to time advise the reconsideration by Members of the League of treaties which have become inapplicable and the consideration of international conditions whose continuance might endanger the peace of the world.

ARTICLE 20.

The Members of the League severally agree that this Covenant is accepted as abrogating all obligations or understandings inter se which are inconsistent with the terms thereof, and solemnly undertake that they will not hereafter enter into any engagements inconsistent with the terms of this Covenant, it shall be the duty of such Member to take immediate steps to procure its release from such obligations.

ARTICLE 21.

Nothing in this Covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of international engagements, such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine, for securing the maintenance of peace.

ARTICLE 22.

To those colonies and territories which as a consequence of the late war have ceased to be under the sovereignty of the States which formerly governed them and which are inhabited by peoples not yet able to stand by themselves under the strenuous conditions of the modern world, there should be applied the principle that the well-being and development of such peoples form a sacred trust of civilization and that securities for the performance of this trust should be embodied in this Covenant.

The best method of giving practical effect to this principle is that the tutelage of such peoples should be entrusted to advanced nations who by reason of their resources, their experience or their geographical position can best undertake this responsibility, and who are willing to accept it, and that this tutelage should be exercised by them as Mandatories on behalf of the League.

The character of the mandate must differ according to the stage of the development of the people, the geographical situation of the territory, its economic conditions and other circumstances.

Certain communities formerly belonging to the Turkish Empire reached a stage of development where their existence as independent nations can be provisionally recognized subject to the rendering of administrative advice and assistance by a Mandatory until such time as they are able to stand alone. The wishes of these communities must be a principal consideration in the selection of the Mandatory.

Other peoples, especially those of Central Africa, are at such a stage that the Mandatory must be responsible for the administration of the territory under conditions which will guarantee freedom of conscience and religion, subject only to the maintenance of public order and morals, the prohibition of abuses such as the slave trade, the arms traffic and the liquor traffic, and the prevention of the establishment of fortifications or military and naval bases and of military training of the natives for other than police purposes and the defense of territory, and will also secure equal opportunities for the trade and commerce of other Members of the League.

There are territories, such as South-West Africa and certain of the South Pacific Islands, which, owing to the sparseness of their populations, or their small size, or their remoteness from the centers of civilization, or their geographical contiguity to the territory of the Mandatory, and other circumstances, can be best administered under the laws of the Mandatory as integral portions of its territory of the indigenous population.

In every case of mandate, the Mandatory shall render to the Council an annual report in reference to the territory committed to its charge.

The degree of authority, control or administration to be exercised by the Mandatory shall, if not previously agreed upon by the Members of the League, be explicitly defined in each case by the Council.

A permanent Commission shall be constituted to receive and examine the annual reports of the Mandatories and to advise the Council on all matters relating to the observance of the mandates.

ARTICLE 23.

Subject to and in accordance with the provisions of international conventions existing or hereafter to be agreed upon, the Members of the League:

(a) will endeavor to secure and maintain fair and humane conditions of labor for men, women, and children, both in their own countries and in all countries to which their commercial and industrial relations extend, and for that purpose will establish and maintain the necessary international organizations;

(b) undertake to secure just treatment of the native inhabitants of territories under their control;

(c) will entrust the League with the general supervision over the execution of agreements with regard to the traffic in women and children, and the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs;

(d) will entrust the League with the general supervision of the trade in arms and ammunition with the countries in which the control of this traffic is necessary in the common interests;

(e) will make provision to secure and maintain freedom of communications and of transit and equitable treatment for the commerce of all Members of the League. In this connection, the special necessities of the regions devastated during the war of 1914—1918 shall be borne in mind;

(f) will endeavor to take steps in matters of international concern for the prevention and control of disease.

ARTICLE 24.

There shall be placed under the direction of the League all international bureaux already established by general treaties if the parties to such treates consent. All such international bureaux and all commissions for the regulation of matters of international interest hereafter constituted shall be placed under the directon of the League.

In all matters of international interest which are regulated by general conventions but which are not placed under the control of international bureaux or commissions, the Secretariat of the League shall, subject to the consent of the Council and if desired by the parties, collect and distribute all relevant information and shall render any other assistance which may be necessary or desirable.

The Council may include as part of the expenses of the Secretariat the expenses of any bureaux or commission which is placed under the direction of the League.

ARTICLE 25.

The members of the League agree to encourage and promote the establishment and co-operation of duly authorized voluntary national Red Cross organizations having as purposes the improvement of health, the prevention of disease and the mitigations of suffering throughout the world.

ARTICLE 26.

Amendments to this Covenant will take effect when ratified by the members of the League whose Representatives compose the Council and by a majority of the Members of the League whose Representatives compose the Assembly.

No such amendments shall bind any member of the League which signifies its dissent therefrom, but in that case it shall cease to be a member of the League.

Doctor Tells How to Detect Harmful Effects of Tobacco

Try These SIMPLE TESTS

New York: Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins hospital, says: Many men who smoke, chew or snuff incessantly and who are seemingly healthy are suffering from progressive organic ailments. Thousands of them would never have been afflicted had it not been for the use of tobacco, and thousands would soon get well if they would only stop the use of tobacco. The chief habit forming principle of tobacco is nicotine, a deadly poison which, when absorbed by the system, slowly affects the nerves, membranes, tissues and vital organs of the body. The harmful effect of tobacco varies and depends on circumstances. One will be afflicted with general debility, others with catarrh of the throat, indigestion, constipation, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of memory, lack of will power, mental confusion, etc. Others may suffer from heart disease, bronchial trouble, hardening of the arteries, tuberculosis, blindness or even cancer or the common affliction known as tobacco heart. If you use tobacco in any form you can easily detect the harmful effects by making the following simple tests. Read aloud one full page from a book. If, in the course of reading your voice becomes muffled, hoarse and indistinct, and you must frequently clear your throat, the chances are that your throat is affected by catarrh and it may be the beginning of more serious trouble. Next, in the morning before taking your usual smoke, walk up three flights of stairs at a regular pace, then stop. If you find that you are out of breath, your heart beat is forced, trembling or irregular, you may be a victim of functional or organic heart trouble. If you feel that you must smoke, chew or snuff to quiet your nerves, you are a slave to the tobacco habit, and are positively poisoning yourself with the deadly drug, nicotine. In either case you have just two alternatives—keep on with the self-poisoning process irrespective of the dangers and suffer the consequences, or give up the habit and escape the dangers. You can overcome the craving and stop the habit in a very short time by using the following inexpensive formula. Go to any drug store and ask for Nicotol tablets, take one tablet after each meal, and in a comparatively short time you will have no desire for tobacco, the craving will have left you. With the nicotine poison out of your system your general health will quickly improve.

Note—When asked abut Nicotol tablets, one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit; away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol tablets are sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists, including the Judge & Dolph, the Wolff-Wilson and the Enderle Stores. ADV.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPEECH AT KANSAS CITY

men who used to control the destinies of Europe from Wilhelmstrasse. There is a closer monopoly of power in Petrograd and Moscow than there ever was in Berlin, and the thing that is intolerable is not that the Russian people are having their way, but that another group of men more cruel than the Czar himself is controlling the destinies of that great people.

Against Minority Control.

"And I want to say here and now that I am against the control of any minority anywhere. Search your own economic history and what have you been uneasy about? Now and again you have said there were small groups of capitalists who were controlling the industry and therefore the development of the United States. Seriously, my fellow citizens if that is so (and some times I have feared that it was), we must break up that monopoly. I am not now saying that there is any group of our fellow citizens who are consciously doing anything of the kind, and I am saying that these allegations must be proved. But if it is proved, that any class, any group anywhere is without the suffrage of their fellow citizens in control of our affairs then I am with you to destroy the power of that group. We have got to be frank with ourselves, however, If we do not want minority government in Germany, we must see to it that we do not have it in the United States. If you do not want little groups of selfish men to plot the future of Europe, we must not allow little groups of selfish men to plot the future of America. Any man that speaks for a class must prove that he also speaks for all his fellow citizens and for mankind; and then we will listen to him.

"Then there was another thing we wanted to do, my fellow citizens, that is done in this document. We wanted to see that helpless people were nowhere in the world put at the mercy of unscrupulous enemies and masters. There is one pitiful example which is in the hearts of all of us. I mean the example of Armenia. There was a Christian people, helpless, at the mercy of a Turkish Government which thought it the service of God to destroy them. And at this moment, my fellow citizens, it is an open question whether the Armenian people will not, while we sit here and debate, be absolutely destroyed. When I think of words piled on words, of debate following debate, when these unspeakable things that cannot be handled until the debate is over, are happening in these pitiful parts of the world, I wonder that men do not wake up to the moral responsibility of what they are doing. Great peoples are driven out upon a desert where there is no food and can be none, and they are compelled to die and then men, women and children thrown into a common grave, so imperfectly covered up that here and there is a pitiful arm stretched out to Heaven and there is no pity in the world. When shall we wake to the moral responsibility of this great occasion?

"And so, my fellow citizens, there are other aspects to that matter. Not all the populations that are having something that is not a square deal lived in Armenia. There are others. And one of the glories of the great document which I brought back with me is this: That everywhere within the area of settlement covered by the political questions involved in that treaty, people of that sort have been given their freedom and guaranteed their freedom. But the thing does not end there because the treaty includes the covenant of the league of nations. And what does that say? That says that it is the privilege of any member state to call attention to anything anywhere that is likely to disturb the peace of the world or the good understanding between nations upon which the peace of the world depends, and every people in the world that have not got what they think they ought to have is thereby given a world forum in which to bring the thing to the bar of mankind. There never before has been provided a world forum in which the legitimate grievances of peoples entitled to consideration can be brought to the common judgment of mankind. And if I were the advocate of any suppressed or oppressed people, I surely could not ask any better forum than to stand up before the world and challenge the other party to make good its excuses for not acting in that case.

Some With "Jaundiced Eyes."

"To reject that treaty, to alter that treaty, is to impair one of the first charters of mankind. And yet there are men who approach the question with passion, with private passion, and party passion, who think only of some immediate advantage to themselves or to a group of their fellow countrymen, and who look at the thing with the jaundiced eyes of those who have some private purpose of their own.

"When at last, in the annals of mankind they are gibbeted they will regret that the gibbet is so high.

"I would not have you think that I am trying to characterize those who conscientiously object to anything in this great document. I take off my hat in the presence of any man's genuine conscience, and there are men who are conscientiously opposed to it, though they will pardon me if I say ignorantly opposed. I

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 557, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the information necessary.—ADV.

have no quarrel with them. It has been a great pleasure to confer with some of them—and to tell them as frankly as I would have told my most intimate friend, the whole inside of my mind and every other mind that I know anything about, that had been concerned with the conduct of affairs at Paris, in order that they might understand this thing and go with the rest of us in the confirmation of what is necessary for the peace of the world.

"I have no intolerant spirit in the matter; but I also assure you that from the bottom of my feet to the top of my head I have got a fighting spirit about it.

"And if anybody dares to defeat this great experiment, then they must gather together the counselors of the world and do something better.

"If there is a better scheme, I for one will subscribe to it, but I want to say now, as I said the other night, it is a case of put up or shut up. Negation will not save the world. Opposition constructs nothing. Opposition is the specialty of those who are Bolshevistically inclined.

"Again I assure you I am not comparing any of my respected colleagues to Bolshevists, but I am merely pointing out that the Bolshevistic spirit lacks every element of constructive opposition. They have destroyed everything and they have proposed nothing. (Applause and cheers).

"And while there is a common abhorrence for political Bolshevism, I hope there will not be any such thing grow up in our country as international Bolshevism, the Bolshevism that destroys the constructive work of men who have conscientiously striven to cement the good feeling of the great peoples of the world.

Problem of Philippines.

"Is it not a great vision, my fellow citizens, this of the thoughtful world combined for peace, and this of all the great peoples of the world associated to see that justice is done, that the strong who intend wrong are restrained and that the weak who cannot defend themselves are made secure. We have a problem ahead of us that ought to interest us in this connection. We have promised the people of the Philippine Islands that we will set them free. It has been one of our perplexities how we should make them safe after we set them free. Under this arrangement, they will be safe from the outset. They will become members of the league of nations and every great nation in the world will be obliged to respect and preserve against external aggression from any quarter the territorial integrity and political independence of the Philippines. It simplifies one of the most perplexing problems that has faced the American republic.

"But it does not simplify our problems merely, gentlemen. It illustrates the triumph of the American spirit. I do not want to attempt any flight of fancy but I can fancy those men of the first generation, that so thoughtfully set this great Government up, the generation of Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson and the Adamses—I can fancy their looking on with a sort of enraptured amazement that the American spirit should have made conquest of the world.

"If anything that I have said has left the impression on your mind that I have the least doubt of the result, please dismiss the impression. And if you think I have come out on this errand to fight anybody please dismiss that from your mind. I have not come to fight or antagonize any individual or body of individuals. I have, let me say, without the slightest affectation, the greatest respect for the Senate of the United States, but, fellow citizens, I have come out to fight for a cause. That cause is greater than the Senate; it is greater than the Government. It is as great as the cause of mankind and I intend in office or out to fight that battle as long as I live. My ancestors were troublesome Scotchmen and among them were some of that famous group known as the Covenanters. Very well, there is the covenant of the league of nations. I am a covenanter."

SPENCER SILENT ON PROHIBITION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 6.—To the desk of a Missouri Congressman this morning there came coincidentally a copy of a St. Louis morning newspaper of Thursday, containing an article headed "Spencer declares U. S. should let war time prohibition end with the war." and a copy of the Congressional Record reporting verbatim the discussion of the prohibition enforcement bill in the Senate yesterday.

The headline referred to a speech made by the junior Senator from Missouri Wednesday night at Cambridge, Mass., in which he drew a distinction between war-time prohibition and prohibition under the constitutional amendment and declared that "war-time prohibition is an emergency act that has its only reason in the war-time situation." The prohibition enforcement bill, containing a separate title for the enforcement of war-time prohibition was under consideration in the Senate yesterday.

The stenographic report of the day's proceedings does not contain the name of Senator Spencer. He did not lift his voice for or against the prohibition act, or any the provisions thereof.

W. C. T. U. Meeting Tuesday.

Regular meetings of Central W. C. T. U. will be resumed Tuesday at 2 p. m., at the Buckingham Hotel. After the business session J. Elmer Ball will speak on present day conditions resulting from war-time prohibition.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Discoverer Tells Druggists Not to Take a Cent of Anyone's Money Unless Allenrhu Completely Banishes All Rheumatic Pains and Twinges.

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. Your druggist has been appointed agent for Allenrhu in this vicinity with the understanding that he will freely return the purchase money to all who state they received no benefit.—ADV.

Sore and Red. Awfully Itchy and Burned. Kept Awake.

"The trouble lasted two months when I began using Cuticura, and I used two cakes of Soap and a half a fifty-cent box of Ointment and he was healed." (Signed) Mrs. A. Sjerven, Andover, S. Dakota.

INSTRUCTOR TO DISCUSS PRICES

Will Include Problem in Course at School of Social Economy.

Mangold, during the new term which opens Sept. 23. The high cost of living also will be included in a special course of 10 semi-weekly lectures to be given for men and women who do not intend to make social service work a profession, but desire to become acquainted with the needs, problems and remedies of social and reconstruction work of the day. Business Opportunities

◖ There is a wholesome business atmosphere that penetrates every fiber of this great St. Louis-owned institution; more than 2000 of our employes are sharing the advantages of this business atmosphere.

◖ Countless opportunities for responsibility present themselves daily.

◖ A happy throng of intelligent co-workers move about, rendering a service to the public that has been typically Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney for more than 69 years.

◖ When one joins the forces of a highly-specialized and well-organized business institution such as this, they have at once become a student of commerce, of business, of merchandising and of selling, and a rapid, practical education is the result.

◖ Scores of new employes are added to our forces almost every week. Such employment proves to be an opportunity for progress in social, civic and commercial life.

◖ Joining the forces of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney, one quickly realizes, even if they have never been employed before, the marked difference between "just working" and entering upon a business career, the outcome of which can only be determined by that one's keen sense of opportunity and responsibility.

◖ The present expansion, whereby we are adding more than 60,000 square feet of floor space, is another evidence of how intensely we try to keep the high standard, for we are adding a school room, a music hall, additional rest rooms, tea rooms, etc., for the convenience of both employes and patrons.

Are Caused by Impure or Bad Blood—Internal Treatment Is Necessary.

There are a great many conditions of poor health caused by bad blood. These disorders are evidenced by skin eruptions, swelling of the glands or joints, falling hair and sores on different parts of the face, limbs or body. While it is bad enough to be sick, such troubles are a continual source of embarrassment and annoyance.

You can alleviate these troubles caused by impure or bad blood by taking Prescription C-2223, a blood purifier of merit. BUILDINGS TO HONOR VETERANS FIND FAVOR

Memorial Centers for Social Activities to Be Erected Instead of Monuments.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK—Statistics just made public by the Bureau of Memorial Buildings of War Camp Community Service show that 254 communities in the United States have decided to erect buildings in memory of their men who served in the war. Of the memorial buildings to be raised, 132 will take the form of community houses, each to function as a free recreation and social center. Six of the structures will be municipal office buildings.

More than 700 American communities now are considering the putting up of memorial buildings instead of shafts or monuments, the Bureau of Memorial Buildings also announces. It is crusading throughout the United States for the community building type of memorial. Such an institution, the Bureau heads maintain, is a living influence in every community and serves constantly as a reminder of the men the community gave to the national fighting forces.

Additional figures concerning the 254 memorial buildings already decided upon, show that fourteen of them will serve as State memorials and that 45 will be of the auditorium type. These will have social and recreational facilities in addition to large meeting halls, and, for the most part, will be in larger cities. Other memorials will take the form of hospitals, libraries, school buildings and church work centers.

DRAWS FINE WHEN HE SEEKS RING FROM HIS FORMER WIFE

Woman Says Man Became Rough and Abusive and Judge Believes Her Story.

JEFFERSON CITY.—A. T. Jordan went to the home of his former wife, Mrs. Tabetha Jordan, 410 East McCarty street, to get the ring he gave her at their wedding several years ago, but, instead, he got a fine in the police court later. Jordan says the infliction of the fine was unjust. He has appealed the case to the Circuit Court.

Since the divorce of the couple Jordan got to thinking about the ring and he decided he would like to have it again in his possession. While the golden circlet plighted the love and promises of the couple years ago, it did not serve to keep these intact, so Jordan felt that it had served its usefulness or, rather, lack of usefulness in that direction.

Jordan's former spouse refused to give up the ring and had him arrested. There was a variance of testimony as to what transpired at the Jordan home. Mrs. Jordan claimed that Jordan was rough and abusive and thereby disturbed her peace. Jordan denied the allegation. Judge Dunn believed the woman and assessed a fine of $1 against Jordan, and costs amounting to $10.

12-YEAR-OLD BOY ENDS LIFE

YORK, Pa.—William Oliver Cooper, 12-year-old son of Mrs. and Mrs. Oliver Cooper, Red Lion, near here, shot himself through the heart with a 48-caliber revolver. It is not known definitely what caused the act, but he was heard to remark shortly before that he had so much trouble he was tired of living. It is believed the approach of school days preyed on his mind.

Common-Sense for Corns, "Gets-It"

The Great Painless Corn Loosener. Simple as A B C. Never Fails.

If you have ever tried to get rid of a corn by bundling up your toe with bandages, or by using salve that made your toe red and almost raw, or tried to drag your corn out with a knife, there will be a surprise waiting for you when you use "Gets-It." Imagine peeling your corn off gloriously, easily and painlessly, just like peeling off a banana skin. Well, that is what happens when you use "Gets-It." There is nothing else that will give you this same result. Millions of folks have had the same blessed experience. Why putter and suffer, limp and spoil a good time for yourself and your friends, or your peace of mind while trying to attend to business? Use "Gets-It," the simple common sense way.

THE SOUTH WANTS HER NEGROES BACK FROM THE NORTH

Mississippi Has Organization to Carry on Campaign for Return of Workers Needed in Cotton Fields.

NEW OPPORTUNITY IS PROMISED HOMECOMER

Chicago Hears of Scheme Dubiously and Race Leaders Send a Committee to Make Investigation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Mississippi wants her negroes back from the North and has on foot a plan which provides for the return of hundreds of families before winter sets in. According to investigators, many of them representing communities in the State, there are hundreds of Southern negroes in the North who are anxious to get back to Dixie. The biggest problem they face is the means of returning. The problem faced by Mississippians wanting them is to get in touch with the class of negro they say they will bring back.

The Mississippi Welfare League is sponsor for the plan that probably will be followed. It detailed a representative to study the situation. His recommendations were approved and the league now is placing its proposals before commercial clubs and other civic organizations throughout the entire State for indorsement and support.

The leading cities in the rich delta section of the State, including Greenwood, Clarksdale, Greenville, Indianola, Leland and others, have already given assurance of support and the entire State undoubtedly will back the project.

Want Cotton Field Laborers.

They are especially interested now because of need of negro labor in cotton fields for the next 100 days, followed by the yearly demand for negro labor of all kinds resulting from a big cotton season.

Pending a completion of an organization, the Southern Alluvial Land Association of Memphis is acting as a clearing house for getting together negroes who want to come back and employers who need their help.

In a general way the plan of getting negroes from the North has two main features:

First—To establish offices in Chicago, St. Louis and several other cities, place capable and responsible representatives in each and get in touch with such negroes as are properly recommended and who desire to return to the South.

Second—To supply each office with complete literature of the numerous cities and communities where there is an immediate demand for negro help, and to furnish proper and timely information about the State to offset propaganda issued by industries and political forces which are characterized as the real agencies in alluring and holding Southern negroes in the North.

Here is what Mississippi is doing right now toward getting her negroes back home:

In the first week of August, J. C. Wilson, executive secretary of the Mississippi Welfare League, was sent to Chicago to go into the negro labor question, study possibilities of returning surplus Southern negroes, communicate with every source of information and to formulate recommendations.

Some Opposition in Chicago.

Wilson spent 10 days in Chicago. He met Mayor Thompson and the police heads; leaders in the Association of Commerce, the organized labor leaders, Federal employment agency heads, and everyone else vitally interested in the Chicago question.

Men in politics in Chicago, it is said, not only declined to give help, but it is asserted that obstacles of every sort were thrown in the way of the return of negro voters to the South. The other agencies were willing enough to help as much as they could, but at the same time there was an air of fear that even though Southern negroes might return to the South, their condition might not be improved.

The activities of Wilson finally resulted in the appointment of a mixed committee of white men and negroes to make a trip into Mississippi to see, talk and otherwise obtain first-hand information. The lurid stories of radical publications left all sorts of mental pictures of negro conditions in Mississippi, to such an extent, in fact, that the appointment of the investigating committee might well be attributed to that source. There was just enough doubt that the organization in Chicago did not want to lend their support without inquiry in their own behalf.

MANY STATES PASS LAWS FAVORABLE TO WORKING MEN

Review of Legislation in 1919 for Benefit of Labor Issued by Secretary of National Association.

COMPENSATION ACTS NOW IN 45 STATES

Compulsory Education Measures and Provisions for Free Employment Bureaus Also Enacted.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON.—A summary of labor laws enacted in 1919 by more than 40 states and by Congress has been issued by Dr. John B. Andrews, secretary of the American Association for Labor Legislation. Here are some of the advances made this year:

"Four additional states, making a total of 45 states and territories, enacted workmen's compensation laws

"Almost all states amended their workmen's compensation laws with the trend toward more liberal benefits, shorter waiting periods and wider scope.

"North Dakota joined list of compensation states with enlightened provision for exclusive State fund.

"Ten states raised scale of compensation, so that now there are 23 states in which injured workers receive 60 to 66 2-3 per cent of wages.

"Women's hours in industrial establishments were reduced in half a dozen states, including an eight-hour limit in Massachusetts after fully 50 years' agitation.

Minimum Wage in 14 States.

"North Dakota adopted minimum wage laws, making 14 states and the District of Columbia which have this protective device.

"Eight states improved their child labor laws.

"Congress enacted child labor laws, using the taxing power, after the Supreme Court had declared a previous enactment invalid.

"Four states authorized aid in reeducating and finding employment for industrial cripples. Massachusetts adopted this device a year ago.

"Labor unions were expressly legalized in three states, while in two of these the use of injunctions in labor disputes is strictly limited. Oregon created a State Board of Conciliation for industrial disputes, and South Carolina established penalties for violations of its conciliation and arbitration act. Six more states passed criminal syndicalism and sabotage laws.

State Employment Bureaus.

"California created a special commission on unemployment and increased the appropriation for its State employment bureaus. New Jersey created a State Employment Bureau. Indiana created a commission to administer public employment offices and regulate private agencies and to study employment conditions, while Wyoming passed a law regulating private employment bureaus California made special provision for finding employment for discharged or paroled prisoners.

"California, Minnesota and Oklahoma increased the powers of their industrial commissions to facilitate enforcement of safety regulations and other labor laws. Wyoming reorganized the office of the Commissioner of Labor Statistics, providing an assistant, and increasing the powers and duties of the department.

"Seven states passed laws for compulsory education in part-time schools even after the legal working age of children has been reached. Enforcement is provided either by reducing the legal working week during the school term, or by penalizing employers who refuse to allow employed children to attend such schools. North Carolina raised its legal age for day work to 14, and for night work or employment in mines to 16. Delaware created a Child Welfare Commission. Seven states improved their mine regulations, and New Jersey created a Bureau of Mines and enacted a safety code for mining operations. Four states increased safety and sanitary regulations in factories or bakeries, and Minnesota regulated foundries. Five states enacted further general safety regulations affecting boilers or machinery. California regulated sanitary conditions in labor camps."

Health Insurance in Some States.

Dr. Andrews stated that the impetus given to compulsory workmen's health insurance to protect workers and their families against the poverty that illness brings, was most significant. This is a companion measure to the protection accorded workers injured through accident.

A health insurance bill passed the New York Senate, while in several states official commissions, after investigations, submitted comprehensive reports as a preliminary aid to health insurance legislation, the Ohio report in particular strongly urging adoption of laws along the lines of the health insurance bill advanced in New York.

Diabetes Treated Successfully

Medical science admits of no definite cure for Diabetes despite the many years of experimenting and research by physicians. However, this popular theory might be called falacious if one were to judge from the following unsolicited testimonial from a grateful user of Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy.

"I had been troubled with Diabetes for 8 years. I heard about Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy and I tried some of it and got myself in good condition and went to work again. One man said he doctored for two years and that one bottle of Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy did him more good than all the doctors. I am much pleased and so thankful for your life-saving remedy that I cheerfully recommend it to anyone troubled with Diabetes and I hope this will be the cause of helping many sufferers." (Signed) James Platt, National Military Home, Dayton, Ohio, U. S. A.

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is made from a formula tried and tested and used with remarkable results during the past 40 years. As the name indicates, Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is absolutely safe and is made solely from herbs and other beneficial ingredients. Sold by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and all leading druggists. Beautifully Curly, Fluffy Hair—In Three Hours!

Girls, have you tried the silmerine method of curling your hair? It's simply grand! Gives you the most beautiful, natural-looking curls and waves—makes the hair soft, fluffy and glossy—and nothing harmful or bothersome about it. The curls will last the longest time—in spite of heat, wind or dampness. You won't have to be continually fixing and fussing with your hair. It's foolish to singe and blister and deaden your tresses with a hot curling iron—and altogether unnecessary now.

Liquid silmerine is pleasant to use, being neither sticky nor greasy. Get a bottle from your druggist today, follow the simple directions—the first trial will make it your steadfast friend. The wavy effect appears within three hours after the application, though many prefer applying the liquid just before retiring. You will appreciate silmerine equally as a dressing and hair preservative.—Adv.

WOMEN TO HAVE HONOR DAY AT ART EXPOSITION

Delegates to Suffrage Convention Will Co-operate With Industrial Crafts Committee.

The first honor day of the St. Louis Exposition of Industrial Arts and Crafts, to open Oct. 15 at the Southern Hotel Building for four weeks, has been named for the Missouri Women's Suffrage Association and Missouri League of Women Voters, who will co-operate with the exposition committee by holding a State convention the opening week. The arrangements are being developed by Mrs. George Gellhorn, president.

This first Missouri women's citizenship day will be Thursday, Oct. 16, the second day of the exposition. The convention, which will continue Thursday, Friday and Saturday, will convene under the present title and is expected to change to the Missouri League of Women Voters, preparatory to a new citizenship program of constructive work for the State and municipalities of Missouri.

A feature of the exposition will be the arts in the household. The subject of American art advancement is developing in many of its aspects as an American woman's movement, leaders of women's organizations believe, and opens one of the most profitable opportunities for the public service by the organized women citizens.

Many Honor Days Planned.

The American Federation of Arts and the American Art Alliance are two national bodies forwarding the arrangement of conventions at this particular time, in co-operation with the exposition. Honor days in recognition of the citizenship affiliation of organizations in the St. Louis Exposition of Industrial Arts and Crafts, are to be an important feature.

There are to be honor days not only for St. Louis and Missouri bodies, but other State and national organizations contributing to or taking special interest in the exposition, or serving art or the nation, and several conventions are now being talked of in affiliation with the exposition, as the national art and industrial associations take up their programs at the end of the summer. There also are to be special art days for the various arts and affiliated interests, such as music in its different branches—vocal and instrumental—drama, pageantry and the dance, and other expressional arts, as well as the household and interior decoration arts, architecture, painting, sculpture, and allied arts, photography, printing, textiles, advertising arts and others.

The system of practical service to industrial and public interests is to afford the public a new grasp of the whole subject of better design in the industries. These features are being developed through "process exhibits," with expert workers and displays in different arts, together with popular talks, technical lectures, instruction to students, designers and workmen, and illustrative features of various description, which are to be set forth in a classified program so that they may afford the most practical result.

Work of Art Schools.

One of the interesting exhibit divisions will be formed by the technical education displays of leading American art schools. The exposition will show how the American art school is undergoing a metamorphosis, and developing into a commercially practical institution, serving commerce and industry as well as culture. Recently some of the advanced museums and schools have turned attention to the applied and industrial arts to a degree not dreamed of in former years, and the museums are helping them, so that the reproach of inferiority may be removed from American manufactured products, and the business man may reap the rewards that belong to character and quality. A valuable instructional exhibit illustrating "processes in the arts," including the subject of textiles, ceramics, pottery, glass, weaving and illustrations, is to be brought from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

The Carnegie Institute of Technology will be represented and also the Pratt Institute of Brooklyn, Cooper Institute of New York, the Art Institute of Chicago, and the St. Louis School of Fine Arts, while the showing of the St. Louis Public Schools is to be a feature in the instructional section. All these exhibits are to interlock with the "working process" in different fields, and with the gallery talks and technical lectures and classes being organized by the St. Louis Art League, to make the exposition a stimulus for a great art industrial design school to be located in St. Louis.

PUBLIC DISPLAY OF PAINTINGS

American Painters' Works to Be Shown at Art Museum Friday.

The City Art Museum will be open to the public Friday evening for a preliminary view of the Fourteenth Annual Exhibition of American Paintings, which is to be opened formally the following Sunday. Nearly 300 paintings have been entered by artists in all parts of the country. A jury of selection met in New York last Tuesday and Wednesday for the consideration of Eastern pictures, and another jury will meet at the Museum Monday and Tuesday to pass upon the works submitted by local and Western artists.

The galleries will be opened on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, and the municipal 'busses will be in operation between the Olive-University car line and the Museum.

CAMPANILE TO BE REPLACED

Tower of Cambrai Cathedral Saved from Complete Destruction.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CAMBRAI, France, Aug. 12.—The beautiful campanile of the Cambrai Cathedral, with one of its corner columns badly breached by shells, condemned to destruction by the engineering corps of the army as a menace to public safety, was to have been brought down yesterday by dynamite. It was saved from immediate destruction by an eleventh-hour intervention on the part of friends of art. The campanile will be taken down stone by stone, the material being classified and laid aside to be put in place again when the cathedral is restored.

1000 PER CENT PROFIT MAKES SIBERIA PROFITEERS' HEAVEN

Gouging Has Reached Fine Art, With Smallest Price, Doubling Cost.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

OMSK, Siberia, July 30.—Profiteering has reached its apex as "a fine art" throughout Central and Western Siberia, where no speculator is satisfied with less than 100 per cent profit and often gouges as much as 1000 per cent out of his hapless customers, according to stories coming in here.

These traders, many of them smugglers, who, taking advantage of the shortage of everything except the products of the country, the unstable value of the ruble and the difficulties of transportation, contrive to get through with a few pairs of shoes, particularly women's shoes, a few bolts of silk or dress goods, a few cases of tinned fruits, or, in fact, any foreign-made product whatsoever, reap rich harvests.

The Red Cross has had its difficulties sidestepping the designs of this gentry from time to time. On one occasion, it is related, a Red Cross representative in Irkutsk was approached with an offer of a hundred pairs of shoes as a gift for the good of the cause. In due time they arrived from Dairem, but in place of 100 pairs there were 1000. They had passed the customs free of charge, being consigned to the Red Cross, and it was the owner's expectation that the extra 900 would be delivered to him. They were all bundled off to Dairem.

PLAN MORE SCHOOL ORCHESTRAS

Music Department of Board of Education Encourages Organization.

Plans are being formulated by the music department of the Board of Education for an orchestra in every public school in the city. Orchestras were organized in 57 schools last year and the remainder will be encouraged to act this year.

These orchestras will play at all the school functions and are expected to play a great part in the development of community spirit.

OFFICE WILL BE OPENED HERE TO LURE NEGROES BACK TO DIXI

Mississippi Organizing Movement t Get Needed Workers Who Deserted Cotton Fields.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 6.—Mississippi is organizing a movement fo returning to the South hundreds o negro families that have gone North in the last few years and who ar now anxious to get back to Dixie Mississippians need their help t handle a big cotton crop and to d other work.

It is proposed to establish office in St. Louis, Chicago and later i other cities where there are many Southern negroes; to place a competent man in charge of each office and to make it a clearing house in the handling of negroes who really want to come back to Mississippi. Definite work will be under way before winter, when hundreds of negro families, accustomed to the mild winters of Mississippi, will be anxious t return South, but will be without means of getting back, in many instances.

It has been estimated that a 14,000,000-bale cotton crop will require 2,000,000 pickers through the picking season of from 90 to 100 days. Also it is asserted that the South must each year recruit 90,000 pickers to handle her crop. With the present dearth of help, consequently, good wages, much improved living conditions and an offer by many of the big planters to pay transportation back to the South have resulted.

NEW TEACHERS IN MUSIC SCHOOL

Margaret Hall, at the college, has been set aside for the exclusive use of the music department, the head of which is Leo C. Miller.

LOADS OF SILVER EIGHTEEN TRAIN ACROSS CONTINENT

Treasure Valued at $260,000,000 Rushed Secretly terials Ordered in Far East by Fast Express During War for Shipment by the British to Asia.

ARMED GUARDS LOCKED IN CARS ON LONG TRIP

Details of Unusual Undertaking to Pay for War Ma- Revealed by Railroad Employes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—Mountains of sterling silver, millions and millions and hundreds of millions of dollars worth of the precious white metal, 18 train loads, not carloads, of the silver "pigs" were secretely transported, during the war, across the great plains of Nebraska, over the mountains of Wyoming, through the deserts of Utah and Nevada, and landed on board British warships in San Francisco bay for transportation to India and Japan and China.

And so secretly were the shipments made and so securely were the treasure trains guarded that not one dollar was lost from the time the trains left Philadelphia until they were shunted alongside the British men-of-war at the docks in San Francisco. The story is just being told by western railroad men who assisted in handling the trains.

The treasure was being sent to Asia by the British Government to pay for war supplies and materials purchased by the British army. It was a portion of a credit established in this country by the British. But cash, not credit, was needed in the Asiatic countries, so the British converted their American credit into good American silver dollars, had them melted into silver "pigs" at the Philadelphia mint, and shipped across the continent to San Francisco where British warships carried them across the Pacific to Asia, where they were used to pay bills contracted by the British Government for all sorts of war supplies.

First Train in May, 1918.

Eighteen trains were required to transport the silver treasure. The shipments extended over a period of 12 months, the last train load going over the mountains and the plains and the deserts in April of this year. The first of the 18 trains made the journey in May, 1918.

Five cars were handled at a time and this number completed the train—that is, five express cars and one car for the guards. The guard-car was used to prepare meals, mostly. The guards slept in the treasure cars.

Each train went through as a "special" and was billed as "war materials, rush forward." And they certainly were rushed across the continent.

Everything gave way before the silver trains. Overland passenger trains were sidetracked; cars of live stock had to go to siding an hour before the treasure trains were due; fruit trains from the Pacific, all had to get out of the way for the trains of "war materials" which were being "sent to Siberia" for use of the allies on the Russian front.

Armed Men on Guard.

From Philadelphia to Cheyenne each car was guarded by two gunmen. Each man was armed with two army automatic pistols of the heaviest type. And each man had, in addition, a sawed-of pump shotgun and a supply of slug-cartridges. For long-distance work there were a couple of repeating rifles in each car. The men took turns in sleeping and guarding. One man in each car was on guard all the time. The other guard in each car slept on a cot in the car.

Each car was locked on the outside and on the inside. Meals were prepared in the extra car and were brought to the doors of the treasure cars by the superintendent of the train. Neither the superintendent nor the guards could unlock a car door without the aid of the other. The doors were unlocked just long enough to pass in the meals for the men. Then they were re-locked.

At Cheyenne a third guard was added to each car. Any attempt to hold up and rob the treasure trains would be made west of Cheyenne. the Government figured. Only men of tried nerve and experience were chosen for the work.

Each treasure train was preceded by a pilot train all the way from Philadelphia to San Francisco. Any attempt by an enemy alien to wreck the money train would have resulted in the wreck of the pilot and the warning of the following train.

Bricks Worth $1000 Each.

The treasure consisted of silver bricks, each brick weighing 62 pounds and worth approximately $1000. Each train carried between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 of the white bars. The value of the entire shipment was more than $250,000,000. And not an ounce of the silver was lost on American soil.

On arrival in San Francisco the treasure cars were switched on to the pier at which the British warships were moored. The transfer of the silver bricks to the war vessel was guarded by soldiers as well as by the special guards attached to the train.

Not one word of the shipments of the great treasure got into print while the movement was underway, but now that all reasons for secrecy are over the story is leaking out and is being talked about among the men who operated the trains as they passed through the Rocky Mountains. While $1,000,000 silk trains from the Orient are not uncommon, the shipment of a quarter of a billion dollars in silver across the continent is so decidedly uncommon as to attract attention wherever the story is told.

BEAR MASCOT WAXES FAT ON ARMY CHOW WHILE TOURING A.E.F.

Monty, Back From Overseas, Grew From 12 to 225 Pounds.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK.—Proving that Camp Pontanezen at Brest is not so bad as it has been painted by certain returning members of the A. E. F., Monty, the black bear mascot of the 319th Engineers, returned on the transport Susquehanna with his comrades, weighing 225 pounds and in the best of health.

Monty was presented to the 319th when they were at Camp Fremont, Cal., when he was two weeks old and weighed 12 pounds. He traversed the continent with the regiment and when the time came to go overseas, Monty was too old a campaigner to let a little thing like orders forbidding mascots on transports to stop him.

He went aboard in a large box prominently labeled "Band Instrument" in letters big enough and black enough to convince the most skeptical Q. M. C. officer in the army. He continued to travel strictly incognito during the regiment's journeying over the British Isles, and on the voyage across the Channel he was listed in the records of the transport officers as "Fresh Meat." Since then he has waxed fat and healthy on army "chow" and the climate of Brittany, but he exhibited with a hearty grunt his satisfaction at being back once more in his native land.

PRETTY MISS STENOGRAPHER FOR WEALTHY KANSAS FARMER

Bears Distinction of Being Only Person Thus Employed in Big Wheat State.

DODGE CITY, Kan.—Miss Helen Switzer of Harper, a pretty 19-year-old girl, just out of business college, sought a job this summer. She had plenty of city offers for employment and also an offer from a Kansas farmer, her decision being to take the latter.

Today Miss Switzer has the distinction of being the first girl stenographer employed on a Kansas farm. She is the private secretary on the Webber ranch, 14 miles northwest of Dodge City. The Webber ranch is one of the largest wheat ranches in the State, with 3500 acres of wheat and 500 acres of oats and barley.

Miss Switzer writes all of the business letters concerning the farm for John Webber, owner of the ranch, and tabulates the time of the 60 employes as they enter the cook shack for meals each day.

Even at that the stenographer is not the only girl employed on the ranch. Webber's 18-year-old daughter, Ina, played an important part in the wheat harvest. Her business is that of general errand runner. She drives a small motor car to town each day to see that the wagons are properly loaded with provisions for the harvesters. If repairs on any of the machines are necessary during the day, Miss Webber is on hand to take the broken parts to the repair shop or to bring first aid to the field.

KENTUCKY ROAD-BUILDING PLANS

$3,000,000 in Construction Expected to Be Under Way in 1920.

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Federal aid road work aggregating $3,000,000 probably will be under construction in Kentucky by July, 1920, according to Rodman Wiley, State Commissioner of Public Roads, who has mapped routes for several Federal aid projects. At present Federal aid roads amounting to nearly $900,000 are under construction.

Work is being done in this State on the Jackson highway, Dixie highway, Midland Trail and East and West highway. A route has been mapped for a Federal aid highway from Louisville to Cincinnati and for another from Louisville to Paducah.

Largest Load of Wheat.

BOONVILLE, Mo.—The largest load of wheat ever delivered to the Boonville Mills Co. was 132 bushels, brought in on a truck. This is equal to about three ordinary wagon loads and was delivered at the mills in about one-third of the time required with a team and wagon.

RE-EDUCATION OF COUNTRY MINISTERS FOR BROADER WORK

Plans Announced by Presbyterian Home Missions Board to Send Preachers to School to Study New Needs.

COMMUNITY SERVICE REQUIRED OF PASTORS

Teaching Bible and Visiting Church Members No Longer Enough, Declares Leader, but Social Problems Must Be Met.

NEW YORK.—Re-education of country ministers to enable them to cope with the world problems of the new era confronting the church is planned by the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, according to an announcement made at the headquarters of the Presbyterian New Era Movement, 156 Fifth avenue. This is part of the program of the Presbyterian Church to enable its ministers to keep up with the times.

The board plans to spend $10,000 for the re-education of ministers in 1920 and to appropriate $25,000 each year for a special graduate course of study for the most promising country ministers in order to fit them for higher service and leadership.

This system of re-education of pastors is announced by Dr. Warren H. Wilson of the Presbyterian Home Board.

"The demands upon a pastor in a small community," said Dr. Wilson, "are far beyond what he has been prepared to meet. He has been taught to preach, to study the Bible, to teach and to visit his people in their homes. But he is called on to lead the community in work for better roads, consolidation of schools in reform movements, financial 'drives' and in recreational problems. He is called on to be a pastor, not a preacher only.

Variety of Studies.

"The home board has for several years assembled country ministers in short courses, usually in the summer, for training in community work. This year the number of schools was 13. The largest of these schools was at Auburn; the furthermost West was in the State College of Agriculture at Pullman, Wash. We co-operate with whatever institution offers the needed courses. Some are agricultural colleges; some are theological seminaries. Our cooperation consists in paying the traveling expenses of ministers, selected and recommended by their presbyteries for this work.

"This is the tenth year of the board's experience. In the first year, 1909, we had two such assemblies, at Bellefontaine, O., in the Presbyterian Church, and at Amherst, Mass., in the agricultural college. The attendance in 1919 was beyond that of any preceding year and the interest now is growing very rapidly. The Methodist Episcopal Church is cooperating through their rural church department in holding these summer schools, at which a large number of ministers are gathered. They also are committed to training the minister for community service.

"At these schools the men are taught what community work means, what the leadership and the service of the whole community will involve. At all the schools the Bible, the Sunday school work and pastoral service are taught.

To Keep Up With Times.

"At the agricultural colleges they study the state's program for development of the community; at the religious school they study the developing church program and propaganda. This church propaganda is very much the same year by year, no matter what the denomination. We plan to take country ministers once in five years to each of these types of school, in order that they may keep up with the times.

"A new plan is under consideration by the home board which grows out of this work. We propose to bring a selected number of pastors to a central place for a year's graduate study. This year will be divided between field work under special direction and classroom work in religious and social service. This method has been very successful in the immigrant work of the board in training expert leaders for city and immigrant service by means of a fellowship year in Europe.

"The current needs of the board in re-education of ministers along the plan developed for the past 10 years call for the use in 1920 of $10,000. For the special graduate year of study for the most promising country ministers, in order to fit them for higher service and leadership, the board needs $25,000 each year."

COMES TO GRIEF WHEN HE TRIED FEW CIRCUS STUNTS

Farmer Thinks Trapeze Acts Look Mighty Easy, but Later Changes His Mind.

SALISBURY, Mo.—The stunts that acrobats do on the trapeze are so easy that anyone can do them. That was the contention of Hobart Evans, a young farmer living south of this city, but after a little experience through which he has just passed, he has about concluded that he was wrong.

Evans was at the State fair and among the attractions he saw was a clever company of trapeze artists doing daring stunts with such ease and precision that it all seemed too easy.

When Evans got home he told some of his friends all about it and to make it realistic started to show just how the feats were performed. He rigged up a trapeze at his home and then invited his friends down to demonstrate to them that anybody with strength and judgment could do the same things.

A few of the easier stunts went by in great shape and Evans was congratulating himself upon his success. He then decided to cut up a few "didos," as a means of demonstrating some of the classier stunts of the paid performers at the fair. Something went wrong on the improvised trapeze and the next thing Evans knew he was on the ground suffering great pain. A physician examined him and declared that both of his wrists were badly sprained. As a result Evans will be incapacitated for several weeks. He lays the whole blame on the trapeze and not to his inability to perform the "circus" stunts.

TRADE DRIVE IN SOUTH AMERICA BEGUN BY SPAIN

Chambers of Commerce Formed to Wrest Business From United States and From Germany.

ONE CENTER OF PLAN IS NEW YORK CITY

Diplomats and Consuls Will Act as Representatives of Expanding Business Interests.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUENOS AIRES.—As the result of an organized effort by the business interests of Spanish firms in the Western hemisphere, a huge trade drive on behalf of Spanish companies has been launched in various capitals of North and South American nations, it has been revealed here within the past week. Efforts will be made by these Spanish interests, which are well financed and prepared both to export and import many commodities, to regain the prestige in foreign trade which once was Spain's throughout the Western hemisphere. The first step already has been accomplished, through the creation of Spanish-American Chambers of Commerce in many capitals, including this city and New York; extension of these to the smaller nations will be the next step, and the third, according to an announcement made here, will be to combine the functions and activities of these chambers with the embassies, legations and consulates of the Spanish Government itself, so that official character may be lent to the drive to capture millions of dollars in trade from less energetic interests.

That the United States is included in the latter category is palpable from announcements of the new chambers, and it is hoped, too, to displace through Spanish influence, always potent in the Latin-American republics, the large share of foreign trade which Germany formerly claimed as her own. Already such Spanish Chambers of Commerce have been formed here and in New York, Guatemala, Peru, Chile, Venezuela, Cuba, Colombia and Mexico. Efforts already are being made to form similar organizations in Costa Rica, Panama, Nicaragua, Salvador, Ecuador, Paraguay, Brazil and Porto Rico. In an offical announcement published here, the details of the drive are given by the well-known Latin-American publicist, Senor Constantino Pineiro Requejo, who says:

Ten Chambers Formed.

"About 10 of these Spanish Chambers of Commerce have been already organized by Spaniards who came to the American continent to expand their energies and disperse their knowledge in a mighty effort to enhance the good name of the mother country, and to take active part in the culture and the general development of the Latin-American countries they have adopted. These Spanish Chambers of Commerce have been organized already at Buenos Aires, Guatemala, Lima, Montevideo, Caracas, Havana, Santiago de Chile, Bogota, New York and Mexico City. As it may be observed, these progressive Spanish institutions are already established in about half of the South American republics, but the other half remain to be created and this should be done at an early date, for the simple reason that both the interests of these republics and those of Spain so demand it, particularly at the present moment, when, by virtue of the reaction of four years of a protracted war, we are about to be confronted with one of the mightiest commercial struggles the world has ever seen.

"Under the circumstances we Spaniards cannot afford to remain as mere spectators in this vast field of commercial enterprise. We owe it to ourselves and to the prosperity of our native country to take advantage of these propitious circumstances and be main factors in the development of these new commercial channels.

Demands Extension of Work.

"The South American republics we have alluded to, and which have a predominant nucleus of Spaniards within their hospitable shores are Costa Rica, Panama, Nicaragua, Salvador, Ecuador, Paraguay, Brazil and Porto Rico, countries affording advantages for the establishment of new markets that would serve as an outlet for our products as well as for the exportation of articles and goods needed in Spain, thus creating a great commercial exchange of common interest to all.

"It is of great importance, then, that our Government stir its representatives in those countries so that they direct all their efforts to organize, with the elements already existing there, those Chambers of Commerce we have referred to, having ever in mind our own prosperity as well as bringing about a better spiritual and material understanding between Spain and those worthy countries, which were her children, and of whose growth and culture we have ample reasons to be proud.

"The course we must necessarily follow has been clearly pointed out to us by the South American countries themselves. It was from those generous countries that we received encouraging suggestions that console our spirit, thus mitigating whatever antagonism we may have encountered somewhere else; it was there that the "feast of the Spanish race" was" initiated; and it was there that the Pan-Iberism was proclaimed by their most illustrious thinkers, such as Dr. Porras, ex-President of the republic of Panama; Senor Rodo, Senor Silva, Senor Ugarte and others, and more recently Senor Granmontagne, who is guiding the Government, our industries and our commerce as to the most efficacious course we should follow to place our native country on the right road to success in those countries that are indebted to Spain for their very existence.

Wants Diplomatic Help.

This accounts for our suggesting the idea of having all Consuls and the diplomatic representatives assigned to South American posts to organize at the earliest possible date chambers of commerce along the lines of those which are so successfully operating in the above-mentioned countries. This will give to Spanish products a vast field of expansion while propagating at the same time our common interests, so long neglected. For it is our solemn hope that such enterprises will tend to give Spain a solid basis that will supplant the enormous amount of foreign literature which has exercised a deleterious influence among the natives until recently, but the natives convinced of the falsity of such literature have decided to discard it and to continue on the noble road pointed out to them by virtue of our traditions and the mutual interests of a common language.

"More than three millions of Spaniards are spending their energies and sharpening their ingenuity in these South American countries. And the first thing that occurs to us is that such a display of strength, of energy, and of intelligence must be quite an asset to the very existence of these popls. And so it is. For even in cases where organization is lacking they have contributed in no small degree to the development of their wealth. And now they have a tendency to be organized; now they are making a collective effort that will take the place of the individual endeavor. To attain this end, we have already (although not working as smoothly as it should be) the Spanish Federation of Cuba; the Central American Federation which is about to be founded; and the first congress of the Spanish Federation which had a noble beginning at Buenos Aires.

"These able tentatives will only crystalize the day we come to the conclusion that we must join hands and work together instead of allowing our potential strength to be scattered throughout the vast fields of these nations. We should concentrate all our efforts in making all our patriotic impulses flow intelligently under the same guidance and co-ordinate strength towards a concentric point that will atone for the privations we have suffered in the past as well as having our aspirations gratified and to which we are entitled by right and justice.

ESSEX MOTOR CARS

Come Take a Ride

A Five Passenger Closed Model of the Car Men Are Praising

In the Essex Sedan

Now comes the Essex Sedan to express our conception of closed car luxury.

The advantages of comfort and simplicity of the touring model are retained.

The identical chassis with all its performance qualities is used. The body has the same bewitching square lines as the touring model.

By its performance and appeal through its quality the Sedan is winning the same real praise from motorists as distinguishes the Essex you know.

As Well Done and as Good a Performer

Close to a thousand Essex Sedans are already in service.

Their owners are advertising it, just as the touring model was made the most talked of car of the season.

The Essex has made its record on every highway. Its owners know the thrill that comes with the ability to dominate every acceleration and driving situation.

Moderate in first cost and upkeep, safety and comfort in driving, and a way all its own in retaining its performance qualities and rigidity, even after the hardest service, account for the opinions you most frequently hear for the Essex.

The Sedan offers the same advantages in moderate cost of purchase and operation. It is a small de luxe car that is easy to drive, comfortable to ride in and capable of meeting any operation requirement. And yet it neither appears, rides nor operates like a small car. It has the big, costly car feeling of power and solidarity that gives it the combined advantages of both types.

For All Seasons For City or Touring

You have heard what people say about the Essex. Now note their remarks about the Sedan.

There is nothing cheap or small in its appearance. It is as dainty as a jewel box.

Exclusive and compact in outward design though it is, owners are pleasingly surprised with the roomy space inside those wide opening doors. The luxury of it finds truth in their comparisons with car qualities in the high priced field.

Reputation of the Essex touring model brings confidence with first interest in this closed model. It gratifies every taste and wins affection by performance and endurance.

It is as well received as the 10,000 Essex touring models now in service.

We would like you to take a ride in the Essex Sedan. Then if you decide for it, you should allow some time for delivery. The demand greatly exceeds production.

OLD ENGINE FAITHFUL WHEN OTHERS FAIL IN THE PINCH

Keeps City Supplied With Food and Other Necessities by Working Overtime.

COLUMBIA, Mo.—Old No. 427 is faithful, even though not good-looking, and during the recent rail trouble she did double service when her better-looking and younger sisters fell by the wayside because of the lack of attention. No. 427 is the little old ramshackled Wabash engine that has seen service on the Columbia branch for lo! these many years.

No. 427 has carried Presidents, near-Presidents and other celebrities and has a history that runs back to the early memories of the oldest citizens. Her grace doesn't attract, for she is as awkward as a high-school girl, but with all her physical imperfections she teaches a beautiful lesson of faithfulness.

During the recent rail trouble her sister engine on the branch knew not the ways of Abraham and seemingly in sympathy with the shopmen went on a strike, or rather she got cut of commission. No. 427 remained steadily on the job and took up the burdens where the other engine left off, making four round trips instead of one each day, so the people of Columbia might have food and other necessities. She is not the best-looking mogul on the system, but the men who run her say they will bank her endurance against any of them. No. 427 may have been slightly indisposed at different times and the going probably was difficult, but she never gave up.

PETRIFIED BODY 12 FEET LONG MAY BE OF PREHISTORIC MAN

Discovery Made at Jackson, Mich.—Physicians Examining It Believe It is Genuine.

JACKSON, Mich., Sept. 6.—What is believed to be the body of a prehistoric man, 12 feet in length, was found buried in the yard of a Jackson policeman while excavating work was being done these Friday.

The body, it is said by physicians who examined it, is in a perfect state of preservation, even to the hair on the head and the teeth. The physicians gave it as their opinion that the body was genuine.

The spot where the body was found was occupied until a few years ago by a large mound of earth. Specimens of petrfied animal and vegetable matter have been found there previously.

The legs of the body are six feet long, the arms four. The head is round with a face nearly flat. The skin is tightly drawn and resembles brown leather. A stake, rotted, protuded from the chest of the body.

FIVE HUNDRED TURN OUT FOR CELEBRATION OF A PIONEER

Maj. Wilks Only Voter in Missouri County Who Cast a Lincoln Ballot.

VERONA, Mo.—Five hundred people turned out for a celebration in honor of the eighty-seventh birthday of Maj. R. S. Wilks, the only voter now living in Lawrence County who cast a ballot for Abraham Lincoln.

The event was one of the biggest ever held here and by far the biggest ever given as homage to a pioneer resident of this or any adjoining county.

Maj. Wilks addressed the great crowd and told them of the early history of both Lawrence and Barry Counties. Despite his advanced age he is sprightly and his memory is wonderful. Maj. Wilks settled in Lawrence County in 1837 and the only other person now living in the county who came here in the same year is "Aunt" Jane Gibson, who also lives at Verona.

The first stake driven in Lawrence County was in 1831 and was set by John Williams, who arrived with a party from Tennessee, according to the reminiscences of Maj. Wilks. The first stake in Barry County was driven in 1835. Judge Yancy of Springfield was the first Judge of the Circuit Court, which included Barry County. Among the trials held during the first term was a murder case. Courthouses were unknown in those days and the hearing was held in a private residence.

Man in Laborer's Clothing Ejected Yesterday From Hotel Statler.

A middle-aged man dressed as for manual labor went about the lobby of Hotel Statler yesterday saying to many persons: "I want to see the President."

Someone turned him over to James Sloan, in charge of the United States Secret Service in St. Louis. Sloan said: "I will take you to see the President," led him from the hotel and turned him over to a policeman. The policeman escorted him a short distance from the hotel and released him. In a few minutes the man was back at the hotel, saying, "I want to see the President." He again was ejected and did not return.

DEADLOCK IN TAILORS' STRIKE NOT EXPECTED TO END SOON

Larger Employers Declare They Will Forego Business Rather Than Grant Demands.

The deadlock between striking journeymen tailors, who demand an eight-hour day and abolition of the piecework system of wages, and several high-grade merchant tailors, continues, iwth no prospect of settlement. In a statement yesterday, W. J. Romer, spokesman for the employers, said they were prepared to forego all their fall and winter business rather than grant the demands.

"The cloth will remain on our shelves," he said. "It is increasing in value all the time, so we will not lose so much money by being forced to hold it. We do not object to the men working only eight hours, but we will not consent to pay by the hour instead of by the piece. Our best men don't want us too, either."

Frank Petera, secretary of the journeymen's local, said all the tailors except about 14 had signed the agreement, and their men had gone back to work. However, it is the largest shops that are holding out

The strike began last Tuesday. Similar strikes are in progress in many cities, as a national convention of tailors voted two years ago to change, Sept. 1, from the piecework system to the eight-hour day.

GUESTS SAY $2 WAS TOO MUCH FOR C. OF C. LUNCHEON

Some Complain Because Presidential Party Received More Expensive Meat.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce paid $2 for tickets to the luncheon for President Wilson at Hotel Statler Friday. Some remarked that the luncheon served them was meager for that price and noted that the presidential party was given more expensive meat and more of it.

Thomas H. Lovelace, assistant secretary of the Chamber, said yesterday that $1 of the $2 paid for tickets was reserved by the committee to defray expenses incidental to the luncheon, such as flowers and chairs and that part also was used to pay for the expense of Friday night's Coliseum meeting. There were 1200 tickets sold for the luncheon, but Lovelace said that $1200 would not pay for the luncheons of the guests, who were served with a $2 meal, and the other expenses of the President's visit.

MRS. HOPE NELSON FILES SUIT AGAINST HUSBAND IN LONDON

Daughter of Late Dr. Jules Valle of St. Louis Seeks Compulsory Restoration of Marriage Relations.

CHARGES DESERTION, SAYS HUSBAND DRANK

Petitioner, Noted for Beauty, Married Heir to English Baronetcy at Her Home Here in 1913.

Mrs. Isabel Valle Hope Nelson, daughter of the late Dr. Jules F. Valle of St. Louis, is declared in advices from London to have begun what in Americans courts would be a suit for separate maintenance against her husband, James Hope Nelson, son of a wealthy English Baronet, Sir William Nelson. As a first step, she has obtained a court order for the restitution of her marital rights.

Their marriage at the bride's home, on Sept. 27, 1893, was not only a leading event of the year in local society circles, but also was an occurrence of international interest. A year earlier, Miss Valle had been pronounced by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt to be "the best looking girl in America." As a youthful matron, she was presented at the English court, where her beauty won remark among the most beautiful women of the empire. Her husband, the heir to his father's baronetcy, is an accomplished sportsman. Their union was pointed to as a conspicuous example of a happy Anglo-American alliance.

According to London information, Mrs. Hope Nelson appeared as a petitioner in the Probate, Admiralty and Divorce Division of the High Court of Justice. She accused her husband of desertion and of drinking, and produced a letter in which he asserted that they had never "pulled together."

Suit Is Not Divorce Action.

A suit for restitution of marital rights under the English law, according to Charles J. Dolan, St. Louis lawyer and former member of the British Parliament, is not a divorce action, but a measure often resorted to by those who have conscientious scruples against divorce. The Hope Nelsons are Catholics.

"When a husband or a wife has abandoned the home," said Dolan, "the injured partner may bring suit for a compulsory resumption of the marriage relations. If the Court grants the petition and the defendant fails to comply, then the petitioner may seek a court order for an allowance.

"The nearest analogy on this side of the water would be a suit for separate maintenance. The proceeding is a relic of the days when the ecclesiastical courts of England had jurisdiction over all matrimonial cases."

Mrs. Hope Nelson testified to her marriage in St. Louis, and related that she and her hsuband made a continental tour, and afterwards made their home at Wellsbourne, Warwickshire. Later they resided in Mount street, London. There were no children.

Husband Was in Army.

In August, 1914, she stated, her husband obtained a commission in the British army, and was assigned to a depot in Dublin, where his wife joined him. In January, 1916, he was sent to France, and falling ill in June, resigned his commission and went with his wife on a trip to the Pyrenees. In September of that year she returned to St. Louis on account of her father's illness, later rejoining her husband. He returned to the army, and was demobilized in December, 1918. Thereafter, according to the petitioner, he refused to see his wife or to return to their home in Mount street.

Letters exchanged between the two were introduced in evidence, in which Mrs. Hope Nelson reproached her husband for drinking, appealed to him to give up his mode of life, and pleaded with him to return. His reply was that they had never "pulled together." Her letter was as follows:

> 121 Mount st., Feb. 25, 1919.
> Dear Jim:
> It is now a very long time since we lived together. Your neglect of me and unkindness to me and your refusal to give up drinking has, as you know, made me most unhappy and has well-nigh destroyed my married life. I have time and time again begged you to give up your present mode of life and to return and make a home for me, but unhappily so far without result.
> This cannot go on forever, and I now make a final appeal to you to give up your present mode of life and come to me or make a home where I can come to you. Please let me hear from you.
> YOUR WIFE.

She went to Ireland and from there addressed a second appeal to her husband, she testified, but without avail. On March 4, last, she received this letter from him:

> Dear Paddy:
> I'm so sorry, but I can't come back and live with you. As you say, we have been a long time apart, but we have never really pulled together.
> Your horses and dogs are very fit, and Success is almost right again. Best of luck. Ever,
> JIM.

After hearing this evidence, Mr. Justice Shearman pronounced a decree of restitution of conjugal rights, with costs, to be obeyed in 21 days.

Met Nelson in St. Louis.

The Valle family is one of the oldest in this section, an ancestor having been commandant of the Mississippi Valley territory when it belonged to France. Miss Isabel Valle made the acquaintance of James Hope Nelson in St. Louis in 1912, when he paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. George Ingraham Drew. Later Miss Valle accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Tom Riggs of Washington on a tour of Alaska, where the young Englishman joined the party. There he proposed and was accepted.

Archbishop Glennon performed the ceremony, and a papal blessing, cabled from the Vatican, was read at the wedding. Miss Valle was received into the Catholic Church a few days before the ceremony. A special dispensation was obtained to hold the wedding in the bride's home instead of a church.

Ludendorff's Book.

In today's Sunday Post-Dispatch you will find the first installment of Gen. Ludendorff's own story of why Germany failed to win the war. In St. Louis, the Post-Dispatch alone will print the story.

PARKING LAW IS CAUSE OF ARREST OF ROBERT E. LEE

Authority on Automobiles, Being a "First Offender" Is Released at Police Station.

Robert E. Lee, an authority on matters pertaining to automobiles, who recently, at the invitation of Judge Mix, shared the bench in Police Court one morning with the Judge to observe the disposition of traffic cases, was himself arrested at noon yesterday for violating the one-hour parking law. His machine was parked at Sixth and Locust streets for an hour and 40 minutes.

Lee is vice-president of the Auto Review and chairman of the Automobile Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, a meeting of which he was atending while his car was overstaying the limit. When he came out, Policeman Linderman was waiting for him, and took him to the Central District station.

"I'm surprised, Mr. Lee," said Capt. Doyle.

"I'm just as much ashamed of it as you are," Lee replied. "The fact is we were cleaning up some matters connected with the President's visit, and I didn't realize how the time was passing."

"Maybe I'd better give you a book of traffic rules," said the Captain.

"It's not necessary; I know every one of them by heart," said Lee.

"Well, go and sin no more," Capt. Doyle him, and Lee was released.

Meantime, during the noon hour, 16 other persons were arrested on the same charge, and all were told to appear in Police Court Monday morning. They didn't know the Captain. Lee did, and as a result will be spared the embarrassment of appearing as a prisoner in the court where he was a guest a few weeks ago.

Capt. Doyle said it was Lee's first offense, and he "guessed that was a pretty important meeting at the Chamber of Commerce." Lee lives at 4384 Forest Park boulevard.

SALOON KEEPERS WILL PROTEST AGAINST HIGH COST OF BEER

Meeting Today of Dealers Who Are "Tired of Slaving for Brewers."

The Retail Liquor Dealers' Association will consider the high cost of beer at its meeting at Albrecht's Hall, 200 South Broadway, this afternoon. Saloon keepers are complaining of "war profiteering" by brewers. In a circular calling the meeting John P. Pensa, president of the Association, says:

"Let's get together and find out why prices are bordering on robbery, If retail liquor dealers are tired of slaving for the brewers let them stop work for a moment and join hands with fellow dealers for the purpose of eliminating the profiteering hog."

The same circular states that $12 a barrel for beer and $1.30 a case for bottled beer is a reasonable price, but, the question is asked: "Why pay $16.50 a barrel and $1.50 a case when the market is overloaded with barley and hops?"

The wartime prohibition act was passed primarily as a food conservation measure to prevent the use of barley and other grains from being used in manufacturing "beer and other intoxicants."

ARMY OBSERVATION BALLOON TO MAKE EXHIBITION FLIGHTS

Exhibition ascensions by the army observation balloon No. 659 will be made at the field at Grand avenue and Meramec street today, beginning at 9 a. m., and continuing until all the three officers and 43 men of the Twelfth Company have been up, two at a time They compose the balloon crew.

The bag, resembling the head and body of an elephant, is the type made familiar by news photographs during the war. It was sent up from Lindell boulevard and Sarah street Friday, during the passage that way of President Wilson's entourage, but the gas used was so poor that the balloon could not ascend with the weight of a large man.

It was inflated yesterday at the balloon field, a large percentage of hydrogen gas being used, so that it will have its normal lifting power. Officers announced yesterday that the outfit will be here for at least two weeks longer, instead of departing Thursday, as had been scheduled. Exhibitions will be given during that time, to stimulate recruiting. The company had active service in the Argonne and at St. Mihiel.

HEAD OF GERMAN ARMY NOT SURPRISED WHEN WE WENT IN

Had Counted Upon Certain Victory in 1917—Still Hoped to Win Through Submarine Warfare Before Our Army Could Arrive in France in Force.

By Gen. Ehrich von Ludendorff.

THE United States declared war on us on April 5, 1917. The collapse of Russia, the success of our submarine campaign and the desire to use their forces to combat the U-boats must have been factors in their decision. On Feb. 3 America had broken off diplomatic relations with us, and I doubt whether it would have been possible to come to terms with her in the meantime without disturbing the basis upon which the submarine campaign was being conducted.

The attempt on the part of our Foreign Office to establish military relations with Mexico strengthened public opinion against us in the United States. In spite of my warning, the Foreign Office had used an antiquated and easy decipherable secret code.

Soon after America's declaration of war the whole world was ranged against us, only a few states, including the Argentine and Chile, preserving their neutrality in face of enemy pressure. The American declaration of war included all the states of the Quadruple Alliance, with the exception of Bulgaria, where the American representative continued to hold his post at Sofia. The German Government failed to secure his recall through the Bulgarian Government, although I requested them several times to do so. This failure brought heavy retribution upon us later.

(Note.—Dominic I. Murphy, the American Consul General at Sofia, was credited with great influence with the Government in the days preceding the Bulgarian surrender and is said to have helped greatly in bringing about the decision.)

It was not a matter of surprise to me that the United States joined the ranks of our enemies. I had reckoned upon their doing so, provided the balance of war continued in our favor, even if the unrestricted submarine campaign had never been opened. As far back as the spring of 1915 an American correspondent on the eastern front had expressed views to this effect, and they certainly did not reflect his own personal opinion alone.

America had never known Germany in time of peace, and she now viewed us and all the events taking place in Europe through the glasses of Entente propaganda, strengthened by her ties of blood with England. The German-American population had little influence. To appeal to their loyalty for the country of their birth as against the country of their adoption, as we did for a time, was clumsy and bound to produce an unfavorable effect. I have not been able to get a clear account of the attitude of the Irish section of the population. The oppression of this unfortunate country left the United States cold.

Wilson's reply to the Kaiser's letter of the autumn of 1914, in which the latter appealed to America's sense of justice with regard to the Belgian atrocities, gave food for thought. America was led by economic interests even more and more to the side of the entente, for England had surrendered to her the position she had hitherto enjoyed as the first capitalistic Power in the world. The entente was deeply in America's debt, and their defeat would have involved her in heavy loss.

The attitude of the United States in regard to the question of the supply of munitions left no doubt about their one-sided conception of neutrality. England's monstrous violations of international law at sea were only possible as long as America connived at them. In a conversation at the Foreign Office several years before the war I was assured that America would never agree to such tactics. We reckoned with certainty on unlimited imports through Holland.

As a matter of fact, the American Government did actually raise objections to the arbitrary methods of English naval warfare. The American note of protest on March 30, 1915, was couched in serious language. It asserted in unequivocal terms that the so-called British blockade was "an almost unqualified denial of the sovereign rights of the nations now at peace," and continued with the warning that to tolerate England's procedure in this respect would be to assume an attitude of unneutrality to the present enemies of Great Britain which would be obviously inconsistent with the solemn obligations of this (the U. S. A.) Government in the present circumstances."

This declaration was perfectly plain. A second American note of Nov. 5, 1915, emphasized the fact that the so-called blockade of March 11 of the same year must be considered ineffective and therefore illegal. Both protests were bluntly rejected by England. The United States Government accepted the rebuff. According to its own verdict its attitude to Germany for nearly two years was unneutral.

The opinion of the German Ambassador, Count Bernstorff, on these proceedings is contained in a memorandum to the Government and people of the United States, published in the Times of April 13, 1915. It runs as follows:

> If the American people desire to observe true neutrality, they will find the means to stop the exclusive export of arms to one side, or, at least, use this export trade as a means to uphold legitimate trade with Germany, especially trade in foodstuffs.

Quotes Choate and Sims

From one-sided favoritism to open partisanship was but a small step. I will mention only two instances. Mr. Choate, the late American Ambassador in London, wrote on April 7, 1917, to Earl Grey:

> As you know, I have thought from the beginning that while for the time being we might better serve the cause of the allies by remaining neutral and supplying all that we could in the way of arms and munitions, and, I am happy to say, some men, as our neutral right was; that nevertheless, when by entering into the war with all our might and with the aid of all our boundless resources, we could help to bring it to an end in the right way by the complete suppression of Prussian miltarism and the triumph of civilization, it would be our duty to do so. That time has now come.

And on June 3 the American Admiral Sims spoke as follows in London:

> In 1910, when our fleet visited England, I made a small but very undiplomatic speech. * * * In that speech I expressed an opinion which is now being translated into action. * * * This is what I said: "In my opinion, if the time ever comes when the integrity of the British Empire is seriously threatened by a European coalition, you may count on every ship, every dollar, every man and every drop of blood of your kinsmen across the sea."

Very characteristic of the views of American official circles is the following conversation, which took place between a certain reliable personage and an American Consul-General, and it is in complete harmony with the opinions given above. Asked whether the Lusitania affair had really led to American intervention, the Consul-General replied:

"No, that was only the match that set fire to the straw, and it has been fully exploited as propaganda. But for this we should have had to find other convincing reasons for coming into this business! If we had not joined the allies we should have been nowhere after the war! Now we expect to be number one—and we shall be number one!"

Picture of America as Dictator

To the question as to what part America would play as number one, he replied: "Germany was undoubtedly the most industrial country in Europe before the war. We in Americal and England saw to what an exalted height Germany was climbing, and realized that in a few decades she would reach the pinnacle of power and be in a position to dictate, not only to Europe, but to the whole world. She had become a menace, and we in America recognized the fact. For this reason we tackled the problem and thought we understood it. We are convinced that our people will take the lead after the war. It is we who are going to dictate, not only to Germany, but to the whole of Europe. The nations will expect great things from us, above all, peace. And they will get it, but on our conditions and at our price!"

"Will America impose her will on her allies?"

"Yes, indeed she will. But they will get better conditions than other countries (the Central Powers), just as we (America) shall get better conditions from them (the allies). It is all a matter of business. That is what war has always been!"

The American Consul's prediction regarding his country's position after the war was ill-founded, though only because the revolution rendered Germany defenseless and gave world dominance to Great Britain. For America could no longer count upon any opposition to England in Europe. However that may be, the war was certainly no matter of business for Germany. It was forced upon us. Our economic future and independence were bound up in it; to us it was a question of life or death.

Used U-Boats, Fearing Defeat

I will not discuss how far the above opinions coincided with those of President Wilson and the majority of the American people. All that need be said is that they became supreme. Under the pretext of the submarine campaign America entered the war against us at a period critical for the Entente. Whether, without the excuse afforded by the U-boats, she would have done so in time to prevent our winning the war in 1918 is open to doubt. But it is impossible to say how events on land would have turned out if the submarine campaign had never been opened.

As a matter of fact, on Jan. 9, 1917, no one could have foretold the collapse of Russia, and nobody calculated upon it. With the help of our submarines we reckoned on a decision in our favor, at the latest before America, with her new armies, could intervene in the war: WITHOUT THEM WE CALCULATED THAT THE QUADRUPLE ALLIANCE MUST BE DEFEATED IN 1917.

As it was, the history of this year took a completely different turn; the Western front held firm, but the submarine campaign brought no decision and Russia collapsed.

On the Eastern front we were in condition of neither peace nor war. A solution then became possible of which no one could have dreamt before the autumn of 1917: namely, to aim at a decision of the war on land in the year 1918 by means of an offensive, which must succeed if the submarines had by that time been able at least in so far to reduce enemy tonnage that the quick transport of the new American armies was out of the question, or even if a certain proportion of the transports had been sunk. The navy counted upon being able to do this.

Bernstorff Pleaded for Delay

In the middle of January the supreme army command received from the Foreign Office a transcript of a dispatch from Count Bernstorff Jan. 10, to the effect that the note dealing with armed merchant vessels (the note issued later, on Jan. 31, declaring unrestricted submarine warfare) "would frustrate President Wilson's proposals for intervening to negotiate peace.

This surprised me, as all idea of any definite intervention by the President had vanished. Count Bernstorff could not be referring to anything else than the step taken by the President on Dec. 18, which was not officially answered by the Entente until Jan. 12, but was definitely put an end to by that answer, as we had anticipated.

I was unaware of any new step or proposal and so was the Chancellor. He accordingly replied to Bernstorff on Jan. 16:

"We are resolved to take the risk" (of rupture and even of war with the United States).

This cablegram had probably not reached Count Bernstorff when he wired again to the Foreign Office:

"Unless military considerations are absolutely decisive it would be highly desirable to postpone institution" (of unrestricted warfare). "Wilson believes he can secure peace on the basis proposed by us of equality of rights for all nations."

In forwarding us this cablegram the Secretary of Foreign Affairs wrote that he had urged the Chief of the Naval Staff to lessen the danger of a rupture with America by fixing certain definite periods of grace for neutral ships, which the Ambassador had proposed. I at once replied that we agreed to this. It is clear that the Foreign Office had not concluded, even from this second communication from Bernstorff, that there was any modification of the general situation, for the Secretary would otherwise have mentioned it.

Drew Up Terms for Wilson

I never had a clear understanding of the correspondence between the Government and the Ambassador; indeed, I only learned of it in fragments.

I knew nothing of the progress of the negotiations with the United States. The Chancellor and the Secretary of Foreign Affairs complained of the difficulties of communication and of the resulting ambiguities. They had, of course, to use every possible chance to avoid a

The Army and the Civil Government Lost the War!

—VON TIRPITZ

The Stupid Heads of the Government Lost the War!

—VON LUDENDORFF

These captions fairly epitomize the explanations of Germany's colossal failure made by her two chief military leaders, Gen. Erich von Ludendorff and Grand Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz, whose memoirs the Post-Dispatch begins publishing on this page. However neither writer tries to excuse his department of responsibility entirely, but sets out to prove, each in his own way, that the final collapse of the German military machine was the result of the sum of mistakes made by others.

Ludendorff, of course, has to record that in the end his armies were beaten in the field, but he strives to soften this painful admission by setting forth excusatory circumstances over which he had no control. He gives the date, Aug. 8, 1918, when he knew that utter defeat could not be avoided, and he urged the civil Government to negotiate for an armistice.

Von Tirpitz, regarding himself as the father of the new German navy, is bitterly critical of the policy which he declares kept him from striking a blow at England in the first days of the war, which might have "changed the face of the world." He arraigns Von Bethmann-Holweg for the weakness and stupidity of the policy which refused to see England as the one great enemy, the Power to be crushed at all costs. He lays stress on the Kaiser's blunder in accepting Prince Henry's statement that he had King George's assurance England would remain neutral. He takes responsibility for unrestricted submarine warfare and only regrets it was not begun earlier.

Frankness is the keynote of Von Tirpitz's book. He does not undertake to conceal duplicity, but urgently recommended it as the means to the end, especially in the negotiations with the United States. In conclusion, he baldly writes:

"These memoirs written by me give support to the necessity for a monarchical government. If they further strengthen faith in ourselves, it will be the last service I can render to my country."

Obviously, both Ludendorff and Tirpitz seek to justify all that Germany did.

The memoirs contain a mass of diplomatic and military material as well as intimate personal matter, including letters written by Von Tirpitz to leading notabilities of Germany during the war, and even more intimate letters of criticism of leaders and the conduct of the war to his wife.

They form an important and highly interesting contribution to the current history of the great war.

The memoirs will be continued in daily installments.

NAVAL CHIEF THOUGHT ONLY OF BEATING BRITAIN, CHIEF ENEMY

Von Tirpitz From the First Urged Full Use of the Fleet, and Pressed the Military Commanders to Break Through to the Channel Ports at All Costs.

By Alfred von Tirpitz,

Grand Admiral of the German Navy.

GERMANY was forced into the world war prematurely. Bethmann-Hollweg precipitated the war after Austria had gained a diplomatic victory which would have enabled the Central Powers to postpone the crash until Germany was really ready.

Of course, it was finally Russian duplicity that forced Bethmann-Hollweg's hand. The Emperor also made a mistake when he believed Prince Henry, who, on his return from England, reported that King George had told him England would remain neutral. The Kaiser erred in accepting this statement.

I frankly questioned this report to the Emperor and he promptly rejoined.

"The word of a King is good enough for me."

I deny that ruthless autocracy and a bellicose military caste let loose this war. The Emperor, in particular, did not want war and our misfortune did not proceed from the acquisition of power, but from our weakness which did not know how to use that power either for the purpose of preserving or concluding peace. In addition, we were steeped in illusions about our enemies, the nature of their war aims, their conduct of the war and the nature of the economic war.

I regret I will be compelled to speak the truth in these memoirs about persons still alive, although, in speaking that truth, I do not desire to impute to them ignoble ends.

Appointed to Supreme Command

In June, 1892, when appointed to the chief supreme command, the Kaiser personally charged me to develop the tactics of the high seas fleet. I had at that time gone through a better strategical apprenticeship than any other officer in the German navy. The task, which had been set me in 1877, of developing the possibilities of the torpedo and torpedo attack, confined me for a time to a purely technical field of action. The stiff, minutely exacting work of developing this branch of the naval service was dry material, and little in my line then, though, like mathematics, it trained me to proceed methodically, and little did I appreciate of what use it would be to me in the years to come.

I soon realized, however, how important it was to master the laws of this new naval weapon since it opened out great prospects for the warlike virtues of the German people who, I saw, in the future would be forced to combat the larger navies of the older, and then richer, countries. The precise method of procedure that I had learned in previous training soon proved of great advantage to me in the technical experiments required in this branch of the service. During the period of this assignment in the torpedo service I spent the 11 happiest years of my life.

After I had been placed in supreme command of the German navy, the English paid no attention to the progress we made for some period. The attention of the British was first drawn to the improvement, development and work of the German fleet by some official document which fell into their possession. These were either stolen by a spy or recovered from a sunken German torpedo boat. We of the German navy never were able to determine which, but I believe they were obtained from the latter source.

About 1896, however, a feeling developed in the British navy that we were their rivals at sea, and, when they once began to regard us as such, they at once commenced to study us minutely and, in fact, to adopt our methods, especially in battle maneuvers. Of course, they will never acknowledge that they learned anything from us, but it is nevertheless a fact, quite clear from the first, that the British fleet owed to us a new incentive, and a new spirit was thus developed.

It was characteristic of the German position in the world that our navy, which as yet had no ships, so to speak, was already a leader in naval methods. We soon realized that either we would have to build more ships ourselves or permit others to use our ideas, so we chose to build. Although, when the world war broke out, the period of England's tactical torpor and vague maneuvering was long past, we, even at that time, were superior to the British in the quality of our ships as well as our tactical performances. However, they were still numerically superior, in spite of our efforts in building a navy.

I consider that these years comprised my best work for Germany. They were devoted to developing the navy, its methods and maneuvers and to inspiring the fleet with an unsurpassed military standard. But, as with all other German leaders, the tactical, strategical part of my life work lacks the stamp of crowning success.

At the beginning of the war, the unfounded prestige of the British fleet robbed the men then at the head of German affairs of courage to allow our fleet to strike for victory at a moment when it had the best chance of success.

Thus England won a psychological naval victory at the beginning of the war without firing a shot.

The sea fight off the coast of Jutland (battle of the Skagerrak) might have changed the face of the world's history if it could have been fought to a finish. It was interrupted by nightfall.

The bitterest fate which befell the German fleet and me was the fact that I was not permitted to sail with the fleet to take part in that battle.

The Battle of the Skagerrak was the climax of our belated efforts to compete with England on the sea. Our endeavors were always concentrated in developing the army, and the eyes of the German masses were for the first time opened to the necessity for the construction of a fleet after the Jameson Raid took place.

The telegram from the Boer President, Kruger, following this raid, and asking for German support, fell like a bolt from the blue. These established relations between the South African Republics and Germany, revealed by this telegram, resulted in a great outburst of hate, envy and rage against Germany in England.

The German public opinion at this time applauded the Kruger telegram. In the years following, this telegram was a nucleus for repeated wordy wars against England. I consider that this telegram as well as all subsequent provocations of England were regrettable and dangerous. This attitude on the part of the German public betrayed a complete lack of comprehension of England, of her power, and of her weaknesses. This still more imperiled our attempt to create an adequate navy, in itself difficult because delayed. However, this was an opportune time to use our best efforts to develop sea power and build an adequate navy since England, because of her isolated position and her own difficulties with the Boers, then was so preoccupied that she was not as likely to observe our endeavors.

These developments were all reflected in the events during the first months of the World War.

As in previous years, my advice as to the conduct of the war was consistently rejected. From the first, I made every effort to convince Bethmann-Hollweg that England was our principal enemy and that land victories for Germany were futile unless England should be beaten on the sea.

Two More Corps Would Have Won

I had no previous knowledge of Schrieffen's plan of attacking France through Belgium and I directly attribute that its failure resulted from the War Office not having foreseen and provided for the military requirements which were bound to be the consequences of this attempt at a gigantic outflanking movement.

VON TIRPITZ TELLS OF THE GERMAN NAVY

In both 1911 and 1912, I recommended the addition of two army corps to the German forces. I now believe, and German Grand Headquarters indorsed this opinion, that if these two army corps had been added when I urged it, the war against France would have been won in 1914. I was perpetually warning the German military leaders against underrating the British army. At the outbreak of the war, I again took pains to warn the Chief of the General Staff against thinking too lightly of these British troops, which army, so to speak, consisted entirely of sergeants. He answered:

"We will arrest them."

I further insisted to Von Moltke, in 1914, on the importance of getting to Calais and severing British communications, but Von Falkenhayn, then chief of staff, thought otherwise, although Von der Goltz indorsed my opionion and backed me up.

This, in my opinion, could only have been achieved by bringing out the High Seas Fleet and not by a sweeping movement with light forces alone.

Following the stand made by our enemies which defeated our flanking movement and halted our operations, Von Moltke was a doomed man, and the reins of the German army were trailing on the ground. This reverse destroyed the unity in army operations, since our carefully laid plan for the sudden invasion of France was defeated. Von Moltke's successor did not give the impression of being master of the task before him, which, after the stand made by the French in the first battle of the Marne, grew limitless. The operations had now developed into a war of exhaustion. Up to this time but one thought had dominated our army: that it could not be stopped. The arresting of our forward movement at the Marne was a terrible blow to the army leaders and left them stunned and baffled as to the future.

In a war of exhaustion, thanks to the naval supremacy of our enemies, their superior number must become more and more effective. In spite of all our early victories on land, unparalleled for their completeness, the German army now found itself in a generally disadvantageous position. There is no question that after the first battle of the Marne the army leaders should have learned anew, but here again the supreme command failed to pursue the great final aims.

I agree with Treitske. In any war there must be a definite paramount political aim on the attainment of which all political and military aims must be concentrated. The principal opponent is the deciding factor in determining this paramount aim. Partial victories over secondary opponents are, at best, only a means to an end but are never decisive in the ultimate result. Everything should have been concentrated against England. She was our principal opponent and all our aims and plans from the first should have been directed against her.

Our leaders could not see that no dividing up of the Czar's empire, for which our German diplomacy and German democrats were striving, could assist us in the ultimate outcome unless we hit directly at our principal opponent, which was England, and which, up to the time of our setback at the Marne, had never been taken seriously into the considerations of our military leaders.

I lament that I was cried down as a pessimist in the Lion d'Or Hotel, Charlesville, for saying:

"There is no officer of G. H. Q. who does not believe the war will be ended before April 1, 1915, except the Secretary of State for the Navy."

In England I was regarded as an opponent whose isolation within the German Government was looked upon with great gratification. In spite of this prevalence of the unintelligent, continental point of view in our army, its position would not have become dangerous had the Chancellor gone hand in hand with me. In August, 1914, I said to the Chancellor and Von Jagow:

"Whatever we achieve against Russia does not press upon England. Rather it relieves her. Circumstances have forced us to fight on a front not corresponding to our political interests. The German-Russian war is very popular in England. English statesmen are absolutely determined to hold out to the end. Our future can only be safe if we harass England. It is absolutely necessary to occupy Calais and Boulogne."

To this the Chancellor replied:

"I think we must limit ourselves in the West, if successful there, to whatever our armies attain, and hold those positions and then turn our forces to the East."

In August, 1914, the Chancellor said to a mutual acquaintance:

"War with England is only a thunderstorm which will soon blow over. Afterwards our relations will be better than ever."

(Copyright, 1919, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

(In the second installment, to be published tomorrow, Von Tirpitz deplores Bethmann-Hollweg's vacillating policy toward England and discloses hitherto unknown facts about Germany's plans for a conquest of Russia and its hope then to come to an understanding with England.)

How Mueller Boilers Save Fuel

The advantages in construction of Mueller Boilers are readily apparent on examination. Let us show you how the fire pot is designed with its large, direct fire heating surface and large coal carrying capacity; how the overhanging dome is built to bring the greatest possible amount of heating surface in direct contact with the radiant heat of the fire; how the construction of these boilers permits complete combustion, making them practically smokless in operation.

These are some of the Mueller features that mean greater heat with less fuel. Moreover, you can count on the Mueller Boiler as a long time investment. The parts are arranged so they are not affected by contraction or expansion. Built, all through, for long life.

LUDENDORFF'S STORY OF THE GREAT WAR

rupture with the United States, in spite of the existence of the unrestricted campaign.

Drew Up Terms for Wilson.

On Jan. 29, unexpectedly, so far as I was concerned, Chancellor von Bethmann and Secretary Zimmermann arrived at Pless. We were bidden to attend a discussion with the Emperor over a new proposal for intervention by President Wilson. The Chancellor read a dispatch which he had drafted for transmission to Count Bernstorff, in which he proposed that we should declare for peace on the status quo ante basis.

So far as I remember the dispatch proposed the submission to President Wilson, then or on any later opportunity, the following claims as the basis for possible peace negotiations:

Restoration of the portions of Upper Alsace occupied by France.

A frontier securing Germany and Poland strategically and economically against Russia.

Restoration of colonies on the basis of an agreement securing to Germany colonial possessions corresponding to her population and her economic interests.

Return to France of the territory occupied by Germany, subject to strategic and economic rectification of frontier, and to financial compensation.

Restoration of Belgium, subject to definite guarantees for Germany's safety, which would be negotiated with the Belgian Government.

Economic and financial adjustment on the basis of the exchange of conquered territories given up by either side to the other on the conclusion of peace.

Indemnity to German concerns or subjects injured by the war.

Renunciation of all economic measures or treaties calculated to interfere after the conclusion of peace with the normal trade or communication, and the conclusion of the commercial agreements necessary thereto.

The guaranteeing of the freedom of the seas.

These are the only German conditions which ever reached the enemy from our side with any co-operation on my part.

Resented Sharing the Blame.

The Chancellor did not suggest a postponement of the unrestricted campaign, but the Ambassador was authorized to explain that our Government was ready to order the cessation of the campaign immediately any basis for peace negotiations was worked out that offered any real hope of success. The Field Marshal and I agreed to this.

The whole discussion took place in one of the Emperor's rooms and occupied but little time. The Emperor's birthday presents were still lying about, and I remember in particular a fine picture of the cruiser Emden. I know no more than the above as to the circumstances surrounding this diplomatic step, nor the course which it followed. I mentioned to the Field Marshal, after the discussion was over, my resentment at the manner in which our co-operation in these tremendously important decisions had been obtained. Although we had no clear knowledge of the situation, we had to bear our share of the moral responsibility.

On Jan. 31 our note as to the declaration of the submarine campaign was delivered in Washington, as also, I assume, was the Government's above mentioned proposal of Jan. 29.

After Jan. 9 there were no military reasons whatever to cause either the Field Marshal or myself to modify our views as to the urgent need for the unrestricted campaign.

According to a report from the Chief of the Naval Staff at Vienna, the Austro-Hungarian Government also decided to wage unrestricted warfare with their submarines. I welcomed with gratitude this loyal act on the part of our allies, which I had, of course, confidently expected. The new campaign could only be really effective if it included the Mediterranean, where prospects of success seemed particularly good; the important thing was to sink as much shipping as possible. Gen. von Conrad had also advocated the adhesion of Austria to the campaign.

Denies Coercion of Austria.

When later, in 1918, Count Czernin stated that he had adopted this policy in order to avoid a quarrel with Germany he stated something that was quite new to me. There was never any idea of bringing military pressure to bear on Austria-Hungary.

In judging public opinion on the matter at home, regarded as a very important element the sitting of the Reichstag of Feb. 27, in which it appeared that, after the failure of our peace offer, the German people were practically unanimous in supporting the Government. The leader of the Majority Socialists, Herr Schiedemann, while refusing any responsibility for the submarine campaign, spoke as follows:

"Everyone will understand the deep satisfaction which we felt when we learned that the Government had made an offer of peace to the world, based on views similar to our own. When the enemy's notorious reply to Wilson stripped the veil from their plans for conquest and annihilation, the determination to defend our country resolutely was again restored. There was then but one voice: Anything rather than such a peace!

"No one had expected that the enemy would accept the German invitation to a conference without some show of reluctance, without emphasizing their own strength, without a certain maneuvering for position and preliminary negotiation; but it is equally certain that no one had anticipated a tone so brutal and provocative, or a peace program so extravagant, so utterly at variance with the facts of the situation. They will never wipe way the stain of the crime against humanity committed by their brutal refusal of Germany's peace offer.

"Lloyd George is the true godfather of our Government's resolution to adopt the unrestricted submarine campaign. Once this resolution has been taken, and the campaign has begun, we, too, can but hope with all our hearts that it will bring us peace quickly. We trust in the national strength, now fully mobilized, to achieve what our enemies hold to be impossible. Our honor, our existence, our free economic development, must come unimpaired out of this terrible struggle."

That was a noble profession of faith, and in the face of the enemy's will to annihilation a call to fight to the last. One hoped that it might be realized.

Report of New Diamond Field.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—Information has reached here that a new African diamond field has been discovered by officers of the British Geological Survey in the Gold Coast. The stones are found in shallow quartz gravel, 65 miles northwest of Accra, capital of the colony. About 600 gems have been found by panning during the preliminary operations.

The SILVERTONE Cabinets

SILVERTONE cabinets are the finest product of the skilled cabinetmakers' art. Whether of oak, walnut or mahogany, every cabinet is a handsome piece of furniture—dignified, graceful and artistic in appearance. They are fitted and finished with that exquisite cars and perfection which marks the work of the painstaking artisan.

Tone

Tone is the all important thing in a phonograph. Tone quality depends upon the reproducer, tone arm and amplifying chamber. Each must be correctly designed and proportioned and harmonized in its relation to the other two so that all will act together as a unit. This has been done in the SILVERTONE and that is what constitutes its musical perfection. The SILVERTONE reproducer faithfully restores every tone quality that went into the making of the original record. It accurately reproduces every delicate shading of tone, every minute variation of volume and density, every sound vibration, whether it be the strains from the violin of a master, the silvery tones of the harp, the heavy instrumentation of a military band, or a vocal solo.

Tone Control

The SILVERTONE is equipped with a tone modulator which gives complete control of the volume of sound. It serves the same purpose as the doors on the Victrola or the shutters on the Columbia Grafonola. You may set the modulator at any desired point, giving a uniform volume of sound, either loud or soft as desired. Or the modulator may be manipulated while a selection is being played, thus enabling you to give your own interpretation to the music.

Fitted With Powerful and Silent Motor

The motor used in SILVERTONE Phonographs has been tested and improved and then tested again until is is now as perfect as mechanical and human efficiency can make it. It is powerful, silent, smooth running.

Plays All Disc Records

The SILVERTONE convertible tone arm permits the playing of any make or size of disc records, including the Columbia, Victor, Edison, Pathe or any other disc record. And it plays them all with the purity and richness of tone that marks the perfect reproducing instrument.

The SILVERTONE Guarantee

We guarantee SILVERTONE Phonographs to be the equal in musical excellence, richness of tone, accuracy of reproduction, beauty and quality of material and finish and mechanical perfection, of any phonograph made. Why Firestone gives much more in this Cord Tire

THE dealers say there is no argument—the Firestone Cord, compared side by side with any other, sells itself.

No wonder. It is so much bigger. It is built to the largest standard oversize of the industry. For example—

It has much greater air capacity than the average.

It contains much more material than the average.

And it delivers extra mileage in proportion.

The thicker, heavier tread that looks and feels the part of its extra mileage is another reason why it sells itself.

So if you are not "in the know" about the mileage Firestone Cords are giving, don't buy another tire until you find out.

They are built like the Firestone Giant Cord Tire for trucks, only more supple, more resilient, tensioned exactly to the character of the car that their size is intended for.

This Cord is not only the largest standard oversize, but it has a thicker, heavier non-skid tread, good for thousands of extra miles of travel.

And that tread is as good as it looks from the standpoint of preventing skid, slide or spinning of wheels. It has a tractive power never before equalled in a rubber tread, yet it has no inclosed hollows or suction features to be a drag on speed or a drain on power.

The cords are treated and the tire is built by the same methods used in the Firestone Giant Cord. And this Giant Cord is one of the reasons why over half the truck tonnage of America is carried on Firestones.

That indicates what Firestone has done for Cord Tires.

The buying of tires for trucks is a cold-blooded business proposition. Mileage must be the answer. And Firestone gets the business.

Business men who operate trucks have Firestones on their passenger cars. Profit by the experience of those who make a business of buying tires.

Firestone has built an organization that is known as the dynamo of the industry.

Motor Experts Study Fuel Supply Problem

Makers Recognize Need of Adopting Motor Design to Meet Conditions of Low Grades of Gasoline.

THAT the automobile manufacturers of the country are thoroughly alive to the serious and very necessary problems presented in the future gasoline supply and the utilization of the existing low grades of fuel so as to give the greatest measure of motor car efficiency is seen in the committees recently appointed from the petroleum and automobile interests to discuss the questions of fuel supply and use.

That the subject requires the most careful consideration was exemplified in the preliminary Government report on the mineral resources of the United States in 1918, which stated that despite the fact that the unprecedented demand by both army and navy for fuel oil and gasoline led to the marketing of more petroleum than in any previous year, the percentage of increase was the smallest in five years and drafts upon pipe line stocks were the largest yet recorded.

Continuing, the report added:

"The relatively slight increase in the face of the urgent demands serves notice of the early approach of the period when the curve of the production of American wells will be downward rather than upward and emphasizes the necessity for the acquisition by Americans of additional foreign sources of supply if the needs of the United States as the world's greatest consumer of petroleum are to be met.

Outline Difficulties.

At a recent conference of the petroleum and automotive industries, at which representatives were present from the Standard Oil Company, the American Petroleum Institute, the Society of Automotive Engineers, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association, it was agreed that the representatives of the automotive industry should outline in considerable detail the various difficulties which the automotive engineer and car user faces in the use of present-day gasoline, and also endeavor to state clearly the fuel problem as it appears to the automotive industry, for the purpose of aiding the fuel industry to prepare to meet the problem, so far as this can be done by the refiners. In addition, the representatives of the automotive industry indicated a desire to adapt the apparatus produced by them to the fuel which the petroleum industry, faced on the one hand by the increasing demand, and on the other by a diminishing supply of crude, can produce.

The subject of fuel specifications was discussed, and it was generally agreed that a fixed specification would be detrimental to both producer and consumer, but that a flexible specification which would be changed from time to time as the exigencies of the fuel supply and demand may dictate, would be useful to all concerned and a great assistance to the automotive manufacturer in enabling him to design his product in such a way as to utilize the fuel most satisfactorily.

Extensive Research Necessary.

The members recognized that the numerous problems involved in a satisfactory settlement of the situation rendered thoroughgoing and extensive research work very necessary. Both the fuel and automotive representatives expressed a desire for the heartiest co-operation and agreed to utilize present laboratory apparatus and other research facilities to the best possible advantage.

A statement was presented from Charles F. Kettering, former president of the Society of Automotive Engineers and its official representative on the Conference Committee, in which, referring to fuel research work in his laboratories, he said that much basic research is still necessary to determine just what phenomena occur during the combustion of fuel in the engine cylinder, but that the research to date appears to indicate that a further study of the problems will enable a satisfactory engine fuel to be produced, even though it becomes necessary, as seems most likely, to cut still deeper into the crude than is now common practice.

Among those who discussed the fuel problems were John N. Willys, Carter F. Clarkson and Herbert Chase of the Society of Automotive Engineers, Alfred Reeves of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and from the petroleum industry, Henry L. Doherty, Dr. William M. Burton, W. H. Isom, Frank Howard, B. M. Clark, R. L Welch and C. C. Smith.

Questions and Answers

Editor's Note—In order that questions may be answered more speedily readers interested in knowing automobile routes, road conditions, etc., should inclose a self-addressed envelope with their query. The answer may then be mailed to you without delay.

HIGHWAY TREE PLANTING

Beautifying Lincoln Motor Way as Memorials to Soldiers.

The planting of trees as soldiers' memorials while contributing at the same time to the attractiveness of the highway has been well started in Lancaster County, Penn., where fifty American elms and sycamores from eight to ten feet high have been set out along the Lincoln Highway between Lancaster and Columbia. This is the beginning of the beautifying of the popular Susquehanna drive.

The elms were selected by direction of the State Forestry Department, which recommends the employment of long-lived, hardy trees for Lincoln Highway beautification.

The work was done under the auspices of a committee of the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce, headed by Charles M. Reiling. The planting was done under the supervision of C. E. Ensin, Division Engineer of the State Highway Department. A score of Franklin and Marshal Academy students assisted in the work.

NEW YORK WILL BUILD 25,000 MILES OF ROADS

Frederick Stuart Greene, Commissioner of Highways of New York, is arranging to have constructed 25,000 miles of roads before the end of his term of office in 1925. He favors hard roads not less than 18 feet in width, saying that they will last for at least 30 years, while the cost for maintenance will be less than for other roads.

PRACTICAL PARAGRAPHS.

Low Water.

Operating the engine without sufficient water or with no water at all may result in injury to the spark plugs. To give service without cracking the plugs must be properly cooled and provision for this is generally made in the water jacketing system. When the water runs low the plugs become hotter and there is great danger of their being damaged.

Tool Arrangement.

An admirable idea in the arrangement of tools in the home garage is to give each tool a number, which is painted on it. The same number is painted on the walls or racks in the place where the tool belongs. In this way it is a simple matter to return each tool to its proper place so that it is ready when it is next needed.

Rim Paint.

Car owners should be reminded that shellac is not satisfactory for painting rims; it peals off too quickly. Graphite paint is better for this purpose and even ordinary paint is to be preferred to shellac.

Tire Chains.

Tire chains are practically always used in wet weather and care is necessary to keep them from getting rusty. The chains should always be dried off before they are returned to the tool box after use. Especially should the clamps be looked after. A little cup grease or vaseline will prevent rusting and eliminate the trouble of prying them open or using a hammer to close them. There should always be carried in the tool kit a crosspiece tool and one or two extra cross chains. With this tool broken cross chains may be removed or replaced very easily.

Inserting Small Screws.

It is often difficult to start by hand the small screws such as are used in the magneto, speedometer, etc. An easy way around this difficulty is to hold the screws between the legs of a pair of calipers, a drawing compass or even in the slot of an ordinary steel pen. The screw is then driven home by the small screwdriver. The same method may be used in replacing small nuts located inaccessibly.

NEW MODELS

HAYNES "12"

A four passenger roadster in blue with disc wheels, the first of the new 1920 Haynes with motor of 12 cylinders, arrived in St. Louis last week and was delivered to O. F. McLaughlin, general manager of the U. S. Reduction and Atomizing Co., by the Wilson Motor Car Co.

While the 12 cylindered motor was produced by the Haynes company about three years ago it hasn't been featured as much in the past as now. The larger motor appears this season in all the new styles, of which there are nine, with the exception of the limousine. The sedan, coupe, limousine, touring car and roadster comprise the body creations. These bodies are all interchangeable on either the six or 12 cylindered chassis, except the limousine which is mounted on the six-cylinder chassis only.

Several of the new 1920 "light six" touring cars arrived in the same shipment and are in the showroom.

The principal improvements are the adoption of aluminum body cowl ventilator, water-tight windshield and heavier crank case which gives greater rigidity to motor base. Something new in crankshaft bearings are now used in the motor. In place of the bearings of white metal only, a die-cast bearing with a bronze backing is used.

Wooden wheels are standard equipment for the "light six" while five wire wheels comprise the standard wheel equipment of the Haynes "12."

1920 STEARNS

Three of the new 1920 models of the Stearns car in a 5-passenger landaulet-brougham, 3-passenger straight-seat roadster and 4-passenger coupe were put on display in the showroom of the Newell Motor Car Company last week.

Changes in the mechanical department of the new Stearns are slight. The motor has been reduced in weight by the adoption of an aluminum crankcase to replace the one of cast iron used formerly.

Improvements in the body lines are more numerous. The radiator is higher in the 1920 model, having some features that savor of the Rolls-Royce. During the war the Stearns company was selected to manufacture Rollys-Royce aviation motors in this country. This significant experience, which required unlimited precision, is reflected in the new Stearns car. The wheelbase has been increased from 119 inches to 125. Rear springs are of 50-inch, flat, cantilever type.

In the landaulet-brougham model, which is an all-season town car, there is seating capacity for five persons in the rear, with a two-passenger straight seat in front for chauffeur and footman.

Interior decorations are in walnut, with brown broadcloth to match. Metal trimmings are in bronze finish.

GOOD ROADS BENEFIT COMMUNITY'S HEALTH

Medical Magazine Points Out Highway Importance.

That good roads are of vital importance to the health of a community and particularly to those who live in rural communities is shown in interesting fashion in an article which appeared recently in Modern Medicine.

It is pointed out by the writer that there are fewer doctors, fewer nurses and practically no hospital facilities in the rural district. In some communities even in older states, there is only one physician to 1500 people.

The reason is found in the fact that lack of means of getting around presents a hardship which most young doctors do not care to face when urban practice is at hand. With better roads and highway transportation facilities this will be overcome, and the authority who writes the article says that as soon as better highways become general the tendency will be toward rural rather than urban practice.

CROWDED HOTELS DO NOT WORRY MOTORISTS

Country hotels are more crowded this season than ever before, so many tourists are seeking relief by carrying their bedrooms with them. Dealers are showing various devices to serve for sleeping quarters which can be conveniently carried by tourists.

One such contrivance is ingeniously arranged to serve as a dressing room and bedroom combined. The "tent-o-bed" does not necessarily have to be used in connection with the car, but can be erected anywhere.

GET DOPE ON HOW ROADS ARE RUINED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Interesting tests designed to show the impact pressure exerted on pavements by motor trucks are being carried out by the Bureau of Public Roads, and by these experiments the Government officials hope to obtain definite information which will permit them to design high types of pavement which will resist definite traffic conditions.

DRY THE TOP.

Never fold the top while it is wet. If the car has been driven through the rain, keep the top up until it is thoroughly dry, because a wet or damp top folded up will mildew, which very quickly destroys the fabric. In folding the top take care to get each fold even and eliminate all wrinkles. The metal frame pieces should be separated by rubber pads wherever they rub together and the whole should be firmly secured by straps, so as to prevent rubbing and rattling.

Poor Roads; Poor Churches

FERTILE land and good roads mean healthy, growing churches; poor farming and bad roads mean spiritual, as well as material, decay.

A few miles of rocky, rutty road separate the farmer from contact with his fellows. A few short miles keep him away from new ideas, new thoughts, new methods; a few short miles of bad road can almost destroy the social spirit which is the very essence of religion.

Separating the farmer from his markets and his people, and almost divorcing him from his church, most emphatically the problem of better roads is a problem in applied Christianity.—Southern Churchman.

MIRRORS REQUIRED ON NEW YORK VEHICLES

Effective Sept. 1, the Booth bill recently enacted by the New York State Legislature requires that every motor truck, omnibus and motor commercial car of one ton capacity or more, operating on the highways outside of the first and second class cities, to be equipped with a reflecting mirror. Harry T. Gardner, manager of New York's Automobile Dealers' Association, is warning all his members to "look out."

A. S. Frampton of Chicago, vice president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., was in St. Louis on a business visit during the last week. He is a brother of R. C. Frampton, president of the company.

Monday	7:51 p. m.
Tuesday	7:50 p. m.
Wednesday	7:48 p. m.

FEDERAL HIGHWAY COUNCIL CHAIRMAN TO SPEAK HERE

Co-ordination of Efforts of States in Good Road Programs to Be Sought.

The need for co-ordination among the various states in their road-building program in order that the needed results may be accomplished will be embodied in a lecture entitled "Why National Highways?" to be given by S. M. Williams of Washington, D. C., chairman of the Federal Highway Council, at a good roads meeting to be held in the ballroom of Hotel Statler on Monday, Sept. 15, at 12:30 p. m.

The Good Roads Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, assisted by the St. Louis members of the Missouri Council of the Federal Highway Council, are in charge of arrangements.

W. A. Lippman, a member of the executive board of the Missouri Council, said the meeting will be open to the public. Invitations are being sent all organizations in the city interested in the development of good roads and St. Louis' welfare, as well as officials of various good road organizations throughout the State.

Road-building programs of various states throughout the Union exceed $365,000,000, exclusive of vast sums being spent in Federal aid.

Lippman said Williams will speak on the necessity of having the highway systems of adjacent states dovetail if they are to serve the traffic needs of the people.

ASTOR CUP AGAIN?

New York racing men are discussing a proposal for revival of the Astor cup races, with the first contest at the Sheepshead Bay speedway, Sept. 20. If the project is carried out, A. A. A. contest officials declare a 200 or 250 mile race will be held, with a purse aggregating $25,000.

U. S. ARMY PUTS SPEED LIMIT ON ALL OF ITS CARS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.

THE service division of the Motor Transport Corps has prescribed maximum limits of speed, both in town and county, for all motor vehicles under its jurisdiction; a case of emergency furnishing the only exception. Instructions also provide that speed plates giving the maximum speed allowed be stenciled and installed in every motor vehicle; that violations will be carefully noted, disciplinary measures promptly taken, and that local speed regulations will not be violated.

The speed regulations, as stated in the order, are:

Idea of What Good Roads Mean to Motorist Is Had in Short Trip in Illinois

Six-Mile Stretch of Concrete Road Between Belleville and Shiloh, Ill., Recently Opened to Travel—A Pleasant Trip for Several Hours' Run at This Season.

AN idea of the added pleasures that are in store for touring motorists when the time comes that good-road programs which are general throughout the United States have been completed, and all principal highways in the various states built of durable materials, is to be had in a tour over a circut of approximately 40 miles from the Post-Dispatch building, which passes through Belleville, Shiloh and O'Fallon, Ill., returning to St. Louis over the Lincoln Trail by way of French Village, Edgemont and East St. Louis.

A stretch of concrete road more than six miles in length connecting Belleville and East St. Louis has but recently been completed and opened to travel at an expenditure of approximately $25,000 a mile. It has the appearance of a large white ribbon as it stretches far in the distance across the undulating plains of which the geography of this section is composed. As the white highway ascends the crests of hills ahead it narrows, to the eye, with each rise. The contrast of colors in the fields and woods that border on the road afford many beautiful views, here and there.

The opening of this stretch of road makes available 14 miles of concrete highway for the use of the motoring public in this vicinity. The other stretches of concrete road which have been built in recent years is a six-mile stretch between Edgemont and Belleville and a two-mile stretch from French Village to a point beyond Greenwood Cemetery in the direction of O'Fallon. The concrete road from Edgemont connects with the brick paving in Belleville, making the road hard surfaced the entire distance from Edgemont to Shiloh. From Shiloh to O'Fallon the road is macadam, which varies from rough in short stretches where it is in need of repair to very good where it is oiled and maintained in good condition through O'Fallon, and for several miles beyond. Later it becomes a graded dirt road, which connects with the concrete road leading into French Village. Along this stretch of dirt road there are some very pretty views across broad expanses of cultivated lands. On nearing French Village the concrete road winds through a beautiful valley with pretty bluffs on either side. From French Village the road is of cinder construction and in good condition. Belleville Pike from East St. Louis to Edgemont is in fair to very good condition. State street and Illinois avenue in East St. Louis are brick pavements in very good condition. Thirteenth street is also paved in brick and in better condition than other streets that parallel it. Broadway is also brick paved and in fair condition. Tenth street is brick paved, with but few rough stretches between Broadway and the Free Bridge approach.

On this trip, which is a pleasant one for a several hours' run either during the evening or at the weekend, there are 29 miles, approximately, of hard roads, either concrete, brick or macadam, and about seven miles of dirt road. During the spring and at other wet seasons of the year there are stretches of dirt road on this tour that become sufficiently muddy that it would be advisable to make inquiry after much wet weather as to its condition, especially between French Village and O'Fallon, before making the trip.

At this season of the year they are solid and in good condition.

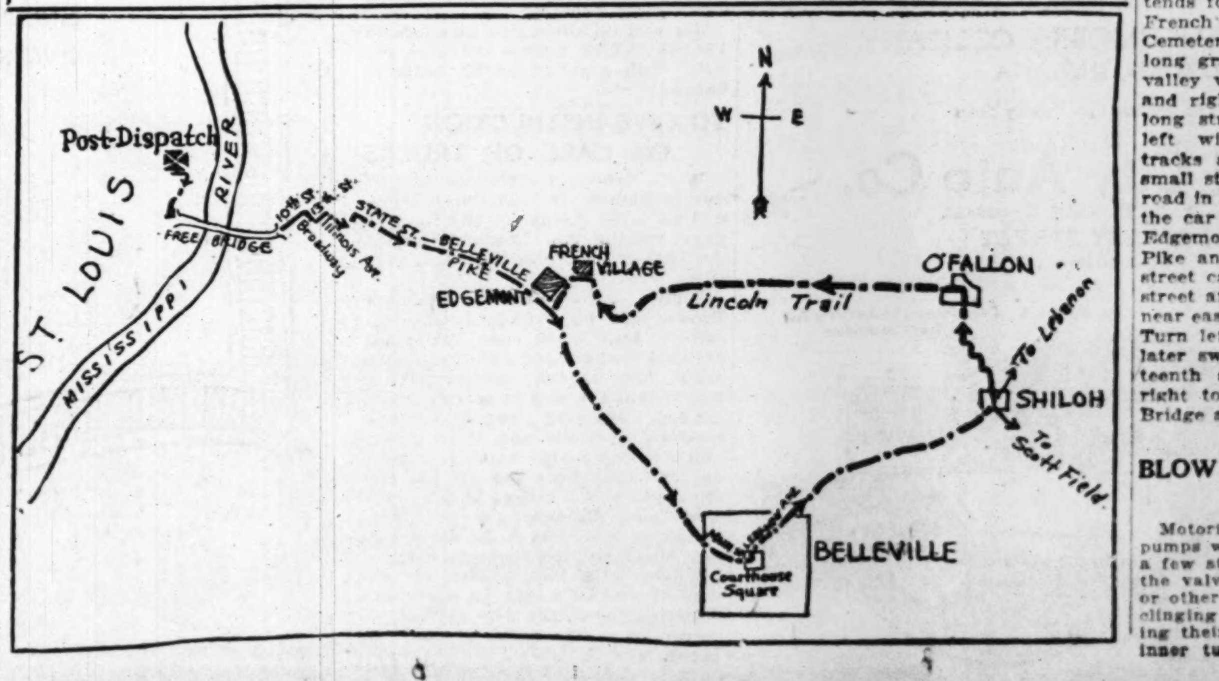
Route for Tour No. 14

From Post-Dispatch Building go south to Chestnut, east to Seventh street, south to free bridge. From East St. Louis end of bridge continue straight ahead over Tenth street to Broadway, the first east and west paved street with street car tracks, turn right, passing Lincoln School, a large modern brick structure on right. Continue on Broadway to Thirteenth street. Turn left on Thirteenth street to Illinois avenue. At Illinois avenue turn right. Follow Illinois avenue, which is in good condition, being paved in brick, to State street. A parked strip about twenty feet wide in the center of the drive separates the two lines of traffic on Illinois avenue. Turn right at State street on brick pavement, crossing railroad shortly beyond. The Belleville Pike, which is a graded dirt road, starts after crossing the railroad tracks. Its condition is fair to very good, motorists having to use care, though, in crossing several wooden culverts where the road is in need of repair for a short distance in each intsance.

At Edgemont the dirt road ends and a concrete boulevard begins which extends for five and a half miles over rolling country, with very pretty scenery, joining with four and a half miles of brick paving leading into Belleville, affording motorists an excellent drive. The tracks of the East St. Louis and Belleville street car line are in the center of the drive, separating east and west bound traffic. Follow the car tracks along Main street to the Courthouse Square, in Belleville. Turn left inside the square, passing bank on left, to Lebanon avenue, also a brick pavement in exceptionally good order, continuing straight ahead in northeasterly direction, running onto new concrete boulevard. This stretch of concrete road is six and a half miles in length, extending to Shiloh. At Shiloh the road straight ahead is the route to Lebanon and to the right is the way to Scott Flying Field.

To go to O'Fallon turn to the left at end of concrete drive in Shiloh onto macadam road that is tarred for a short distance and in good condition through the village but becomes rough in stretches beyond, making it necessary to drive slowly at times where ruts that vary in depth from 6 to 8 inches have been worn in the hard-surfaced road. Jog right and left for several miles, meeting the markers of the Lincoln Trail at the interjunction of the road from Lebanon on the southern outskirts of O'Fallon. The markers of the Lincoln Trail, which are L T, are painted red and blue, respectively, with the L above the T on a background of white. These markers have been recently painted and are well posted. They mark the route to St. Louis, which turns to the left after crossing the street car and railroad tracks in O'Fallon, recrossing the railroad tracks shortly beyond and paralleling them for a distance. The road along here is oiled and very good. Continue straight ahead, using caution where road is blocked near this point on the western outskirts of O'Fallon while new concrete culvert is being built. Traffic is now detoured on a temporary road to the north of the road around the construction work, which should not take more than 10 days to complete. Continue straight ahead at four corners with old-fashioned well on left. Avoid road to right at three corners with frame school on left. Continue straight ahead with markers over dirt road in fair condition running onto concrete boulevard that extends for more than two miles into French Village, passing Greenwood Cemetery on left, then descending long grade and winding through valley with beautiful views to left and right. In French Village with long street car trestle ahead turn left with travel across railroad tracks and iron bridge that spans small stream running onto a cinder road in good condition that parallels the car tracks at Edgemont. At Edgemont turn right on Belleville Pike and continue west, paralleling street car track running onto State street after crossing railroad tracks near eastern limits of East St. Louis. Turn left on Illinois avenue, which later swings to the right, to Thirteenth street, left to Broadway, right to Tenth street, left to Free Bridge approach and St. Louis.

Post-Dispatch Suggestions for Tours---No 14



BLOW DIRT OUT OF HAND PUMP FIRST

Motorists who use one of the hand pumps will do well to give the pump a few strokes before attaching it to the valve. This blows out any grit or other foreign matter that may be clinging to the pump valves, preventing their finding their way into the inner tube.

NEW LIBERTY FACTORY IS NEARLY COMPLETED

Motor car men and even construction experts are amazed at the speed with which the buildings of the Liberty Motor Car Company of Detroit are being completed.

Only two months after actual work was started on the group of new factory buildings, the first of them is practically ready for occupancy.

While the first sod was turned on May 21, it was not until June 2 that actual construction commenced. The unit nearing completion, which is to house the closed body mountings, experimental and service departments as well as a restaurant for the Liberty people, is a concrete brick and steel structure and so arranged that it may be lengthened and an additional story added when necessary. In fact, arrangements are already being considered for enlarging this building in the spring.

USE FOR A CUTOUT.

The much-abused cutout has one positive virtue if no other; it may be used for determining the condition of the fuel mixture. By running the engine after dark and throwing on the cutout the flame that issues therefrom will tell exactly the condition of the mixture. If the flame is blue or colorless, the mixture is correct, whereas a red flame indicates an excess of gasoline and a yellow flame the presence of too much air.

ST. LOUISAN MOTORS 6500 MILES IN 54 DAYS

S. R. Howe, general manager of the Mississippi Valley Sales Co., in the Victoria Building, has written a letter to the Cole St. Louis Auto Co. telling of his experience with a car he purchased there in June. At the time the letter was written the car had traveled 6500 miles, he said, in 54 days, or at an average of 120 miles a day.

The letter in part follows:

"On June 16 I purchased a 1919 seven-passenger model Cole-eight from you, and to date have had such remarkable success with same that I desire to inform you of the test it has been through.

From June 16 to July 16 I traveled approximately 3000 miles in and around the city of St. Louis.

On July 17 I made a flying business trip to Chicago, Ill., and return, and if I am not mistaken I believe I hold the record of 15 hours on the return run.

On July 22 I started on an Eastern trip, passing through Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, Toledo, Detroit, Windsor, London, Hamilton and Toronto, Canada, returning by way of Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, Chicago, Springfield and St. Louis.

I had no punctures on the entire trip until five miles outside of St. Louis. At that time my meter registered 6455 miles.

The motor acted splendidly on the entire trip and outside of a little carburetor adjustment in Toronto, hands were kept off.

Gas and oil consumed amounts to $147.98, which figures .02 plus per mile, with gasoline at 37 cents in Canada.

TO GIVE INSTRUCTION ON CARE OF TRUCKS

W. O. Brown, district manager of the Bethlehem Motors Corporation, will be in St. Louis for the next 10 days making his headquarters at the Bethlehem Motor Sales Co., 3917 Olive street.

While here District Manager Brown said he will devote his efforts to impressing upon the minds of truck owners and chauffeurs the need for proper lubrication of trucks that the best of service might be had. He said steamships, locomotives, sawmills and other power plants receive this attention every day, but that there was not one motor truck in a hundred that got the same care though they are subjected to three times the service of any other power plaint, he said.

Brown said instructions on the care of trucks would be given any chauffeur or owner who applied, irrespective o fthe make of truck he drove.

Truck Corporation Holds Excursion for Employes

The steamer St. Paul last Wednesday night carried probably one of the largest excursions of one individual company ever held on its decks in employes, friends and relatives of the Traffic Motor Truck Corporation of St. Louis. The excursion was the gift of the vice president, T. C. Brandle, as an outcome of his offer to hold a special boat ride provided the production department of the new traffic plant at 5200 North Second street, succeeded in turning out trucks for the month of August as per schedule, which was accomplished. The new Traffic plant affords facilities for turning out a completed Traffic Truck every 18 minutes.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 1, 2, and 3, a national convention of Traffic salesmen and State representatives throughout the United States was held, and terminated in their participation in the boat excursion. The boat was loaded to its fullest capacity.

BIG SPEEDWAY FOR TEXAS.

DALWORTH, Tex. Sept. 6.—At this point, just half way between Dallas and Fort Worth and only 15 miles from each city, there will be built an automobile speedway by the Dalworth Park and Race Track Co. It will be constructed of brick. The project has been financed and it is planned to have the track finished by Nov. 1.

The track is to be three-eighths of a mile longer than the Indianapolis speedway, giving Texas the largest speedway in the country. Two grand stands are to be constructed having a seating capacity of 50,000.

OPERATING TRUCK AN ART

"The motor truck industry," says R. H. Spear, president of the All-American Truck Co., Chicago, "is awakening to the necessity for more competent truck drivers. Public universities and private schools are arranging courses designed to fit men for the tasks connected with motor truck operation. The reason for the general tardiness with which the essential nature of the problem has been recognized can be found in the apparent inability or unwillingness of the truck users to visualize the duties of the driver.

"The work of driving a motor truck has been generally and too often considered a form of work but little advanced above that of driving a team and as a result what is really an art has shrunk into the category of menial labor. The true function of the driver must be thoroughly understood if he and his employer are to obtain the maximum satisfaction from the service he performs."

The Rottersman Automobile and Truck Co. has been demonstrating the capabilities of the Wheat tractor for which they are distributors, to farmers and truck gardeners in the St. Louis vicinity. As the result of one of the demonstrations a tractor was purchased by Thomas Shields, a dairyman of Eureka, Mo. The Wheat tractor is equipped with a set of solid rubber-tired wheels for use on the highways and metal traction wheels for work in the field.

Stearns MOTOR CARS

The Car That Stays Young

Frequently one hears of Stearns cars which have traveled more than 100,000 miles.

They seem to be endowed with the qualities of everlasting youth.

This is far from being an accidental result.

It is partially due to the principle of the Stearns-built Knight engine.

And to an equal extent to the sturdiness of the Stearns chassis.

Mr. Knight himself has testified that Stearns practice adds greatly to the effectiveness of the Knight principle.

And it is an undeniable fact that Stearns cars do not grow old in the ordinary sense.

As we have said before, the fine Stearns performance of the first day the car is driven is also its minimum performance.

It steadily grows more silent, more smooth and more flexible.

Thus the ordinary process is quite reversed.

Stearns owners buy for years of service.

They buy less frequently because their cars stay young.

And only an extraordinary inducement ever causes them to change to another make.

PLAN ARMY MOTOR SHOW.

Plans for an exhibit of the army's motorized ordnance equipment, together with the captured German trucks parked at Camp Holabird, Md., are being considered by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and the Society of Automotive Engineers. It is proposed to seek Government sanction and co-operation for housing of the machines at a convenient point, at the Maryland camp, in Washington or in the West, so engineers may study there, particularly the German equipment, with a view to obtaining suggestions for improvement of future truck designs.

HOW TO CARE FOR TREAD CUTS

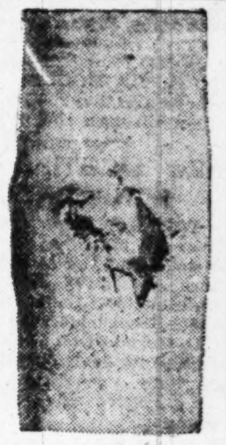

Fig. 3

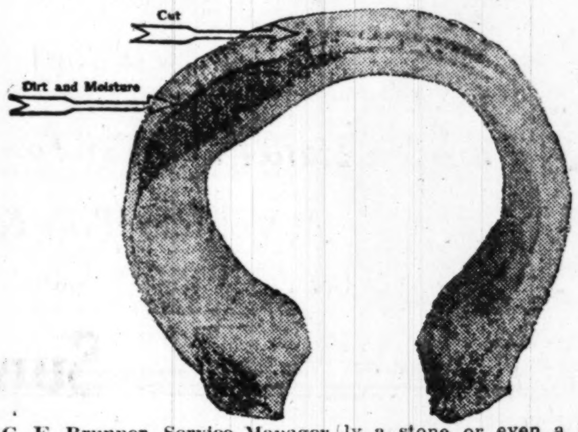
How a Neglected Tread Cut Will Ruin a Tire



By G. E. Brunner, Service Manager the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

Every stone-chip, piece of glass, bit of iron or tin, switch-point and the like inflict cuts on the toughest tread when fairly hit by the tire. If even one of these is neglected, it may cost thousands of tire miles.

A tread cut is very much like a wound on the sole of a runner's foot. If he runs with it, the pressure of his weight will extend the cut and make it gradually larger. Dirt and grit will be forced in, will be crushed into the flesh, and the wound will fester and spread infection until it is thoroughly cleaned and properly dressed. Then proper steps must be taken to let nature fill it up.

In a tread cut the results of inattention are very similar. The elastic tread rubber is constantly spread by the weight of the car and the shocks of the road, so that even a small cut in a new tire enlarges rapidly. At the same time dirt, sand, and even small stones are forced into the wound until they go entirely through the tread and into the carcass. Water, of course, also enters, furthers tread separation, and rots and weakens the carcass. Eventually a stone or even a bump in the pavement, hit at a fair speed, will bring a bad blowout. It may be so bad that neither tube nor carcass will be able to deliver more than a fair number of miles for the money invested in repair.

RESPOND TO FIRE ALARMS AND REPAIR GAS LEAKS

Special equipment to safeguard the citizens of Boston against asphyxiation, explosions and the numerous other dangers that are likely to arise where there is gas and fire, has been installed by the Boston Consolidated Gas Co. The equipment consists of 15 emergency motor trucks, each of which is fitted out with all the tools and materials necessary to cope with anything from a gas leak to a conflagration. The cars are stationed in different sections of the city, responding to every tap of the fire gong that signals danger in their district. In addition they are subject to call for every gas leak of consequence. Each car carries a carefully picked crew of three men.

All the trucks are built on Dodge Bros. chassis.

Each truck carries as a part of its equipment, a pulmotor for use in resuscitating persons overcome by gas or smoke; two gas masks which enable the wearer to penetrate dense gas or smoke, or even ammonia fumes with comparative safety; every sort of emergency tool for work on gas pipes and mains, including a variety of wrenches, bars, and hammers; two fire extinguishers; a ladder to be employed in descending into cellars and man-holes; rescue ropes, rubber boots and coats; and a first aid kit.

TIRE SALES INCREASE WITH RAISE IN CARFARE

In Boston, Where Fare Is Ten Cents, Many Residents Now Ride Bicycles.

When street car fares were increased last month in Boston to 10 cents the surface lines were collecting 900,000 fares daily, according to local newspaper estimates. As a result of the increase it is estimated traffic fell off one-third, to 600,000 fares.

What became of the lost traffic, represented by 300,000 fares daily, is now becoming evident.

The Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron reports a stimulated demand for bicycle tires already in evidence. The old "bike" has been brought out of the attic and retired. Many prospects who had been hesitating over the purchase of an automobile decided to buy, while people of less means turned to the bicycle

Eventually there will be revealed in Boston and other cities of the country in which car fares are raised, an increased consumption of footwear, according to commercial forecasters. The nickels and dimes of those who have neither bicycles nor automobiles will be spent for shoes.

Tire dealers are wondering if the bicycle will "come back" in St. Louis when the trolley fare reaches 8 cents.

MUST HAVE MECHANICAL SIGNALING DEVICE

According to a ruling made by Chief of Police White of San Francisco, all closed cars must be equipped with a mechanical or electric signalling device.

"It is my interpretation of the California Motor Vehicle act that all enclosed motor vehicles should be equipped with an electric or mechanical device so that proper signal may be given in order to turn, stop or change the course of such motor vehicle.

"All enclosed cars should be equipped with rear sight mirrors when in the event of its being so covered, loaded or constructed as to obscure the driver's vision of the highway to the rear. And due to such interpretation, I intend to enforce the law in that respect."

Clarence Higgason, who has been for a long time connected with the Fisk Rubber Co., St. Louis branch, has been appointed general representative for the State of Florida for the Traffic Truck Corporation of St. Louis. Higgason will assume his new duties in a few days.

Prices for Michelin Tires for small cars:

30 x 3	$14.40	$15.60	$3.35
30 x 3½	18.90	19.90	3.95
31 x 4	—	27.90	4.50

(Note: Prices do not include war-tax)

Michelin Tires of all sizes are famous for their durability. This is equally true of the smaller sizes, which surpass all other makes for sturdiness and service. For example, the tread of the 30 x 3½ Michelin Universal, is over ¾ of an inch thick. Let us show you a section of this tire in comparison with other makes and judge for yourself whether you too, should not use Michelins.

HIGHWAY MARKETS CAUSE NEW TRAFFIC PROBLEMS TO ARISE

Auto Parties Stop on Heavily Traveled Highways to Feast on Fruit.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Eastern auto tourists feasting along the roadsides on California fruits threaten to cause a revision of the traffic laws in the vicinity of Los Angeles.

A curious situation has developed as a result of what are called "highway markets." These are fruit and vegetable stands scattered throughout the suburbs on the edges of orchards and truck gardens.

The trouble comes from auto parties stopping on heavily traveled highways to purchase the tempting displays fresh from the fields. Congestion and delay result, especially where the little markets are opposite each other, as is frequently the case. There is no law to enforce a motorist to shorten his stay or move off the road.

In the case of repairs on a car, or other necessities for stopping, the law decrees that the four wheels of the car must be off the road. In buying fruit and vegetables, however, the car may stop as long as the owner desires in the roadway. The tourists are delighted with the present arrangement, while the natives, although not wanting to displease their guests, are appealing to the Chamber of Commerce and the Automobile Club of Southern California for some sort of relief.

NEW MODELS.

There is an electric dome light, dictaphone and umbrella or cane rack.

A 7-passenger sedan of the 1920 series is expected to arrive by Sept. 12.

NEW DORT

Several hundred dealers from Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois were in St. Louis during the last week inspecting the new 1920 Dort five-passenger touring car and the new Reo "Light Six" at the Kardell Motor Car Co.

This is the first of the new models of the Dort car to arrive, and when the company was certain of the date of its arrival invitations were sent to all dealers in the territory, that they might inspect the two new models and arrange contracts. Test runs have been conducted all during the week, the ascent of Art Hill in high speed being one of the requisites.

Improvements in the new Dort include the removal of the gasoline tank from beneath the cowl to the rear of the car; top is now of leather, replacing the one of mohair; a hand emergency brake replaces the foot emergency brake of last year. There are other minor improvements which include a change in the design of the fenders, which are more rounded than formerly. Heavier hubs are used in the wheel construction.

Other models, which include two-passenger roadster, five-passenger sedan and three-passenger coupe are expected in St. Louis by Oct. 1.

As a further indication of business expansion, The Federal Rubber Company of Illinois, announces the establishment of a distributing center in Oklahoma City, Okla. This was found expedient because of the increased demands for its products in the Southwest.

THEFTS IN 5 YEARS BOOST INSURANCE ALMOST 2000 PER CENT

Change in Rates on High-Priced Cars Slight—Owners of Low-Priced Cars Suffer.

How thefts of automobiles have boosted theft insurance rates, in some cases nearly 2000 per cent in five years is shown in a report to the National Automobile Dealers' Association by the Automobile Insurance Co. of St. Louis from records compiled in St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, Detroit, Denver, Memphis and Wichita, Kan. Figures for other cities are about on a parity with the rates quoted. The tables furnished are for Buick, Cadillac, Dodge, Fords, Packards and Pierce-Arrows. The table reveals that it is the owner of the small, light, low-priced car that is suffering principally at the hands of automobile thieves the rates on the larger cars having increased only slightly. Cities that border on two or more states, it has been found, are the most fertile fields for automobile thieves. Cars stolen in one state are easily driven across the line and then the state in which the car was stolen is powerless to summon as witnesses the parties to whom the stolen cars are disposed of.

To correct this condition Representative Cleveland A. Newton of Missouri has a bill which he will introduce shortly to make it a Federal offense to steal an automobile in one state and drive it into another. This would permit the trial court to summon witnesses from any state in the Union if necessary to procure a conviction. The Newton bill was drawn by William Baer, Assistant Circuit Attorney of St. Louis, and is indorsed by the National Automobile Dealers' Association and the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. These two organizations are co-operating to obtain the support of all commercial organizations and of all automobile trade associations and automobile trade journals.

REO

Announcing the Arrival of that New Reo "Six"

Our first Reo Six—that new Reo Model about which motorists have expressed such a lively interest—has just arrived.

It is the handsomest car ever turned out of the Reo shops.

And mechanically it is the epitome of Reo experience—the ripest in the industry—as it is also the crowning achievement of Reo engineering.

We are tempted to use up a lot of space telling you of the many points of superiority of this latest Reo, but we purposely refrain—for we want merely to whet your appetite and excite your curiosity so you will come in and see it.

For only then can you appreciate the tremendous strides that have been made in design and construction and finish of a motor car.

We will say this—in one regard this Reo transcends all others—even its own predecessors.

That is in the lubricating system.

Can you imagine—you experienced motorists—how much longer the life and how much greater the satisfaction of driving an automobile if you could be certain that every moving part—every part not only of motor, transmission, and axles, but of chassis as well—were constantly and positively bathed in oil?

Well you will find in this new Reo Six a lubricating system that guarantees just that.

Need we say more to induce you to come in at your earliest convenience to see—to study in detail—to ride in—and to yourself drive—this latest product of the Reo laboratories.

This is the "Six" you asked us to build—a six of that quality that guarantees satisfactory performance with longevity and low upkeep.

United States Royal Cord Tires are standard equipment, front and rear, on this new Six.

Throbless Action

As you sit in the rear seat of a Hot Spot Chalmers you can neither hear, feel, nor sense an engine in the chassis.

You have a feeling of some invisible monster towing you through space. There's no jerk, no throb, no vibration, no shaking of body or fender.

This is because Hot Spot predigests the raw gas after it leaves the carburetor—"cracks it up fine"—puts the low grade gas of the hour into perfect shape to get out all the power that nature put in.

CHALMERS MOTOR CAR CO. Detroit, Mich. U.S.A. Quality First

Ram's-horn, greater in many ways even than Hot Spot, rushes the "powdered gas" an equal distance to each cylinder with the speed of lightning. So that each cylinder gets its share alike; no left-over, no foul gas being passed to any one cylinder as in so many engines.

Result: vibration is absent, throbs are impossible, and you get motoring de luxe such as you never before experienced.

MUD AND DUST CAUSE MOTOR TO WEAR RAPIDLY

Seemingly Tight Joints Allow Dirt to Pass Through to Moving Surfaces if Motor Is Not Kept Clean.

Dirt is undesirable no matter where it is, but the average automobile owner has yet to learn that dirt on the running gear does more than merely cover up some painted or unpainted metal. Joints seemingly as tight as a mechanic can get them allow dirt to pass through. The reason for the dirt being so undesirable near working parts of the chassis is not so much because it doesn't look well, but because it eventually gets to a moving surface and starts rapid wear. If you own a watch with a screw back on it and you keep that watch in one of your pockets where odd things are put occasionally, just remove that screw back and notice the dirt that has worked its way in. I mention this merely to show that dirt gets into very small crevices quite easily.

Around the engine and other parts of the car there are supposedly tight joints in addition to actual openings. Take the front and cover, commonly called the timing gear case cover. Vibration may loosen a few of the holding nuts, allowing the cover to move away from the crank case a small fraction of an inch. With an accumulation of dirt over the cover, some of the dirt is bound to get to the gear teeth. Dirt and lack of lubrication of front-end gears are responsible for rapid wear and noisy operation.

Every owner ought to keep the engine clean by an occasional kerosene bath. Spray kerosene all over the engine and wipe off every bit of dirt you can. This goes for the crankcase as well as the parts that you can see when you lift the hood. Dirty oil, oil with sediment, old oil not changed for some time, are all causes of rapid engine wear.

How many owners ever see to it that the combination breather and oil filler is clean on the inside. In some designs there is every chance for a quantity of dirt to settle on the inside and this is washed down into the crankcase when the next oil filling is made.

Loss in Efficiency.

A dirty engine means a loss in efficiency and a premature trip to the repair shop, where the cost of parts replacements will be higher than expected. Take the average road, and many of the larger cars, and examine even the outside of the ignition unit. The Ford timers are usually covered with mud and dirt and this gets inside, cuts the segments, interferes with proper ignition and brings about the need for a new timer in a few months. Look inside of a timer that is generally dirty on the outside and one will find dirt also. Generators and starting motors on the average car do not get very much attention of any kind by the owner, but they deserve a good cleaning. Some starting motors are not fully enclosed while others even, when covered, seem to accumulate dirt.

I would suggest to the owner that when he has a few hours to spare during any one month he give the engine a thorough cleaning, removing dirt from all joints, from oil holes, etc.

The underneath parts of the car are admittedly hard to get at, but that should not be an excuse for total neglect. Underneath the car there may be many places that require oil through small cups, oil holes, etc. While some manufacturers are so far behind as to continue to use oil holes in exposed places, the owner of a car using them should not let them become filled with dirt. If I owned a car with exposed oil holes on cross shafts and other parts I would have a mechanic install automatic feed oil cups.

Mud on Joints.

Sometimes brakes are hard to operate after a trip over muddy roads. It is because mud gets into the joints at the brake bands and other places in the braking system. These parts cannot be properly cleaned merely by wiping. One must dismantle them to get a clean working suface that will operate freely when lubricated. Cleaning of this sort prevents rusting and certainly goes a long way toward making for better handling and car operation.

In filling the transmission and rear axle with oil or other lubricant be sure that the filling hole or opening is clean. Pouring oil into a small opening with dirt all around the outside is bad, because the dirt goes right in with the oil. Then you hear gear noises and wonder how it happened so suddenly.

Universal points at best are hard to lubricate and even if covered with a leather boot are not proof against the ravages of dirt and mud. The more dirt that you allow to accumulate around these parts the more dirt will get to the working surfaces.

It pays to have the car washed underneath, but it also pays to wipe the surfaces after spraying on water. The wiping is necessary because some of the dirt sticks fast. Look over the smaller parts of your car, the parts that are hard to see, and get at, also examine parts that don't give you any trouble. You don't have to do any more than to clean them and lubricate to make them run for a longer period.

LONGEST CONCRETE ROAD

Hundreds of men are now at work on the National Oil Trails road in various Illinois counties across the State from St. Louis to Terre Haute, and indications point to a real highway within the next six or nine months. The road will be 170 miles long and 18 feet wide, and is said to be the longest concrete road in the world.

The Federal Government projected this road, to be built from Washington to St. Louis, more than 75 years ago. It was completed from the capital as far west as Ohio, and surveys were made all the way to St. Louis, as well as some grading, but the development of steam railroading came on and interest in the national highway was lost.

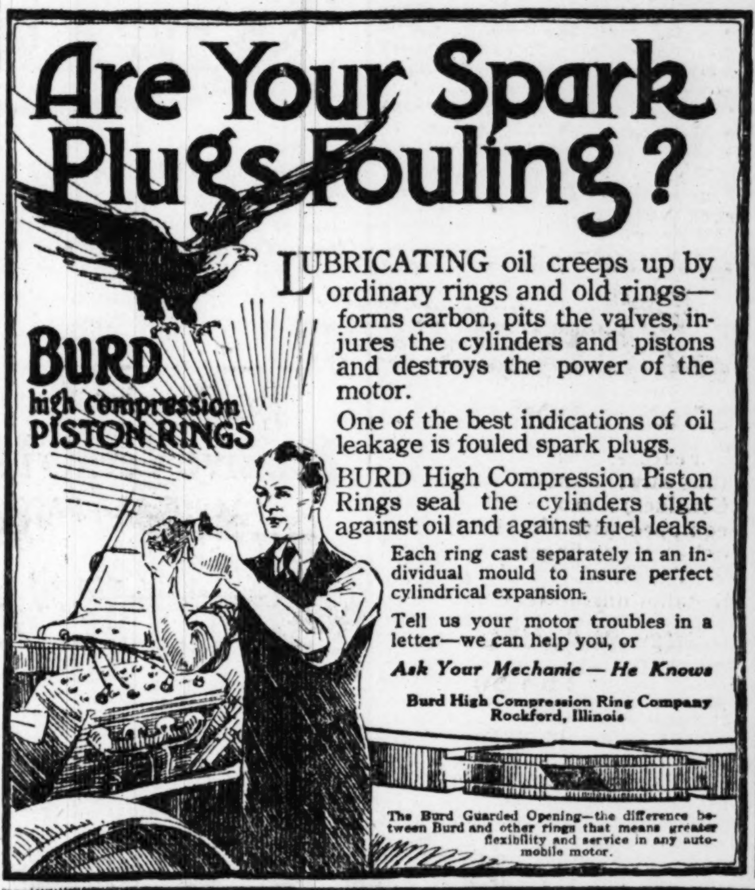
Plans are now under way for improving the road in Indiana and parts of Ohio, as well as in other states from ocean to ocean.

STOCK CAR MAKES RECORD-BREAKING RUN

A wire was received last week by Claude Merry, manager of the Wilson Motor Car Co., announcing a record-breaking run by a stock model Elgin "Six" from Chicago to Indianapolis.

The distance of 193 miles was covered in 4 hours and 6 minutes, at an average speed of 47.7 miles per hour. The fuel consumption averaged 17.3 miles per gallon.

In making the record the car beat the time of the fastest express train between the two cities by 56 minutes. Four passengers and their luggage were carried on the record-breaking run.



Are Your Spark Plugs Fouling?

BURD high compression PISTON RINGS

LUBRICATING oil creeps up by ordinary rings and old rings—forms carbon, pits the valves, injures the cylinders and pistons and destroys the power of the motor.

One of the best indications of oil leakage is fouled spark plugs.

BURD High Compression Piston Rings seal the cylinders tight against oil and against fuel leaks.

Each ring cast separately in an individual mould to insure perfect cylindrical expansion.

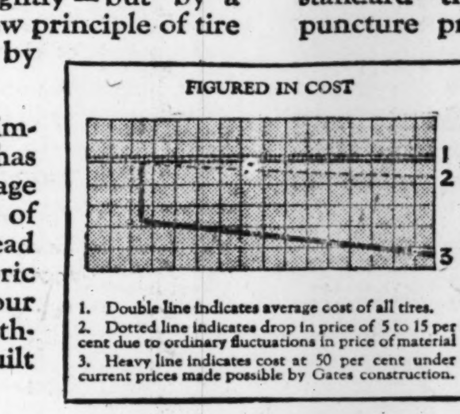
Greatest Reduction In Tire Cost Ever Made

Mileage cost has been cut in half. Not by a saving in material costs or labor—which fluctuate so slightly—but by a radical and entirely new principle of tire construction invented by Chas. C. Gates, E. M.

The Gates principle is simple. After your tire has given you all the mileage you can safely demand of it; when the rubber tread is worn thin but the fabric is still serviceable, your casing is incorporated within a new factory built Gates Half-Sole Tire.



1. Double line indicates average cost of all tires.
2. Dotted line indicates drop in price of 5 to 15 per cent due to ordinary fluctuations in price of material
3. Heavy line indicates cost at 50 per cent under current prices made possible by Gates construction.

This gives you a sturdy, reinforced double fabric strengh tire that will deliver full standard tire mileage—is guaranteed puncture proof and costs only half as much as ordinary tires of corresponding size.

Nearly a million motorists are now using this cost reducing—worry ending tire and over 1250 Gates Half-Sole Tire Service Stations are serving them. The station nearest you is listed below—it will pay you to get further facts and figures today.

Why Brunswick Tires Win Preference

There are two main reasons—one, the name itself, which certifies superfine value—the other, that time tells the same story.

Thus reputation and performance unite in giving you all you expect—and more.

Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires. Many motorists would pay more readily, but the Brunswick idea is to GIVE the utmost, rather than to GET the utmost. And this has been true since 1845. You can appreciate what Brunswick Standards mean by trying ONE Brunswick Tire. It will be a revelation. You'll agree that you could not buy a better, regardless of price.

And, like other motorists, you'll decide to have ALL Brunswicks. Then you'll know supreme satisfaction from your tires—longer life, minimum trouble, lower cost.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT OPENS AT COLUMBUS, OHIO, TODAY

Probably Will Be Last National Gathering as American Legion Is Expected to Take Over Work.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 6.—What is expected to be the last great national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will open here tomorrow and continue during the week.

The fact that the ranks of the old veterans have dwindled to approximately 135,000 and that the American Legion, veterans of the European war, stands ready to take up the work which the G. A. R. has been doing for the last 53 years, leads members to predict that within a few years, the organization of Civil War veterans will be superseded by an organization of their sons and grandsons.

A general order of Grand Commander Clarendon E. Adams of Omaha, inviting soldiers, sailors and marines of the recent war to participate in the parade Wednesday, is pointed to as proof that the old veterans are preparing to bequeath their activities to a new organization composed of those who fought in the world war.

The encampment is scheduled to open with a union religious service in Memorial Hall, at which ministers of all religious denominations will speak. In the evening a musical service will be held at the hall.

Tomorrow evening, Gov. Cox and Mayor Karb will formally welcome the members of the Grand Army of the Republic and the seven affiliated organizations: The Woman's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, Sons of Veterans' Auxiliary, Daughters of Veterans, Ex-Prisoners of War and Civil War Nurses. All these organizations are holding their annual Camp Fire. Wednesday morning, the grand parade, participated in by the G. A. R., Spanish-American war veterans, Sons of Veterans and soldiers of the European war will be held. Thursday and Friday will be business sessions.

It was announced today by former Gov. Campbell, chairman of the local committee on arrangements, that the widow of Gen. George A. Custer, of New York City, will attend and that she will bring with her many relics gathered by Gen. Custer, which she expects to give to the State of Ohio. Gen. Custer was born in Ohio and it is said Mrs. Custer is desirous that the State of his birth shall possess and preserve many of his priceless relics.

CHAPLAIN CELEBRATES MASS AT ALTAR OF RELICS OF MAGI

Americans Attend Service and View Skulls of Three Wise Men from East.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

COLOGNE, Aug. 18.—A British army chaplain celebrated mass recently in the great Cologne cathedral at the altar of the relics of the Magi, the skulls of the three wise men who came from the East to visit the newly born Savior at Bethlehem. American officers and men from the Coblenz area attended the services, and were permitted to view the relics.

Tradition says that the Empress Helend procured the bones and took them to Constantinople, whence they were removed to Milan. In 1164 they were presented by Frederick Barbarossa to Archbishop Reinald von Dassel, who brought them to Cologne. At first they were kept in the chapel of the Magi, the central chapel of the seven flanking the choir, but since the war they have been put away in the cathedral treasury, near the organ.

The bones are kept in a golden reliquary, a costly specimen of Romanesque craftsmanship in the form of a basilica, said to have been made about 1200 A. D. In the Cologne coat-of-arms three crowns are represented, the ownership of the Magi relics having suggested the design.

PRODUCTION STARTED ON NEW OVERLAND CAR

Production of the new light four-cylinder car, held up for the last two years because of war conditions, has been begun by the Willys-Overland Co. of Toledo, and shipments to dealers are being made.

Back of the whole production plan has been the equally great development of the Willys-Overland engineering department. Heading the department are men who played a prominent part in the development of Packard, Cadillac, Pierce Arrow and other notable cars. The development of the new car from an engineering standpoint represents a concentration of skill as intensive as the manufacturing skill concentrated in its production. Chief among the many engineering features of distinction in the new car is the new spring suspension which it is said, after two years of exhaustive test, marks a really notable advance in motor car riding qualities.

More than 30,000 employes in the many allied Willys-Overland industrial plants have taken part in the development and production of the new car. Although the announcement of the new model was made more than two years ago by President Willys, the entire interval, according to him, has been devoted to perfecting details, improving and refining the car, with a view to bringing every part up to the standard of its riding qualities, which are said to be exceptional.

Plans call for an output that will greatly exceed that of any single Overland model yet built. To perfect these plans and bring the new car into actual factory production has required the complete readjustment of the productive program of the Willys allied plants.

A complete new adjustment has been made to a new car program without holding up the production of current models on order from dealers.

PRESIDENT TOLD WALSH HE HAD DEEP SYMPATHY FOR IRISH CAUSE

Report on Conversation Americans Had With Wilson on Ireland Last June in Paris Are Given to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

EXECUTIVE COULDN'T DO ALL HE PLANNED

Told of Work on Peace and Declared Walsh and Dunne by Speeches in Ireland "Kicked Over the Apple Cart."

By wire from the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—President Wilson found it impossible to carry out at the peace conference many of the plans arranged before leaving this country, according to Frank P. Walsh and Edward F. Dunne, who are members of the American commission on Irish independence. Walsh and Dunne today filed with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the text of a conversation between them and the President in Paris, on June 11, of this year. It related to obtaining for Ireland a hearing before the peace conference.

The report was transmitted by the Irish National Bureau, supplementing recent committee hearings. It said Mr. Wilson declined to use his influnce to get a hearing for the Irish representatives, declaring that Walsh and Dunne, by intemperate speeches in Ireland, had made it impossible. Treaties in existence, the President also was reported as having declared, impeded his efforts to procure self-determination for subject peoples.

The Irish memorandum, described as notes on the conference between President Wilson and Walsh and Dunne made by the latter afterward, teemed with sharp exchanges regarding the attitude of the president and others of the American peace commission on the Irish question.

Self-Determination Declarations.

At one time, when reminded of his declarations regarding self-determination, the President is quoted as saying: "When I gave utterance to those words, I said them without the knowledge that nationalities existed, which are coming to us day after day."

In summing up his failure on many phases of his mission abroad, the President is quoted as saying:

"I wish that you would bear in mind that I came here with very high hopes of carrying out the principles as they were laid down. I did not succeed in getting all I came after. I should say that there was a great deal—no, I will put it this way—there were a lot of things that I hoped for, but didn't get."

After meeting with the President, Walsh and Dunne told him they sought to obtain a hearing for De Valera, Griffith and Plunkett. The President called attention to the resolution adopted by the Senate. Walsh said: "The point of our request today is that, if we are to assume these men are not going to be allowed to come here, then we want to advise you that the people of Ireland are in actual physical captivity; that those who would speak for them are not allowed to come here, and are restrained by the force of an army of occupation which is now occupying the country."

"Blockade Against Ireland."

Walsh further stated that England now has a blockade against Ireland as effective as the allies had against the Central Powers; that it amounts to an impost upon every bite of food that the people of Ireland bring in from the outside, and on everything that they ship outside the island. Walsh told the President that no ships were allowed to touch any port, Trans-Atlantic, that the country could not trade with the United States or other countries, and other countries could not trade with it.

The President said: "Of course, you should understand that no small nation of any kind has yet appeared before the Committee of Four, and there is an agreement among the Committee of Four that none can come unless unanimous consent is given by the whole committee."

Gov. Dunne addressed the President and said: "Has there been no small nations complaining of injustice on the part of any of the victor nations ever appeared as yet?"

The President said: "There is no nation that has had it right considered by the peace conference except those that were actually concerned in the war. We have not attempted

PASTURING AMONG TOMBSTONES BRINGS HUMP, BUT NO MILK

Suit Follows Cow's Failure to Thrive in Cemetery, but Buyer Loses.

A cemetery is no place to pasture a cow, in the judical opinion of Justice Henry Stecker of Clayton, who says he knows enough about both to realize that they don't go well together.

Therefore, Kizemir Gedelio of Luxemburg, St. Louis County, who bought a cow from Fred Morgenegg and turned her to graze in a neaby graveyard, lost the suit which he brought against Morgenegg on the ground that the cow didn't give enough milk. He paid $110 for one cow, but he sued ofr $200, holding that the damage he sustained in trying to get the cow to give more milk amounted to $90.

The cow was guaranteed to give five gallons a day, Gedelio said, but he found to his pain and mortification that six quarts a week represented her total output—on cemetery pasturage. He returned this cow, and Morgenegg gave him another to try. She did no better, and soon developed huchback, and stopped producing altogether, Gedelio testified.

Morgenegg said any cow would have to get a hump on if she wanted to find enough to live on among the tombstones. Justice Stecker agreed.

GREAT WHITE WAY IS ABLAZE AGAIN WITH EVERYBODY HAPPY

Theaters Reopen or Prepare to Do So and All Involved Celebrate Victory.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—New York's "Great White Way" blazed forth tonight after the parttial eclipse caused by the actors' strike. Several houses which had been forced to close during the 30-day war between thespians and managers which ended early today, opened. Many of the closed theaters announced that performances would be resumed early next week.

According to the assertions of the various parties to the war, it ended in a victory for everyone. The Actors' Equity Association and the Chorus Equity Association were triumphant because they gained recognition; the managers pointed with pride to the fact that provision for an "open shop" was included in the treaty of peace and the Actors' Fidelity League, which supported the managers, proclaimed its satisfaction that it also was recognized.

Jackson (Mich.) Prisoner Passed Away Time Years Ago by Modeling Human Images.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Mich., Sept. 6.—Twenty or 25 years ago, when Jackson Prison's industries were not so numerous, Jimmie Leathers spent a few years within its walls and finding time hanging heavily on his hands, modeled human images for pastime. At the end of his sentence he had quite a collection of "dummies."

One of them, Jimmie's "Pre-historic man," was unearthed Friday in Patrolman Oscar Nierman's back yard.

This was the explanation put forward today as to the origin of Nierman's find, which several physicians, after a hasty examination, declared was the petrified body of a man, 12 feet 7 inches in height.

News of the find brought many scientists to Jackson today. One look at the "giant" constituted their investigation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Official plans for the reception and entertainment of Gen. Pershing from his arrival here Monday morning until his departure for Washington, the Mayor's committee of welcome to distinguished guests, leave the Commander in Chief of the American Expeditionary forces scarcely a minute to himself, except for the few hours alloted for sleep.

Hundreds of peace and war water craft, including submarines, and scores of airplanes, will go down the harbor to greet the General upon his arrival on the transportl Leviathan, and will escort the vessel to her berth at Hoboken.

Officials to Welcome Him.

Vice President and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, Secretary of War and Mrs. Newton D. Baker, and a score of high military officers, headed by Gen. Peyton C. March, chief of staff, will be on board the welcoming ships.

From Hoboken Gen. Pershing will be brought to the Battery on a police boat and escorted to City Hall, where he will be welcomed officially by Gov. Smith and Mayor Hylan.

From that moment, the Mayor's Welcome Committee will pilot Gen. Pershing from reception to luncheon to dinner to theater, to supper—waiting only for morning to begin operations again—until he leaves Thursday for Washington.

Big Parade Wednesday.

Hundreds of thousands of school children will join in the welcome here to the General. Every available policeman on the active and reserve lists will be called to duty to keep the crowds under control Wednesday—"Pershing day"—when the General will ride down Fifth avenue at the head of a spectacular military pageant.

A radio message received here today by the Naval Communication Service from the transport Leviathan, stated that the ship was due to reach Ambrose Light ship at 4 a. m. Monday and would dock at 8 o'clock.

Other oficers on the Leviathan, the message said, were Major-Generals A. W. Brewster, J. L. Hines and C. E. Summerall; Brigadier-Generals R. E. Davis, Walter Bethel and F. Connor; Colonels G. C. Marshall, J. G. Quakemeyer, L. C. Griscomb, R. C. Burnett, E. C. McNeil, A. Morene and C. S. Babcock.

Mrs. Swacker, chairman of the Missouri Hospitality Committee, will present Gov. F. W. Gardner's letter to Gen. Pershing, welcoming him in behalf of Missouri, his native State.

88,582 Officers, 1,790,469 Men Back From Overseas

General Staff Gives Out Figures Showing Demobilization Activities Have Reduced Army Strength to 421,988.

By Wire from the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Demobilization activities of the war have brought the army to a point considerably below the peace-time strength asked of Congress. A statement of demobilization figures by the general staff, issued today, show the present strength of the army to be 421,988. These figures include army field clerks and nurses, as well as the officers and enlisted men. They do not include 500 marines remaining with the expeditionary forces.

The general staff says the discharges from the army since the armistice was signed number 162,301 officers and 3,286,934 enlisted men. Troops returned to the United States from overseas number 88,582 officers and 1,790,469 enlisted men.

The total enlistments reported to Sept. 2 are 110,047. The army has forwarded replacements overseas to the number of 17,126. They are divided as follows. To the expeditionary forces in Europe, 10,921; to the expeditionary forces in Siberia, 2001; to the Philippine department, 2308; to the Hawaiian department, 1430; to the Panama Canal department, 311, and to Alaska, 155.

The total strength of the army on Nov. 11, 1918, when the armistice was signed, was 3,670,888. The decrease to Sept. 2 was 3,248,900, which represents a total decrease of the army of 89 per cent.

PETITIONS TO PROPOSE FREE STREET CAR LINES

Citizens' Referendum League Will Seek to Initiate Special Election.

Municipally owned street cars by which the passengers will ride free at the expense of taxpayers is a plan proposed by the St. Louis Citizens Referendum League, according to its vice president, Paul O. Peters, 4227A DeTonty street, who announced last night the organization's purpose to circulate initiative petitions calling for an election to carry out the plan. He said that tomorrow 2,000 petitions will be circulated for signers and that before the end of the week there will be 3,000 additional ones. About 17,000 names would be required to obtain a vote of the people, he said.

Peters said that W. H. Gruen, a mechanical engineer, employed by the League, has drafted tentative plans for a city owned street car system. The proposition will be explained at a mass meeting to be held at Central Trades and Labor Hall, 2228 Olive street, at 2 p. m. today at which Peters, Charles Lischer, Gruen, C. L. Delbridge and Louis H. Proske will speak, it was stated. It is proposed to have a four-track subway running east and west and north and south, with surface lines feeding therefrom.

Under the ordinance as drafted by the league the city either may purchase the present street car system at a fair valuation or build a new one. The initiative ordinance provides for extension when necessary. Taxes will not be increased more than 10 cents on the $100 for the city to own the lines, the league estimates. This would amount to $5 a year to the taxpayer paying on a valuation of $5000, much less than the average person spends in street car fares in the same period, Peters explained.

Petition No. 1 will be in the hands of Peters himself, who said he will asked Mayor Kiel to be the first signer. "As he has on several occasions said that he believed our proposed plan would solve the street car problem we will give him an opportunity to help us," said Peters. City Counselor Daues also will be asked to sign.

DAUGHTER SUES TO BREAK WILL OF CHARLES WARREN FAIRBANKS

Says Property Given to Her Is Not Worth One-Fifth of Estate, Her Share.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 6.—Mrs. Adelaide F. Timmons, daughter of Charles Warren Fairbanks, former Vice President of the United States, who died June 4, 1918, has filed suit in the Marion County Probate Court to have the Fairbanks will declared invalid and set aside.

She includes among the defendants her brothers, Warren, Richard, and Frederick Fairbanks, executors of the will, and Robert Fairbanks and other persons and institutions named as beneficiaries.

It is alleged by Mrs. Timmons that her father was the owner of personal property of the value of $3,000,000 in Marion County; owner of real estate in Indiana valued at $1,000,000, and owner of real estate in Illinois consisting of 15,000 acres of farm land of the value of more than $4,000,000.

The complaint sets out that the amount and value of all the property given to this plaintiff is grossly less than the value of one-fifth of the estate, the amount and portion to which she would be entitled.

Mrs. Timmons alleges that the will is invalid on the ground that Charles Warren Fairbanks was of unsound mind "at the time said pretended will was attempted to be executed;" that the will was unduly executed; that it was procured by undue influence.

Armed Force Threatened Against Entering Western Hungary.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—A Berlin wireless dispatch today reports that Count Sigray, the commissary for Western Hungary, has informed the commissary for Oedenburg, near the border of Lower Austria, that the Hungarian Government does not recognize the treaty presented Austria by the Entente as having any validity with regard to Hungary, and that the Government will meet with armed force any attempt to occupy Western Hungary. The strict closing of the frontier has been ordered, the dispatch adds, to prevent the Austrians entering Western Hungary.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, via London, Sept. 6.—Dr. Karl Renner, head of the Austrian peace delegation, has informed the newspaper correspondents here that he would return to St. Germain Sunday and sign the peace treaty handed Austria this week.

J. J. C. Bratiano, Rumanian Premier, declares that in spite of his desire to retire before the coming elections he has decided to retain office in order to take personal responsibility for not signing the treaty of peace for Rumania, according to special telegrams from Bucharest. He says that following this action in regard to the treaty with Austria, he will resign from office.

TWO TRY TO BUY CLOTHING AND CHARGE IT TO SAME WOMAN

One Customer Says She Is Mrs. E. Donnelly and Young Man Poses as Mrs. Donnelly's Son.

A saleswoman at Nugent's became suspicious when a young woman purchased a suit for $65 and a waist for $16.95 yesterday afternoon and ordered the garments charged to the account of Mrs. E. Donnelly, 5046 Vernon avenue. The customer said she was Mrs. Donnelly.

The saleswoman notified the department manager and he telephoned to Mrs. Donnelly. She said she had not authorized anyone to charge goods to her account. The young woman later told detectives that she was Miss Grace Johnson, 22 years old, and that she resided with a sister, Mrs. Mary Winston, at 3548 Pine street. She said her home was in Charleston, S. C.

She said she had seen Mrs. Donnelly's name and address on a charge check at the store. She was placed in charge of the police matron.

Yesterday a young man selected two suits of clothes, valued at $40 each, at Nugent's, and had them charged to Mrs. Donnelly's account. He identified himself as "Joe Donnelly" and represented himself as a son of Mrs. Donnelly. He said that he would call for the suits in the afternoon.

Mrs. Donnelly was again called on the telephone and said she had no son Joe. The young man did not return for the suits. Miss Johnson said she did not know him.

MILD RESERVATION REPUBLICANS TO FIGHT LODGE PLAN

McNary, McCumber, Colt and Nelson Said to Have Signed Pledge to Oppose Strong Reservations.

'SCUTTLING OF WHOLE LEAGUE' NOT FAVORED

If Democrats and McCumber Group Hold Fast, View Is Given Drastic Draft Is Doomed.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The "mild" reservationists of the Senate have "called" the hand of Republican Leader Lodge, who in an effort to obtain defections from the Democratic ranks, has been representing to Democratic Senators that practically the entire Republican membership of the Senate was behind the Lodge program of "strong" reservations to the peace treaty.

Private negotiations proceeded today between Senators favoring "strong" or "mild" reservations. No meeting of the Foreign Relations Committee was held today. There was little discussion of the treaty in the Senate, Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, making the only address. He called attention to the statement of the President in his St. Louis speech that Japan's secret treaties with the Allies were made to induce her to enter the war. The Nebraska Senator said the treaties were made two years later.

"Mild" Reservationists.

The group of Republican Senators advocating "mild" reservations conferred during the day and were said to have agreed to oppose the committee reservations, particularly that relating to Article 10 of the league of nations covenant.

The group, it is said, have signed a pledge reaffirming their adherence to mild reservations and pledging themselves to stand to the end against reservations that would necessitate a reopening of the peace negotiations. At the head of the movement is Senator McCumber and the paper has been signed by him and Senators McNary, Colt and Nelson. Three other Senators, it is understood, stand ready to sign.

"Drastic" Draft Seems Doomed.

Senator Hitchcock, the Democratic leader, has been informed of the action taken by the McCumber group. Taking this fact in connection with the issuance by McCumber yesterday of a set of "mild" reservations which he announced he favored as against the Lodge program, informed observers here drew the inference today that there was in prospect an understanding between the McCumber group and the Democratic leaders. While exaggerated significance should not be attached to this prospect the fact is clear that if the understanding is consummated and if the Democratic lines hold intact the "strong" reservationists cannot hope to win their fight.

With the arrival of Senator Kellogg, Minnesota, Republican Senators favoring "wild" reservations to the peace treaty conferred. Senators attending the conference said opposition to the committee resolution would be based principally against the reservation on Article 10. This committee reservation, one of the conferees said, is regarded as involving "scuttling of the whole league." Senators attending the conference expressed confidence that with anticipated support of the Democrats they would obtain adoption at least of a modified reservation to Article 10.

On the other hand, Republican Senators leading the fight for the committee reservations said after numerous cloak room conferences, that prospects for adoption of the committee resolution were brighter. Among the private conferences were meetings between Republican Leader Lodge and Senators Smith, Georgia, and Smith, South Carolina, Democrats.

Republicans favoring the committee reservations said considerable Democratic support was regarded as assured. One Republican leader declared at least eight Democratic votes were counted upon.

Leaders on both sides in the reservation controversy said privately that virtually the sole decisive question was over the reservation to Article 10.

Reservations for 65

Leaders among the Administration Democrats and the Republicans, who think the treaty should be ratified as early as possible, are working on reservations that 65 or more Senators can agree on.

Republican and Democratic leaders were busy in the Senate today nailing down votes. Opponents of the league of nations conceded that they could not put through their Shantung amendment to the treaty.

COW EATS CLOTHES FOUR FAIR BATHERS HAD PILED ON BANK

And After Mile and Half Walk Home, They'll Hang 'Em on a Hickory Limb Next Time.

They didn't hang their clothes on a hickory limb, or another kind of limb—they left them on the bank—so a cow ate them, and after this four young women of Shiloh, Ill., will pay more attention to the wisdom of the old rhyme. Meantime, John Rable's cow is endeavoring to digest a quantity of buttons, hooks and eyes, and is not bearing up so well under the strain.

The loss of the clothing was bad, but the walk of a mile and a half from the swimming hole to their homes, clad only in bathing suits, through a community that has its opinions about bathing suits at their best, was worse. Nor did their explanation of how they happened to be without clothing appear to be entirely convincing.

Now they're hanging 'em higher in Shiloh.

BRITISH BEAUTIES ON LINER BOUND FOR UNITED STATES

Name of One of Them, a War Widow, Is Linked With That of Prince of Wales.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—In spite of the lack of transport and rigid passport regulations, some few fortunate persons got through on the Adriatic on Wednesday for America. Among them were the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, and Lady John Mulholland. The Duchess is a strikingly handsome young woman. Lady Joan a young widow, who lost her husband in the war, is also an accepted beauty, and it is even hinted she may become the Princess of Wales. She is Princess Mary's lady in waiting and is on the most intimate terms, as is her chum, the Duchess of Sutherland, with the Prince of Wales.

Dudley Ward, M. P., one of Premier Lloyd George's private secretaries, is a passenger on the Adriatic. So is Sir Shirley Benn, Maj. Astor's colleague in Parliament, representing Plymouth. P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine, also managed to book passage on the Adriatic. So did Canon Carnegie, rector of St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, where all the big weddings take place, who is considered England's most distinguished-looking divine. With him is his wife, Joseph Chamberlain's widow, who was an Endicott, and who goes to visit her American relatives. Another passenger is Lord Decies, who married Miss Vivian Gould.

58 CENTS A TON PROFIT ON COAL

Cost of Producing Pennsylvania Bituminous Is Announced.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Reports on the cost of producing bituminous coal in Pennsylvania made public today by the Federal Trade Commission said operators made a margin of 58 cents a ton in the southwest fields in 1918 and 84 cents in the central fields.

In the southwestern fields the cost of production was placed at an average of $1.92 a ton, this including labor supplies and general expenses, and the selling price was given at an average of $2.50 a ton at the mine. In the central fields the cost was given as $2.21 a ton and the selling price as $3.05.

Present prices were not given, but on the basis of the price for the last quarter of 1918, the margin of profit in the southwestern fields would be 34 cents and in the central fields 60 cents.

EQUAL SERVICE FOR NEGROES

Chairman of House Committee Approves Sanitation Requirements.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Legislation requiring railroad companies to furnish negroes safe and sanitary accommodations of the same sort furnished others is approved by Chairman Esch of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. He is opposed to the Federal Government attempting to remove "Jim Crow" cars from trains, as requested by Representative Madden, Republican, of Illinois, yesterday.

Esch said it would not be wise to undertake the elimination of "Jim Crow" cars because there would not only be room for much debate as to the extent to which Congress could go, but that much controversy would be caused in the States affected, even if Congress had the right to prevent the use of these cars.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Kei Shidehara, Japanese Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs, has been appointed Ambassador to the United States and formal announcement of the appointment will be made within the next few days, it was learned here today.

Shidehara was counselor of the embassy here in 1912 and 1913. From the Washington post he was transferred to the same position in the Japanese embassy at London. From that post he was advanced to the office of Minister to Holland. In 1915 he was made Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs and has held the position until the present time. He is regarded as one of Japan's ablest diplomats.

TREATY DELAY ENCOURAGES BOLSHEVISM, SAYS WILSON

Radicalism Spreading, He Declares at Des Moines, and "Men Look You in the Face in America and Tell You They Are for That Sort of Revolution."

TREATY AND LEAGUE AMERICAN DOCUMENT

Extends Democracy to World, He Says, but World's Problems and Those at Home Are Waiting on Our Action.

> THE Kansas City speech of President Wilson, delivered yesterday, will be found in full on Page One, Part Two of today's Post-Dispatch.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Io., Sept. 6.—A possibility that Bolshevism may spread in threatening proportions to the United States unless the peace treaty is ratified promptly was suggested by President Wilson in an address here tonight.

The whole world was waiting uneasily, he said, while the poison which had wrecked Russia was spreading among the peoples who did not yet know what guarantees there were to be for liberty in the new world order. Labor and capital in the United States, he asserted could not proceed intelligently with their settlements, nor could great problems like the railroad situation be solved while the suspense continued.

Mr. Wilson defended the Shantung provision of the treaty and said the league covenant section referring to the Monroe doctrine had been inserted to "give the Monroe doctrine right of way in the western hemisphere." He declared his conviction that it would do so.

The Versailles treaty, with its League of Nations covenant, was explained by President Wilson as a purely American document extending democracy over the world and shifting foreign relations from a basis of force and war to one of arbitration and peace.

Making his second address of the day, the President spoke in the Des Moines Coliseum, said to seat 7500. Every chair was taken and many were standing. Earlier in the day he had spoken at Kansas City, Mo., more than 300 miles away.

An escort of airplanes dropped flowers on the President's special train as it approached the city, and he was cheered during an automobile ride through crowds that packed the downtown streets far out beyond the curb. When he entered the Coliseum he was cheered again.

The meeting was opened with an invocation, and Mr. Wilson was introduced by J. B. Beaver, president of the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce, who spoke on the "outstanding figure in the life of the world today." Mrs. Wilson sat on the platform.

In Need of Peace.

Describing the world as desperately in need of the settled condition of peace, the President said the United States, the last nation which the world expected to have to wait upon, was delaying the coming of the peace.

Citing what happened in Europe with the rise of Bolshevism, Mr. Wilson said the move of radicalism and disorder was spreading.

"Do you honestly think that none of that poison has got into the veins of this free people?" he asked. "Men look you calmly in the face in America and tell you they are for that sort of revolution.

Railway Problem Waits.

The President said he had not been able to work out the solution of railway problems and would not be able to do so until he should know when a peace basis would come. The conference of labor and capital in Washington next month, he continued, also would have its deliberations affected by the answer to their question. Labor "all over the world is waiting," he asserted, "to see whether the United States accepted the treaty's provision for an international labor organization."

The peace, Mr. Wilson asserted, had been made on "American specifications." Among these specifications, he said, was the establishment of Poland and the other new mid-European nations which now separated Germany from the path-way to the empire she expected to establish in the Southeast.

Under the treaty, the President declared, pan-Germanism would be "torn up by the roots."

Of the ultimate outcome regarding the treaty, Mr. Wilson said he had no doubt.

"The only thing that can be accomplished," he said, "is delay. The ultimate outcome will be the triumphant acceptance of the treaty and the league."

Turning to the economic boycott provided against covenant breakers, Mr. Wilson said no nation in Europe could stand under such a boycott for six months.

"Yet we are told this is a covenant of war," he continued. "It is the most drastic covenant of peace ever conceived."

Can't Wait Much Longer.

"The world is desperately in need of the settled conditions of peace," said the President, "and it cannot wait much longer. It is waiting upon us. That is the thought, that is the burdensome thought upon my heart tonight, that the world is waiting for the verdict of the nation to which it looked for leadership and which it thought would be the last that would ask the world to wait.

"The world is not at peace. I suppose that it is difficult for one who has not had some touch of the hot passion of the other side of the sea to realize how all the passions that have been slumbering for ages have been uncovered and released by the tragedy of this war.

"And now all of this is released and uncovered, and men glare at one another and say, 'Now we are free and what shall we do with our freedom?'

"What happened in Russia was not a sudden and accidental thing. The people of Russia were maddened with the suppression of czarism. When at last the chance came to throw off those chains, they threw them off, at first with hearts full of confidence and hope and then they found out that they had been again deceived. There was no assembly chosen to frame a Constitution for them, or rather there was an assembly chosen to choose a Constitution for them, and it was suppressed and dispersed, and a little group of men just as selfish, just as ruthless, just as pitiless, as the Czar himelf, assumed control and exercised their power by terror and not by right.

"And in other parts of Europe the poison spread. The poison of disorder, the poison of revolt, the poison of chaos. And do you honestly think, my fellow citizens, "that none of that poison has got in the veins of this free people? Do you not know that the world is all now one single whispering gallery? These antennae of the wireless telegraph are the symbols of our age.

Danger of Radicalism.

"All the impulses of mankind are thrown out upon the air and reach to the ends of the earth, and quietly, upon steamships, silently under the cover of the postal service, with the tongue of the wireless and the tongue of the telegraph, all the suggestions of disorder are spread through the world. And money coming from nobody knows where is deposited by the millions in capitals like Stockholm, to be used for the propaganda of disorder and discontent and dissolution throughout the world, and men look you calmly in the face in America and say they are for that sort of revolution, when that sort of revolution means Government by terror, Government by force, not Government by vote.

"It is the negation of everything that is American, but it is spreading and, so long as disorder continues, so long as the world is kept waiting for the answer to the question of the kind of peace we are going to have and what kind of guarantees there are to be behind that peace, that poison will steadily spread, more and more rapidly spread until it may be that even this beloved land of ours will be distracted and distorted by it.

What Concerns President.

"That is what is concerning me, my fellow countrymen. I know the splendid steadiness of the American people, but, my fellow citizens, the whole world needs that steadiness, and the American people are the makeweight in the fortunes of mankind. How long are we going to debate into which scale we will throw that magnificent equipoise that belongs to us? How long shall we be kept waiting for the answer whether the world may trust us or despise us? They have looked to us for leadership. They have looked to us for example. They have built their peace upon the basis of our suggestions. That great volume that contains the treaty of peace is drawn along the specifications laid down by the American Government and now the world stands at amaze because the authority in America hesitates whether it will endorse an American document or not.

"You know what the necessity of peace is. Why, my fellow countrymen, political liberty can exist only when there is peace. Social reforms can take place only when there is peace. The settlement of every question that concerns our daily life waits for peace. I have been receiving delegations in Washington of men engaged in the service of the Government temporarily in the administration of the railways and I have had to say to them, 'My friends, I cannot tell what the railways can earn until commerce is restored to its normal courses. Until I can tell what the railroads can earn, I cannot tell what the wages that the railroads can pay will be. I cannot suggest what the increase of freight and passenger rates will be to meet these increases in warges, if the rates must be increased. I cannot tell yet whether it will be necessary to increase the rates or not and I must ask you to wait."

"But they are not the only people that have come to see me. There are all sorts of adjustments necessary in this country. I have asked representatives of capital and labor to come to Washington next month and confer, confer about the fundamental thing of our life at present. That is to say, the conditions of labor.

All Through World.

"Do you realize, my fellow-citizens, that all through the world, the one central question of civilization is, What shall be the conditions of labor? The profoundest unrest in Europe is due to the doubt what shall be the conditions of labor, and I need not tell you that that unrest is spreading to America, and in the midst of it the treaty of peace is a magna charta, a great guarantee that labor shall have the counsels of the world devoted to the discussion of its conditions and of its betterment; and labor all over the world is waiting to know whether America is going to take part in those conferences or not.

"The confidence of the men who sat at Paris was such that they put it in the document that the first meeting of the labor conference under that part of the treaty should take place in Washington upon the invitation of the President of the United States. I am going to issue that invitation whether we can attend the conference or not.

"But think of the mortification. Think of standing by in Washington itself and see the world take counsel upon the fundamental matter of civilization without us. The thing is inconceivable, but it is true. The world is waiting, waiting to see, not whether we will take part, but whether we will serve and lead, for it has expected us to lead.

"In Paris, delegations from all over the world came to me to solicit the friendship of America. They frankly told us that they were not sure of anybody else that they could trust, but that they did absolutely trust us to do them justice and to see that justice was done them.

Attitude of World.

"That is the attitude of the world, and reflect upon the reaction, the reaction of despair, that would come if America said, we do not want to lead you. You must do without our advice. You must shift without us.

"How are we going to bring about a peace for which everything waits? I have been very much amazed and very much amused, if I could be amused in such critical circumstances, to see that the statesmanship of some gentlemen consists in the very interesting proposition that we do nothing at all. I had heard of standing pat before, but I had never before heard of standpatism going to the length of saying it is none of our business and we do not care what happens to the rest of the world.

Promise to Mankind.

"Some gentlemen are saying, yes, we made a great promise to mankind, but it will cost too much to redeem it. My fellow citizens, that is not the spirit of America, and you cannot have peace, you cannot have even your legitimate part in the business of the world, unless you are partners with the rest. If you are going to say to the world, we will stand off and see what we can get out of this, the world will see to it that you do not get anything out of it. If it is your deliberate choice that, instead of being friends, you will be rivals and antagonists, then you will get just exactly what rivals and antagonists always get, just as little as can be grudgingly vouchsafed you.

"Is there any business man here who would be willing to see the world go bankrupt, and the business of the world stop? I do not like to argue this thing on this basis, but if you want to talk business I am ready to talk business. It is a matter of how much you are going to get from your money, you will not get half as much as antagonists as you will get as partners.

"So think that over, if you have none of that thing that is so lightly spoken of, known as altruism. And, believe me, my fellow countrymen, the only people in the world who are going to reap the harvest of the future are those people who can entertain ideals, who can follow ideals to the death.

They Are My Bosses.

"So my fellow citizens, you have got to make up your minds, because after all, it is you who are going to make up the minds of this country. I do not owe a report or the slightest responsibility to any body but you. I mean you and the millions besides you, thoughtful, responsible American men and women all over this country. They are my bosses, and I am mighty glad to be their servant."

Discussing the Shantung settlement, Mr Wilson said he did not like that settlement "any better than you did," but that England and France had bound themselves without any qualifications to see to it that Japan got the German rights there and that the "most that could be got out of it" was the Japanese promise that she would give up every item of sovereignty which Germany would otherwise have enjoyed in Shantung Province, and that they would retain in the Province only the economic concessions such as other nations already had elsewhere in China, "though you do not hear anything about that," concessions in the railway and the mines which had become attached to the railway for operative purposes.

"But suppose that you say that is not enough," he continued, "very well, then, stay out of the treaty and how will that accomplish anything? England and France are bound and cannot escape their obligation. Are you going to institute a war against Japan and France and England to get Shantung back for China? That is an enterprise which, does not commend itself to the present generation.

"By disagreeing to that provision, we accomplish nothing for China. On the contrary, we stay out of the only counsel of nations in which we can be of service to China.

"It is only a handful of men who are trying to defeat the treaty or to prevent the league. The great majority in official bodies and out are scrutinizing it, as it is perfectly legitimate that they should scrutinize it, to see if it is necessary that they should qualify it in any way, and my knowledge of their conscience, my knowledge of their public principles, makes me certain many will sooner or later see that it is safest, since it is all expressed in the plainest english that the English dictionary affords, not to qualify ot—to accept it as it is.

"The Monroe Doctrine."

"They have been very much worried at the phrase that nothing in the document shall be taken as impairing in any way the validity of such regional understandings as the Monroe Doctrine, and they said, Why put in such regional understandings as: What other understandings are there? Have you got something up your sleeve? Is there going to b a Monroe Doctrine in Asia? Is there going to be a Monroe Doctrine in China?

"Why, my fellow citizens, the phrase was written in perfect innocence. The men that I was associated with said it is not wise to put a specific thing that belongs only to one nation in a document like this. We do not know of any other regional understanding of it, we never heard of any other, we never expect to hear of any other, but there might some day be some other, and so we will say 'such regional understandings as the Monroe Doctrine' and their phrase was intended to give right of way to the Monroe Doctrine in the Western Hemisphere.

20,000 Hear the President's Kansas City Speech.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 6.—President Wilson making his third speech for the treaty in Missouri to a capacity audience, spoke today in Convention Hall, which had been arranged to seat 20,000 persons.

When the President, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, appeared on the platform of the vast auditorium, the crowd, each of whom had a small American flag, arose and cheered for more than two minutes. President Wilson had been cheered as the presidential party paraded through four miles of the city's streets to Convention Hall.

Mr. Wilson was introduced by B. A. Parsons, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce.

One section of the hall was reserved for a large number of Missouri's war heroes who applauded vigorously President Wilson's references to the prevention of future wars.

The President's special train arrived from St. Louis at 9:05, having been held in the outskirts of the city for an hour. A large crowd had gathered at the Union Station Plaza.

Led by the Seventh Regiment band, three companies of troops and the machine gun battalion, the party left Union Station in automobiles shortly after the arrival of the special train.

President and Mrs. Wilson, with Gov. Gardner and Mayor James Cowgill, of Kansas City were in the first car.

The route of parade was lined with people, and as the President approached there were frequent outbursts of cheering.

The parade passed up Grand avenue and through the central part of the business section, to Convention Hall, where arrangements had been made for seating 20,000 persons. Two immense flags had been arranged into a false ceiling and balconies draped with bunting and flags. 15,000 small flags were distributed as the crowd poured into the hall.

The doors of the hall were opened at 9 a. m. but for several hours a crowd had been waiting for entrance. Half an hour after the doors were opened, every seat was filled, and the crowd was still pouring in, seeking available standing room.

With the standing room in the hall virtually filled, the streets outside were thronged with people seeking entrance. It was said that several thousand persons would be unable to get in.

The President will spend Sunday in the Iowa capital.

President Shakes Hands With Women at Independence.

By the Associated Press.

ON BOARD PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPECIAL TRAIN, Sept. 6.—The presidential train stopped for nearly a half hour at Independence, Mo., ten miles from Kansas City, so that breakfast could be had on board before reaching the city.

Independence, noted as the birthplace of Jesse James, the outlaw, turned out a throng of early risers, mostly women in calico mother hubbards, to greet the President. He smilingly shook hands with as many as could reach him.

The trainmen, familiar with the lore of Jesse James, pointed out to the presidential party historic spots where the bandit had held up trains of an earlier day.

President Shakes Hands With St. Joseph Yardmen

"Hello, Little One," He Greets a Chubby Pickaninny, "I'm Glad to See You."

By the Associated Press.

ON BOARD PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPECIAL TRAIN, Sept. 6.—A crowd met the President's special at St. Joseph, Mo., where the train stopped for three minutes on its way from Kansas City to Des Moines.

The crowd swarmed around the observation end of the President's car and called for a speech, but, acting on the advice of Dr. Grayson, he refrained from making one, and exchanged friendly greetings.

A group of women Red Cross workers got the President and Mrs. Wilson to sign their roster, and Mrs. Wilson was presented with a basket of roses.

After the train left the station, it had to stop in the railroad yards to take on water for the engine, and the President shook hands with a number of railroad yardmen.

With their grimy hands they showed some hesitation, but the President smilingly urged them to come forward and he gave each a hearty clasp.

Greets a Pickanniny.

Many children, white and negroes, were on hand, and were lifted up to the rail so the President could shake them by the hand also.

The President seemed to enjoy particularly a tiny, pickanniny and its mammy, who, fighting a way through the crowd, got within reach of the rail.

"Hello, little one," he said, taking hold of a chubby and very dirty hand, "I am glad to see you."

Another youngster struggled through and presented Mrs. Wilson with a bunch of sweet peas. Her face wreathed in smiles. Mrs. Wilson expressed her appreciation.

One of the "movie" men accompanying the presidential party go an unexpected chance for a "close up" of the President when Secretary Tumulty helped boost him over the rail to the platform to take the surging crowd.

Pats "Movie" Man on Back.

After training his camera on the crowd, the operator turned and got a good picture of the president as he stood chatting.

"There, stop that!" Mr. Wilson said, good naturedly. "you must not do that behind a man's back." He then came over and patted the "movie" operator on the back.

All along the route patriotic decorations were much in evidence. On the slope of a railway cut near St. Joseph a family of country people had taken a vantage point to catch a glimpse of the president, the men struggling to hold an eight-foot American flag in a stiff breeze and others waving smaller flags as the presidential special rolled by. Mr. Wilson spent a part of the afternoon in the club car, where he talked over points in his speeches with the newspaper correspondents. He said he was satisfied with the treatey situation in the senate and was enjoying his trip.

CHINESE SOUGHT BY POLICE

A young Chinese, who yesterday fraudulently obtained $300 from Lee Gan, a fellow countryman and owner of a laundry at Hamilton avenue and the Hodiamont tracks, is sought by the police. The money had been saved by Gan to repay a loan obtained from his friend, Lee Yuen, of 17 South Eighth street, a grocer.

According to the police, the swindler appeared at Gan's laundry yesterday and announced he had been sent by Yuen to collect the money due the latter. Gan paid the $300 promptly. Several hours later Yuen himself called Gan on the telephone to notify him that he wanted the money. Gan told of giving it to the Chinese youth. Considerable conversation ensued and finally the two Chinese agreed a swindle had taken place.

SPENCER REPLIES TO WILSON'S SPEECHES

"Farther West President Goes More Violent His Language Becomes," Says Senator.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Replying in an interview tonight to the speeches by President Wilson in Missouri, Senator Spencer asserted that the President stated an issue in regard to the League of Nations which did not exist.

"The issue in connection with the treaty of peace," said Spencer, "is not, as the President indicates, a choice between acceptance or rejection of the treaty. I am frank to say for myself that, if I were forced to make that choice, I should vote against the treaty as it now stands.

"The real issue before the people is whether they prefer to take the treaty precisely as it is written or to have such reservations engrafted upon it as will absolutely safeguard our American rights and fully protect our independence of action as a nation in the future."

Spencers attention was called to the words "contemptible quitters" employed by the President in one of his St. Louis speeches to characterize league obstructionists who were unwilling to "see the game through."

"It is interesting to note," Spencer replied, "that the farther west the President goes the more violent his language becomes. I tremble to think what will become of his Presbyterian training when he reaches the Pacific coast."

"Treaty One Man Document."

"In the light of known facts," Spencer continued, "the treaty of peace is peculiarly and unfortunately a one man document." it does not follow on this account that it ought to be rejected, he said, "but it certainly is true that there can be no just complaint if such a one man treaty is subjected to the most careful consideration."

"The President of the United States," Spencer said, "unlike those with whom he was associated at the peace table, acted without either legislative sanction or legislative conference. It was a position of autocratic power which is as rare as it is unfortunate in a republic.

"In the one case of which we have accurate knowledge of the four gentlemen whom the President had with him as commissioners to represent the United States, at least three of them were clear and positive in the expression of their judgment that the provision of the treaty with respect to the Shantung peninsula was a violation of our own American policy, an injustice to China and an unnecessary yielding to the unfair demands of Japan. Yet the fact that his joint commissioners so advised did not change by a hair's breadth the action of the United States in regard to Shantung.

"When the President learned of the secret treaties giving the Shantung concessions to Japan," Spencer said, "he should instantly have told the representatives of England, France, Italy and Japan that he could not proceed with the negotiations till the treaties were laid on the table and canceled.

"No one who realizes the position of commanding importance of the United States at that conference," Spencer went on, "can have the slightest doubt that a demand of this kind indicated would have been instantly complied with and we should at least have been saved the humiliating disgrace of having our representatives voluntarily enter into an arrangement which they themselves are unable to defend and which the nation looks upon with shame."

Reservations or No Ratification.

Spencer repeated what he has previously said regarding reservations, predicting that the treaty would never be ratified as it now stands.

"Before it ever receives the sanction of the Senate, reservations as reported must be inseparably interwoven with the ratification itself.. I cannot see any delay or complication that ought to follow American safeguarding reservations. If, as the president declares, the principles of these reservations are already written into the treaty as it stands, and are accepted by every other nation, certainly there can be neither delay nor complication in any consent either by express approval or by acquiescence in reservations which express in clearer terms that to which the nations have already consented."

Spencer declared that one illustration sufficed to show the danger threatening this country under the league of nations covenant as now drawn. Territorial possession acquired by purchase might, he said, jeopardize the very existence of our Government. He referred to Lower California, which he said might even now be Japan's by secret purchase from Mexico.

Such a purchase would make this peninsula part of the "territorial integrity" of Japan, and, under the provisions of the League of Nations, when she saw American ships and soldiers coming to drive her out, she would say, "Come England, come France, come Belgium, my territorial integrity is being threatened by external aggression and I demand your help." If England, France and Belgium, continued Spencer, were true to their pledged word they would be bound to come to Japan's aid against the United States.

"We would be recreant to the established policy of our country," he concluded, "if we allowed any such provision to be made in any covenant of the League of Nations to which our signature is attached."

Spencer said that early next week he would reply to the President from the floor of the Senate.

NEW YORK NEWSPAPERS ON WILSON'S ST. LOUIS OVATION

One of Them Quotes President as Saying There Can No Longer Be Doubt as to Sentiment Here.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—New York newspapers, in their special reports on the visit of President Wilson to St. Louis, say today:

The World: The circumstances under which he made his report were of the most flattering and reassuring character. St. Louis gave him a reception that permitted of no doubt as to his own personal popularity or interest in his mission. He received an ovation at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon attended by nearly 2000 of the solid business men of the Missouri metropolis, and addressed an audience of 12,000 persons, who cheered him for 10 minutes.

The American: Bright sunshine combined with a soft breeze and most of the population of St. Louis had the effect of making today—the President's second day out of Washington—the most enjoyable thus far of the trip. The crowds gave the President and Mrs. Wilson a great reception. The people were glad to see him and showed their happiness in scores of ways.

The Times: A great meeting at the Coliseum tonight, when the crowd that packed the immense hall gave President Wilson a splendid ovation, was the climax of his day's visit to St. Louis to urge ratification of the peace treaty. All through the day in his public appearance here Mr. Wilson had evoked lively demonstrations. The scenes of enthusiasm at the Coliseum, where in 1916 he was renominated, were comparable to those found in the heights of a presidential campaign.

He expressed the conviction tonight, after a day of demonstrations, that there could no longer be any doubt as to the feeling in St. Louis.

The Herald says:

"The President received a tremendous ovation at the evening meeting at the Coliseum, where he was renominated three years ago. The cheers which greeted his appearance and that of Mrs. Wilson lasted nearly five minutes.

"St. Louis accorded the President the most enthusiastic welcome so far on his trip.

"The manifestation of friendly feeling was considered all the more important because both the State's United States Senators, James A. Reed, a Democrat, and Selden P. Spencer, a Republican, are opposed to the league of nations covenant as it now stands, Senator Reed being among its most bitter opponents. Thousands applauded the President during his progress to the hotel, 1500 guests at the luncheon cheered him, and there was an unprecedented crush at the night meeting at the Coliseum."

SENATE AMENDS BILL ALLOWING BANKS TO DO BUSINESS ABROAD

Edge Says Extension of Credits Is Necessary to Further American Commercial Interests.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Necessity for stabilization of foreign exchange and the extension of credits abroad as a means of furthering American commercial interests was emphazied in the Senate today when the export finance bill introduced by Senator Edge, Republican, of New Jersey was taken up and several amendments adopted. The bill, prepared by the Federal Reserve Board and approved by Secretary Glass, provides for the formation of banking corporations and for their financing so as to enable them to do business abroad.

Amendments were adopted requiring all members of the board of directors to be American citizens, to require the corporations to engage entirely in foreign banking and other financial operations, prohibiting corporations formed under the act from engaging in commerce or trade, or interfering in the freedom of competition in the sale of commodities, and providing that no corporations formed under the bill should invest in any one corporation an amount exceeding 10 per cent of its capital and surplus except in a corporation engaged principally in the banking business.

JUDGE FINES HUSBAND $175 BECAUSE HE OUTWEIGHS WIFE

Says Bartender's 185 Pounds Gives His an Unfair Advantage in Domestic Quarrels.

Domestic quarrels vary in their seriousness according to the difference in weight of the principals, in the opinion of Police Judge Mix, who today fined John Budde, 29, a bartender, of 3034 New Ashland place, $175 for disturbing his wife's peace. The fine followed a lecture in which the Court pointed out that Budde's 185 pounds in weight gave him an unfair advantage over Mrs. Budde's 130 whenever their differences of opinion led to blows.

Budde was arrested last night when beating his wife in their home following an argument in the evening. John Bucholz, Budde's brother-in-law, attempted to intervene but was beaten off.

The Court pointed out to the defendant that great weight handicaps were frequently barred in prize fights and that he proposed to see that at least ring customs would be observed in domestic encounters.

MANY U. S. CITIZENS REFUSED PERMITS TO ENTER MEXICO

They Declined to Waive Responsibility of Carranza Government for Bodily Harm Done to Them.

By the Associated Press.

LAREDO, Tex., Sept. 6.—Many citizens of the United States were refused permits to enter the Tampico section of Mexico today when they declined to waive responsibility of the Mexican Government for any bodily harm that might befall them.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Apparently convinced that the United States is in earnest in demanding proper treatment of Americans in Mexico, the Carranza Goverment has adopted a novel expedient in an attempt to relieve itself of responsibility. Americans going to the Tampico region hereafter will be compelled to sign a formal release of the Mexican Government's responsibility for what may happen to them. If they refuse, Mexican officials will refuse to vise their passports.

The condition raises a peculiar situation, for under international law a Government may refuse travel permission to foreigners into a region where it may not be prepared to guarantee their safety.

Her brother, Charles H. Burkhart of the same address, told the police that was the cause of her act. He said she heard it several days ago, and had been brooding since then. Her husband is Frank Daily.

SAYS AMMUNITION GOES TO VILLA IN MELONS

Dr. P. B. Altendorf Declares Goods Worth $17,000,000 Are Smuggled Yearly.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Between $17,000,000 and $20,000,000 worth of goods are smuggled annually across the Mexican border, more than one-fourth of which are arms and ammunition, according to a statement issued here today by the National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico, quoting Dr. P. B. Altendorf, former member of the United States military intelligence department, as authority.

Responsibility for the "deviltries" of Villa and other bandits was placed by Altendorf at the door of American manufacturers of arms and ammunition who "work hand in hand with the smugglers."

Incidentally, he declared that a renegade American was responsible for the attack on American troops at Carrizal, in June, 1916, when two American officers and 13 men were killed and 23 wounded. Dr. Altendorf said that the Mexicans who made the attack were short of ammunition at the time but obtained supplies through the renegade who, he declared, smuggled $165,000 worth across the border prior to the attack.

Assails Manufacturers.

"Villa smuggles oved 60 per cent of his munitions," Dr. Altendorf said. "If that part of his supplies were cut off, he would be forced out of business, for he could hardly keep going on the 40 per cent he buys from Carranzistas. Doesn't it look as if responsibility for Villa's deviltries came pretty close to the American manufacturers and dealers who supply the 60 per cent; and as the Carranzistas are worse, if that be possible, then the Villistas, and as they, in common with other banditti down there, must now also depend entirely upon smuggling for supplies, doesn't the whole Mexican situation create a somewhat embarrassing question of ethics for these same manufacturers and dealers?"

The renegade American mentioned by Dr. Altendorf was said by him to be an agent of Mexican Consul Garza at Brownsville, Tex., and also to be a confidential envoy of Carranza, while at one time he acted for Von Eckhardt, the German Ambassador to Mexico City, who was involved in the alleged scheme for an attack on the United States by Mexico and Japan. This man is declared to have bought $36,000 worth of nickel in August, 1917, to prevent it falling into the hands of Americans.

Ammunition in Watermelons.

Dr. Altendorf said that there was one big drug store in Brownsville which received shipments of ammunition in boxes marked "drugs" and that another dodge resorted to by the smugglers was to conecal ammunition in watermelons so as to get it past the customs officials. "Usually," he said, "it doesn't seem worth while to take so much trouble, for there are such long stretches of unguarded territory that nothing much but laziness need drive a smuggler to take such risks."

As an evidence that at present Villa is rather hard pressed, Dr. Altendorf declared that, in March of the present year, the bandit's wife pawned her jewelry in San Antonio for $4800 and used the money to pick up a bargain in ammunition.

"Morphine and cocaine," he continued, "are also smuggled extensively. The Germans paid special attention to smuggling drugs into Kelly Field, the aviation field near San Antonio, during the war, the idea being to break down the American flying force, but it didn't work."

FINDS CITY LACKS 200,000 OF HAVING ENOUGH RESIDENTS

Chamber of Commerce Reports City's Industrial Growth Has Exceeded Increase in Residents.

FRONTIER OF REGION GROWING RAPIDLY

New Publication, "Greater St. Louis," Will Replace "Bulletin" That Has Been Issued by Organization.

St. Louis needs an additional population of 200,000 in order to catch up with the city's industrial growth during 1917 and 1918, according to the results of an investigation which has been made by the Chamber of Commerce. During this period, it was discovered, the industrial expansion of St. Louis has measured more than 15,000,000 square feet of space in the building of new factories and the enlargement of old ones, without including 989 acres of industrial space which was not counted on the square-foot basis.

The total of industrial expansion during the two years, exclusive of the area stated in acres, is 15,392,000 square feet, divided as follows among individual industries: Chemicals, drugs etc., 2,057,000 square feet; clothing, millinery, etc., 1,210,000 square feet; food products, 685,000 square feet; Bevo building, 1,200,000 square feet; United States Quartermaster's depot, 800,000 square feet; electrical, 803,000 square feet; automobiles, motor trucks, etc., 2,325,000 square feet; machinery, iron and metal working, 160,000 square feet; bags, cordage and textiles, 606,000 square feet; printing, lithographing, etc., 180,000 square feet; paper and paper products, 511,000 square feet; shoes, 703,000 square feet; and miscellaneous, 3,152,000 square feet.

Automobile Industry Leads

The automobile industry led with an expansion of 2,325,000 square feet and the chemical and drug industry was second with a growth of 2,057,000 square feet. The additional expansion of 989 acres was divided among steel mills, oil refineries, stove factories, 200 firing plants, electrical plants, coke ovens, furnaces and rolling mills.

These figures were compiled by Edgar Gengenbach, industrial commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce, for a publication called "Greater St. Louis," which is to be issued for the first time Tuesday, and which is to be the official magazine of the Chamber of Commerce. It is edited by Walter B. Weisenburger, secretary of publicity for the Chamber of Commerce.

An article entitled, "What Does St. Louis Need Most Right Now?" asserts that 200,000 additional residents are required in order to provide the amount of labor necessary to keep pace with the city's industrial development.

"Those to whom housing is uppermost in mind," writes Gengenbach, "will question the advisability of more people. But are we not going ahead with extensive housing development right now? If our present devlopment is so good, why not go 200,000 better? Certainly no large industrial city has such favorable housing to begin with, as St. Louis. We have more housing property available for development and at lower prices a front foot than any other large city. Let's have 200,000 more residents come here, find profitable employment, splendid living conditions, and the comfort and security of a bank account.

Greater Than Population.

"Examine over a period of years the growth of bank clearings. Take the receipts of grain or livestock, the business done by the postoffice, the growth of our railroad tonnage—any of these basic factors. You will find the upward trend of all these items showing a far greater increase than the increase in our population.

"St. Louis' development is not accidental, it is the result of economic changes of a national character. St. Louis is on the frontier of the most rapidly growing territory in the United States. 'The old cow-skin' prairie in Oklahoma is now the richest zinc-producing section in the world. The mid-continent oil fields are the controlling factor in the petroleum business. A small section of Missouri shipped $2,000,000 of strawberries in a month. Three counties in Missouri are getting ready to market over $2,000,000 worth of cotton.

"Every one of 50,000,000 persons within our territory are doing part of their business with St. Louis. They come here for shoes, skirts, drugs, food products, tobacco, kitchenware, hardware—a score of items.

"St. Louis is like the crowded general store Saturday afternoons when everybody comes to town. Our hotels in August were full up day after day.

"A recent statement issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Department of Labor, shows that of 13 leading American cities, St. Louis shows the smallest increase in living costs during the 18 months precedng June 1 of this year.

Building Increases 184 Per Cent.

"St. Louis' building operations have increased 184 per cent the first six months of 1919 over the corresponding period in 1918.

"There will be 14,000 additional operators needed in one industrial section that two years ago was a brick yard.

"St. Louis has other immediate needs. With industry after industry calling for rental space, with sidetrack facilities—running up more than a million square feet—it looks as if St. Louis in turn needed industrial floor space more than anything else.

"With four outside companies calling for acreage plots in one day, it would seem that the widest choice of selection should be flat industrial land in plots of 10 to 200 acres at competitive prices. And last, but not least, with industries calling for more help and production the 'right now' need for more people is fully apparent."

The new publication will supplant the Chamber of Commerce "Bulletin," formerly published monthly and consisting of eight pages. "Greater St. Louis" will also be published each month, but the first issue will consist of 40 pages, printed in two colors. Approximately 8000 copies will be distributed, including 1200 copies in foreign countries.

PRESIDENT SAID HE HAD SYMPATHY FOR IRISH CAUSE

to inquire into any recent wrongs."

Walsh then said: "Mr. President, it is the present injustice, and the guerilla warfare that now exists, that we think should receive the consideration."

The President replied: "I am only one of this conference, why should this whole thing be left to me?"

Walsh said: "We are leaving it to you, Mr. President, because you are the commanding figure in the peace conference, and because it was you who raised the hopes in the hearts of these people that they could come to you."

Walsh read the President's declarations regarding the rights of peoples, and the President answered:

"Mr. Walsh, do you think that any considerable number of people, when they read my declarations, thought that these settlements were to be made at some particular place, automatically, immediately?"

Walsh replied: "Mr. President, I can speak first for myself. When I read it, I believed you meant Ireland. I believe that practically all the people in Ireland believed that, and all that I have met of our own people believed it.

"I believe you received an invitation to go to Ireland. I think it would be a fine thing for yourself and for the peace of the world if you accepted that invitation. The people would be delighted if you went to Ireland and got an understanding of the situation at first hand."

The President said: "Now, Walsh, if it is your intention to go back to America and try to put me in bad, I am going to say, when I go back, that we were well on the way of getting Mr. De Valera and his associates over here; we were well on the way, when you made it so difficult by your speeches in Ireland that we could not do it; that it was you gentlemen who kicked over the apple cart."

Discussion in Parliament.

Walsh, in reply, referred to discussions in the British Parliament of the efforts to secure safe conducts to Paris for Eamonn de Valera and other Irish Nationalists, and the President was represented as responding:

"Now, Walsh, I am not going to discuss anything that was said in the British House of Commons or House of Lords, except to say this: That I was making an effort and Col. House was making an effort, and that we thought we were well on the way of getting De Valera and his associates over here, but the speeches of you gentlemen gave such offense that the whole thing had to be abandoned."

The President, the memorandum declared, said he had not discussed with Lloyd George the question of aiding the De Valera mission, and Walsh asked the President to give his aid. The President, according to the document, replied:

"There is no use in discussing that. I don't know what the British Government would say, and I have said all I can say on the subject.

After many exchanges regarding the situation in Ireland and the attitude of the British Government, as indicated by speeches in Parliament, the President said to Walsh and Dunne:

"I want you gentlemen to understand that our position is this: That we are dealing officially with those Governments. You would not want us to make representations or engage in an effort that might involve the sending of troops into Europe, and I know that our people would not want that. What I am saying to you is that we cannot, and under no circumstances could we have at any time since we have been here, do anything in this matter of an official nature, but I want to say to you that I have the deepest sympathy for Ireland and her people and her cause. I know I speak for the others when I say that all we could do unofficially we have been doing and will do."

Walsh said: "Mr. President, what action do you propose to take on the request of the Senate?"

The President replied: "That is a matter that has not yet been taken up by our full conference."

Right to Self-Determination.

Walsh said to the President: "Mr. President, when you uttered these words declaring that all nations had a right to self-determination, that it was an issue that had to be settled once and for all, and settled on the side of justice—these expressions I have read to you—you voiced the aspirations of countless millions of people that had been saying them to each other and begging governments that oppressed them to recognize them. When you, as the head of the most powerful nation in the world, uttered them and they received the assent of the representatives of all the nations, it became a fact, Mr. President. These people are imbued with the principle. They may be killed trying to vindicate it, but they can no longer be kept in subjection by the action of diplomats, government officials, or even governments. They the free now."

The President said: "You have touched on the great metaphysical tragedy of today. My words have raised hope in the hearts of millions of people. It is my wish that they have that; but could you imagine that you could revolutionize the world at once?" * * * could you imagine that those peoples could come into that at once?"

Walsh replied: "I can imagine them, if anyone denied it, struggling to come into it at once, if it were denied in the place where they expected they were to have it come and to have it settled definitely once and for all."

The President said: "When I gave utterance to those words, I said them without the knowledge that nationalities existed which are coming to us day after day. Of course, Ireland's case, from the point of view of population, from the point of view of the struggle it has made, from the point of interest that it has excited in the world, and especially among our own people, whom I am anxious to serve, is the outstanding case of a small nationality. You do not know and cannot appreciate the anxieties that I have experienced, as the result of these many millions of people having their hopes raised by what I have said.

"For instance, oftentimes I raise a question here in accordance with these principles, and I am met with the statement that Great Britain or France or some of the other countries have entered into a solemn treaty obligation. I tell them, but is war not in accord with justice and humanity; and then they tell me the breaking of treaties is what brought on the greater part of the wars that have been waged in the world.

"No one knows the things that are inside of me while I am meeting with these people and discussing these things, and as these things that have been said here go over and over in my mind I feel it most profoundly. It distresses me. But I believe, as you gentlemen do, in Divine Providence, and I am in His hands, and I don't care what happens me individually. I believe these things and I know that countless millions of other people believe them."

Addresses in Ireland.

Gov. Dunne said: "Mr. President, do your know that the addresses made by us in Ireland, which you say have given offense to the British authorities, were along those lines. That we had enjoyed the blessings of a Republican form of Government in America for many years, and that we had grown great and prosperous as a republic, that we were pleased to note that they had in a fairly held election determined that they desired a Republican form of Government, and that we congratulated them upon their choice and hoped that their aspirations would be consummated, the very same sentiments that we had always held and thought in America, and to which the people of Ireland had responded."

The President replied: "Yes, Gov. Dunne, but suppose that, during our war of the rebellion, an Englishman had declared that the South had a right to secede, or sided with the South, nobody would have criticised him for that; but suppose that he had gone into the South while the rebellion was going on, or immediately before the rebellion, would not our Government have said that he was fomenting treason?"

Gov. Dunne said: "There is no parallel here. Here is a people who, after the armistice, held an election under the forms and securities of British law and declared for a republic, and I don't believe the cases are in any way similar."

Walsh interjected: "If you are drawing that comparison between the Southern states attempting the exercise of that called 'the right of secession' and the case of Ireland, I am compelled to say, I do not see the parallel. Would you please state in what way the cases are similar?"

The President replied that he did not say it was a parallel case.

COMMITTEE NAMED FOR ANTI-LEAGUE MEETING FRIDAY

Dr. John H. Simon Chairman of Body to Arrange for Gathering for Senator Hiram Johnson.

HE WILL SPEAK AT THE COLISEUM

Purpose Expressed to Have Crowd as Large as That Which Heard President Wilson Here.

Approximately 100 Republican office holders, active Republican workers, and members of the Republican city committee, with a sprinkling of Democrats, met last night in Hotel Statler on call of Chairman John Schmoll of the city committee to begin preliminary arrangements for an anti-league of nations address by Senator Hiram Johnson of California at the Coliseum next Friday night.

Dr. John H. Simon, a Democrat, and president of the St. Louis branch of the league for the Preservation of American Independence, under the auspices of which Senator Johnson is speaking in an attempt to counteract the effect of President Wilson's addresses, was chosen for chairman of the Coliseum meeting.

Among the Democrats at the meeting were Henry S. Priest, John P. Collins, former Judge O'Neill Ryan, John P. Leahy, Peter T. Barrett, Frederick H. Fricke and Robert E. Moloney.

Simon Chosen Chairman.

After Schmoll had explained that the visit of Senator Johnson was under the auspices of the league for the Preservation of American Independence, and that "so great a man" should have a rousing welcome from St. Louis, Leahy asked that Dr. Simon be chosen chairman of the meeting. Leahy urged that the spirit of non-partisanship should prevail, and that as Senator Johnson, the speaker, was a Republican, the chairman of the meeting should be a Democrat.

Priest attempted to head off the selection of Dr. Simon with a suggestion that the orderly and efficient method of procedure would be to choose a committee on arrangements and conduct which would select a chairman and look after all arrangements.

"The chairmanship is a matter of no consequence," said Priest. "The question is not one of party and is not so considered by the leaders of either party."

"I do not agree with Judge Priest," Leahy said. "The chairmanship is a matter of great importance, and there is no reason why it should be left to a committee. It would be a mistake to select a Republican to preside over the meeting. We ought to select the most prominent Democrat in St. Louis, and he is Dr. Simon, so declared by the Democrats of St. Louis."

More Than 30 on Committee.

Dr. Simon then was chosen and the meeting selected an arrangements committee on motion of Edward W. Foristel. The first suggestion was for a committee of 10, but soon 14 had been named. It was increased to 15, then to 20, then to 25, and then to 30, actually running a few more than that. The members of this general committee are:

Chairman John Schmoll of the Republican City Committee, former Judge O'Neill Ryan, Judge Vital W. Garesche, John P. Leahy, Edward W. Foristel, Walter C. Guels, Mrs. J. M. Hutchinson, Miss Edna Schrantz, Emil Frey, Charles Dolan, Judge Karl Kimmel, Mrs. C. T. Blesse, Mrs. Josephine Hammerstein, the Rev. Father Peter O'Rourke, Mrs. Virginia Harriss, Judge George H. Shields, Mayor Kiel, Thomas T. Fauntleroy, Mrs. Hattie E. Hewgill, Aaron Waldheim, Republican National Committeeman Jacob L. Babler, Henry S. Priest, Chairman W. L. Cole of the Republican State Committee, Dr. Carl Barck, Collector Edmund Koeln, Peter T. Barrett, Jeremiah Sheehan, Edmund Burke, Arthur J. Donnelly, Judge Chauncey J. Krueger, Frederick H. Fricke and Charles Heidbrink.

Mayor Kiel suggested there were too many Republicans on the committee, only nine of those named being Democrats, and suggested that he, Cole, Babler and Koeln retire in favor of Democrats, but no action was taken on his suggestion.

A suggestion was made that there should be one or more Democratic women named, and Mrs. E. M. Grossman was suggested. Mrs. Grossman is an active supporter of the league of nations, and when Barrett called attention to that fact her name was withdrawn.

Plan to Get Large Audience.

Ryan interrupted the proceedings with the remark: "Do you think it is necessary to have troops of cavalry, mounted guns and police at every corner for the protection of Senator Johnson?" Though he offered no explanation of his remark, it was generally taken as a sarcastic reference to the methods adopted Friday to protect President Wilson from possible cranks.

After the general committee had been named, it selected from its number an executive committee consisting of Priest, Ryan, Leahy, Foristel, Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Harriss and Babler to select sub-committees and have general charge of the arrangements. Priest is chairman.

This committee selected Mayor Kiel for chairman of the reception committee, Guels for chairman of the finance committee, Heidbrink for chairman of the committee on arrangements of the hall, and Foristel for chairman of the committee on advertising. The chairman will select the remaining members of their committees.

The executive committee and the chairmen of the sub-committees will meet at 12:30 tomorrow at the American Hotel to perfect arrangements.

There was no comment at the meeting last night on the visit of President Wilson and the effect of his speech, but there was a determined intention noticeable to leave nothing undone to provide a large audience for Senator Johnson, several persons saying that the attendance must be equal to that at the President's meeting Friday night.

Mayor Formally Invites Gen. Pershing to Come to St. Louis

MAYOR Kiel yesterday formally invited Gen. Pershing to come to St. Louis. The message, which will be handed to the General on his arrival in New York tomorrow is as follows:

"On behalf of the citizens of St. Louis, I wish to extend to you heartiest greetings upon your return to the United States, and to renew my invitation to you to visit St. Louis in the near future. Both the boys who fought under your leadership and the patriotic citizens who aided them from this side of the water are feverish in their anxiety to see and hear you.

"We know you expect to visit your native State in the near future, and I trust that you will not overlook the metropolis of Missouri in making your plans. I assure you that a warm welcome awaits you."

The telegram was addressed in care of Mrs. F. M. Swacker, chairman of the Missouri Hospitality Committee, War Camp Community Service, New York.

LABOR HEAD GIVES SOME ADVICE AT WELFARE MEETING

Speaks Up at Conference on Davison Lawn, Telling Employers to Talk to Men.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Timothy Healy, international president of the Stationary Firemen's Union, put life into a meeting on the lawn of Henry P. Davison's Locust Valley home today by challenging the assertion of a speaker "that labor got all it asked," and suggesting that "captains of industry, who are so much interested in community councils, might get better results by conferring with unions representing their employes."

In the lively discussion which followed, the speaker, Charles C. Barnes, late of the United States Employment Service, explained that he had been misunderstood.

Barnes was speaking on "community needs in industrial problems," when Healy interrupted, declaring that while organized labor has not succeeded in getting all it wants, it eventually will.

"Some day," said Barnes, "it may even get the Plumb plan."

"It hasn't got the Plumb plan yet," said Healy.

"If the heads of great industries, instead of devoting their time and money to various uplift movements, would work with organized labor, there wouldn't be so much need for community councils. I know from my own long years' of experience that captains of industry would accomplish much more good if they would sit down and talk with representatives of their employes and do less community work."

GERMANS UPSET BY CRITICISM IN U. S. OF NEW AMBASSADOR

Solf Said to Have Been Slated for Post Before Appointment of Von Haimhausen.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—The German press and Foreign Office are upset by the American comment criticising the appointment of Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen as German Ambassador to the United States.

Although Germany has named her new Ambassadors to Great Britain, China and Japan, it is not considered likely that these countries will appoint Ambassadors to Germany. It is asserted that the British Government will appoint a Charge d'Affaires, who will have no social intercourse, but will merely attend to business matters.

Dr. von Haimhausen is disappointed that his name has created criticism in the United States, it is reported, and he has definitely decided not to go to Washington.

Dr. W. S. Solf, Secretary for the Colonies, who is the selection for the ambassadorship to Great Britain, was originally slated for Washington, but it is understood that he was transferred to London so that Dr. von Haimhausen could have the post.

SOCIAL UNIT SURVEY PROPOSED

National Meeting to Formulate General Program Is Suggested.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—A meeting of social unit organizers, state officials and representative citizens from every state in the Union, to be held at Cincinnati, in October, is proposed in telegrams sent today to all state Governors by Frederick Vining Fisher, director of the New York Social Unit organization.

It is suggested that the meeting be called to discuss the results of an initial community experiment in relation to extraordinary present-day needs and opportunities and to formulate a national program.

CHARGES GEN. PERSHING WITH BEING INHUMAN

Representative Says Commander Controlled News Sources for Own Welfare.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Gen. Pershing was bitterly assailed in the House today by Representative Thomas D. Schall, a Progressive Republican of Minnesota, who was one of the four Representatives voting against conferring permanent rank of General on the American leader. Schall arose to explain why he opposed conferring this honor to "a certain peer of the British Empire, listed in the English "Who's Who at Sir John J. Pershing.

Schall charged that Pershing was an inhuman leader, who controlled the sources of news for his own welfare. He declared Pershing would have had a soldier shot who refused to recognize his authority but held himself above an investigation at the hands of a congressonal subcommittee.'

Schall concluded he could see no reason for "pressing laurels on his brow to the accompaniment of mawkish. Un-American maudlin sentimentalities putting the stamp of our approval upon this snob, this make-believe imperialist, this arch-defender of the courtmartial, established hundreds of years ago, under the tyrannical government of England, with no thought except to exploit the soldier to his own selfish ends."

In opening his speech, Schall said he had made careful inquiries of soldiers who served with Pershing in the Philippines, "who accompanied him on the ill-conducted fiasco—the trail of the lone bandit in Mexico," and hundreds of others who were in France. These, he declared, were unanimous "that he has not the elements mixed in him to stand before them as a man and a soldier, in whose elevation they would feel honored." Schall said that the "Creel bureau aided Pershing to build up a collossal advertising and propaganda machine," with the result that information was "dished out" as dictated by the Pershing policy, even soldiers not daring to talk or write. "Cables were controlled. A mawkish, un-American sycophancy, fostered by mediocre men, has lick-spittled and mewed till it is no wonder that members of Congress have been deceived," Schall said.

LABOR WANTS COVENANT APPLIED AS TO MEXICO

Urges That League of Nations Idea and Rule of Reason Prevail in Negotiations.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Application of the the principles of the league of nations covenant to the Mexican situation has been endorsed by the American Federation of Labor, through its executive council, which today issued a statement setting forth a stand taken by the council at its recent meeting here.

"Having just passed through a bitter struggle for the overthrow of autocracy and militarism, and for the development of justice and democracy," the statement said, "having made tremendous sacrifices in the achievement of these ideals, and the United States being a party in creating the principle of the league of nations whereby international war may be avoided, the executive council expresses the judgment that the principles involved in the peace treaty should be applied to the present situation between Mexico and the United States.

"We strongly urge that the rule of reason, fairness and justice shall prevail in the present negotiations and that the friendly relations between the people and the countries be maintained."

HEAD OF WEST VIRGINIA MINERS SAYS THEY WILL GO HOME

Notifies Governor 1500 Men Encamped at Danville Will Call Off Invasion.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 6.—C. F. Keeney, president of District No. 17, United Mine Workers of America, in a telephone conversation with Gov. Cornwell tonight, stated that the 1500 miners encamped at Danville would call off the invasion of Logan County and would return to their homes on a special train tomorrow. Keeney left Charleston at noon in an automobile in an effort to deter the miners from proceeding further.

Following this information from President Keeney, Gov. Cornwell said he would not ask that Federal troops be called out. At the conference today, the Governor informed Keeney that he had been in communication with Secretary of War Baker and Major-General Leonard Wood, commander of the central department, and that he could get Federal troops to Logan county before the arrival of the miners. He warned that the marchers would proceed at their own peril.

It was learned tonight that another smaller party of men has been proceeding into Logan county by way of Cabin Creek. They are now said to be about 12 miles southeast of Madison in Boone county. Efforts are being made by the mine workers' officials to stop further progress of this crowd.

Metz Welcomes K. of C. Statue Offer.

By the Associated Press.

METZ, Sept. 6.—The offer by the Knights of Columbus of a Lafayette statue, it is declared, will be welcomed with the liveliest gratitude and deepest joy by the population. This will take the place of the Hohenzollern statue that was overturned on the Esplanade.

A. E. F. PARIS PRISONERS COOPED IN 4 ROOMS

Inspector-General Says Some German Prison Camps Treated Them Better.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—The Congressional subcommittee continued its sittings today in its investigation of the affairs of the American army. Maj. Bennett, Inspector General of the Paris district, replying to questions regarding the administration of the Provost Marshal's office and soldiers' prisons in Paris, declared that the conduct of the Provost Marshal's office was unsatisfactory and inefficient prior to February of this year. However, he defended the officers of the Paris command generally on the ground that they had to contend with difficult conditions.

Arrests were made of soldiers and officers of the American Expeditionary Forces in Paris at the rate of 500 weekly during August, September and October, 1918. Many of them were deserters, some of them were accidentally "absent without leave," but all were huddled together in four rooms in the Rue Sainte Anne, in the same building where Brigadier-General Harts had his headquarters, the "A. W. O. L.'s" mingled with criminals.

Force Not Always Wisely Used.

The witness said that a great many prisoners were brought to the Rue Sainte Anne in an intoxicated condition and fighting mood, and it was necessary to use force. He admitted however, that force had not always been wisely used.

Gen. Harts, he continued, inspected the quarters once a week and knew of the conditions. He tried to get more room and procure more blankets.

Congressman Bland asked the witness why, if privates were condemned to be shot for going to sleep on duty, as occurred in two instances in the A. E. F., Gen. Hart and Col. Grinstead, "who went to sleep at their posts," should not also be courtmartialed

Maj. Bennett replied that he did not think the officers in the Paris districts should be courtmartialed becaue he thought they did the best they could under the conditions.

Better Treated in Germany.

Representative Johnson asked the witness if American soldiers were not better treated in Germany than in the prisons of the A. E. F., in Paris and Chelles, to which he replied:

"Perhaps they were in some cases."

Brigadier-General Connor, chief of the Service of Supply of the American expeditionary forces, was before the congressional subcommittee nearly all yesterday, giving evidence regarding the sale of surplus supplies and alleged prison abuses in France. He said that prisoners accused of simple infractions of military rules should have been separated in prisons from men who were convicted of crimes, but thought that Brigadier-General W. A. Harts and Col. E. P. Grinstead of the 158th Infantry could not be held responsible for abuses which have been under discussion.

Advised Against Courtmartial.

Col. Grinstead was brought before the Efficiency Board instead of before a courtmartial, as a result of charges against him, and Gen. Connor said that this action was taken on a report by the Judge Advocate-General, in whose opinion a conviction could not be obtained in the case.

Gen. Connor said the various installations, including docks and dock machinery, sold to the French, cost $250,000,000, but they represented nothing like that value to the American expeditionary forces the minute the army went out of the business of making war.

Questioned regarding the charge that National Guard officers had been removed to give places to regulars, Gen. Connor said there never was any discrimination in the army against National Guard officers.

BUYING AUSTRIAN TYROL HOTELS

American-Dutch Company Said to Be Getting Ready for Tourists.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 6.—Advices from Innsbruck state that an American-Dutch company has been formed with a capital of $25,000,000, to buy and exploit bankrupt hotels in the Austrian Tyrol for tourist purposes.

It is said that the company already has bought several of the principal hotels at Salzburg and Ischl. It appears that the Hapsburgs are willing to sell all their country residences at low prices, owing to the political situation.

TENANT WINS IN TRIAL OVER RECEIPT FOR RENT

Justice Decides He Has Right to a Correct Acknowledgment of Payment.

A tenant has a right to a correct receipt for his rent. This was established by a decision in favor of David Drisdall of 4122A Enright avenue, given by Justice Grassmuck Friday. Drisdall was sued, in an effort to oust him as tenant, by H. H. Grove of 218 Wainwright building, agent, acting in behalf of an owner named Mendelssohn.

The petition alleged that Drisdall had not paid his rent, which was at the rate of $27.50 a month. Drisdall's defense in court was that he had offered the rent, but that the agent had insisted on giving him a receipt for $30. Drisdall refused to pay unless the receipt specified the amount paid, $27.50. The Justice, after hearing this plea, said the tenant was right, and dismissed the case.

It did not appear in the testimony why the agent should desire to give an incorrect receipt. But another tenant in the same row, Mrs. Fred Bach, said yesterday that she thought she knew the reason. She said she had been paying $30 a month, and was to pay $40 as soon as the heating season should begin. She said she had understood that Drisdall and the other tenants were paying the same rent as herself. So long as their receipts were for $30, there was nothing to show her that they were paying less.

Expects Notice of Increase.

Two other tenants, Thomas Foley and Mrs. Lizzie Bright, said they had been paying $27.50 and taking receipts for $30, as the agent insisted on making out their receipts for that amount. The tenants are now expecting notice of an increase in rent.

Discrimination by landlords, against tenants who have children, is charged by three families living in the 3700 block on Wisconsin avenue, in a complaint to the city Complaint Board yesterday.

The families said they had been required to move, and that the reason for the order, in each case, was that they had children. Secretary Marsh of the Complaint Board, said he would obtain legal advice as to resistance to this action of property owners, which he considers as directly opposed to the public interest.

High School Student Barred.

Charles A. Cheney, secretary to the Water Commissioner, said yesterday, on learning of the Wisconsin avenue case, that he recently tried to rent an apartment in the Delmar and King's highway neighborhood, and that he was asked whether he had any children. He replied that he had a son, who was a third year high school student, and therefore might be presumed to be past the "destructive" age, of which landlords complain. The reply was that the property could not be rented to him, as a high school student came within the definition of "children."

"I shall have my son grow a beard as soon as possible," Cheney remarked, "and then possibly I can get him by the landlords."

Mayor Kiel has instructed other city departments to co-operate with the Complaint Board in its campaign against indiscriminate and unreasonable rent increases.

Board Receives Complaints.

Complaints received yesterday by the board were:

Four tenants in the 4200 block of Clarence avenue, increased from $18 to $20 a month; 12 three-room flats in the 3700 block of Wisconsin avenue, from $20 to $21; four flats in the 4200 block of Arsenal street, from $18 to $22; eight flats in the 4100 and 4200 block of Hartford street, from $18 to $22; apartments in the 4300 block of Shaw avenue, from 25 to 29 63-100 per cent, and a further increase threatened.

Complaint was also made that rent of offices in an office building, in the 3900 block of Olive street, were increased 50 per cent last month.

Four landlords who promise not to increase rents have listed vacant flats with the Complaint Board.

BLOCK PARTY TO BE GIVEN TUESDAY FOR MILK FUND

Children Managing Affair for 6000 Block on Suburban Avenue—Jazz Band Will Play.

Parents and neighbors in and near the 6000 block on Suburban avenue are entering heartily into the plans of a group of children who will give a block party Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. Permission has been obtained from the street commissioner for the closing of the street during the evening and preparations are being made for a large crowd.

The feature of the evening will be the dancing—free to all. Music will be furnished by a union jazz band of 25 or 30 pieces, under the direction of Edwin B. Rives. Ice cream cones, home-made cake, sandwiches and soda will be disposed of and the money earned in this way will be donated to the work for the babies. Vocal music will be furnished by some of the music publishing houses of the city, special among them being a Leo Feist male quartette which will sing popular songs.

The children who are managing the affair are under the supervision of Mrs. E. B. Rives and Misses Florence Teschemacher and Jeannette O'Leary. The little workers are: Helen Gorman, Helen Oster, Margaret and Dorothy Stubbs, Loretta O'Leary, Ruth and Helen Kiely, Lucia Beck, Helen Hartsock and Martha Harrison.

MILD RESERVATION REPUBLICANS WILL FIGHT LODGE PLAN

They have about lost hope of adding the vote equality amendment.

After abandoning all hope for the co-operation of Senators Reed and Gore, the Democrats think they will be able to do these things:

1. Prevent beyond all shadow of doubt the amendment of the treaty. No textual amendment can be put through.

2. Block the purpose of the opponents of the league of nations to kill article 10. It is believed from a survey of the situation that all Democrats except Reed and Gore will support the administration on this proposition, with enough Republicans to foil Lodge, Brandegee, Borah and Johnson in their plans to kill the league.

3. Eliminate the opposition the labor provision. It is estimated that the Democrats will lose Senator Thomas, King and Reed on this proposition, but will gain a dozen or more Republicans.

It is conceded by Democrats that a Monroe Doctrine reservation will be adopted. A number of administration Democrats will support this in some form.

The mild reservationists claim that they will increase their number by addition of Senators Lenroot of Wisconsin and Spencer of Missouri within the next few days. They believe that they will sign the pledge not to support the commitee reservations.

The Democrats are encouraged. They do not take seriously the talk of Senator Smith of Georgia. Senator Lodge expects the support of six Democrats for his program. He is counting on Senators Shields of Tennessee, Smith of Georgia, Walsh of Massachusetts, Thomas of Colorado, Gore of Oklahoma and Reed of Missouri.

McCumber's Statement.

Senator McCumber in a statement today said:

"The reservation adopted by the committee in reference to article 10 of the treaty does not meet the views of the mild reservationists. Those who have opposed the adoption of the treaty altogether and those who wish violent and radical amendments to the league of nations have all declared again and again on the Senate floor that they favored a declaration that this Government, under conditions like those of the Great War, would throw its power against the nation that would make another such war possible.

"Now this proposed reservation relating to article 10 is in effect a declared policy on the part of the United States squarely on the wrong side of the great moral issues that may arise in the case of the threatened future wars. It not only does this, but it is absolutely counter to the long established policy of this country to do all in its power to secure settlement of international disputes without war. It is far worse than an amendment would be, striking out article 10 entirely. The latter, at least, would not put on record the United States as to the future. This committee reservation puts us on record as being opposed to interference with any conditions outside our country, no matter how atrocious they might be."

Senators today manifested keen interest in the President's declaration that some of them were "contemptible quitters." Republican leaders, among them Senators Lodge and New, think the President is losing his temper.

"It looks to me as if the President is annoyed," said Senator New. "It was too bad that the Senators seemed to break away from the President the day after he [illegible]."

$9852 ARMY FOOD SOLD AT TENTH WARD STORE

Line of 500 Persons Was Waiting at Opening of Sale Yesterday—Some Arrived at 6 A. M.

The sale of army food by the Tenth Ward Improvement Association at 3908 South Broadway, continued yesterday morning with unabated vigor and when the final customer had been taken care of $2165.13 worth of goods had been sold, bringing the total sales for two weeks to $9852.71. Only a few cases of tomatotes were unsold.

There was a greater variety of foodstuff on sale yesterday than had been offered on any previous day, consisting of bacon, roast beef, corned beef, peas, corn, tomatoes, asparagus, pumpkin, jams and soups, which could be bought by the case or by cans and jars. There were no beans or rice on hand and only a small quantity of corn and peas. This shortage was due to the fact that only those goods had been delivered from the Arsenal which had been carefully inspected. prices were lower than the regular market prices, bacon selling for a little less than 35 cents a pound, tomatoes for 9, 10 and 11 cents a can; corned beef, 29 cents a can; corn, 9 cents; peas, 9 cents; pumpkin, 5 cents; and jam, 24 cents. Patrons were limited to 1 can of corn and peas, and to 1 case of the other goods.

The lines began forming at 6 a. m., and when the store opened at 9:30 more than 500 men, women and children were waiting. Many took their breakfasts with them. They went from all parts of the city and there were several from East St. Louis, Collinsville and Granite City. To revent confusion, buyers were compelled to enter at the rear door and to leave by the front door.

All sorts of conveyances were used to get the goods home. Some were in automobiles, some in street cars, and a great number walked. In the latter cases, one of the small boys with tiny express wagons was employed at the rate of two blocks for a nickel.

The sale of army food by the association entails no expense whatever. The saleswomen, who are members of the association, donate their services; Charles Hoffman permits the use of his store without any payment of rent, and the city carries the goods from the Arsenal free of charge.

The quality of the food and the low price were demonstrated when it was observed that none of the saleswomen left the store after the sale without purchasing some of the goods herself.

The next sale will be held at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday. Sales will be continued on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays until all the army food is sold.

GROUPING OF BIG PLANTS ADDS VALUE TO COSHOCTON ADDITION

The recent erection of plants for the General Motors Company, the Pullman Company, The St. Louis Paper Can and Tube Company, and many others, is held to have distinct bearing on the value of land in Coshocton, the subdivision fostered by H. F. Woodward at Goodfellow and Florissant avenues. He points out that employes of these companies, also prospective employes and investors in general, will appreciate the necessity of locating quickly before the most desirable lots are absorbed.

During the past five years Woodward has developed Coshocton into a notably beautiful home site, and his foresight has been well rewarded as less than one-third of the addition remains unsold. Coshocton has been improved with all modern conveniences, without raising the price above that of unimproved property in the vicinity.

Prices will remain stable until Jan. 1, 1920, thus giving every home seeker a chance to locate. Operating costs, however, are climbing and prices cannot be guaranteed beyond the date named.

SEVEN MORE HILLCREST LOTS SOLD, ONLY A FEW AVAILABLE

A. R. Schollmeyer effected the sale of seven more lots in Hillcrest last week. One was to a prominent real estate man whose name is wtihheld, but who is having plans drawn for a handsome home. All the purchasers are said to have building plans which will be put into execution at once.

With the new city limits car line running through Hillcrest it has come into large demand for sites for high-class homes.

Schollmeyer said yesterday that only a few of the well situated lots now are to be had at the original price.

IRREGULAR LOSSES IN CATTLE MARKET HERE

Week's Prices Show Slightly Lower Drift Owing to Poor Buying Demands.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle	24,440	38,225	34,369
Hogs	30,555	44,325	33,930
Sheep	11,136	23,552	10,189
Horses and mules	7,320	5,204	4,855

Killers complained as to the poor demand down East for beef and the lighter demand for beef in that section, and came out here last week to buy their cattle at prices they called in line with the trade in Eastern cities. The result was that prices on the best heavyweight cattle were punished 25c to 50c. There was a class of medium cattle selling between $12 and $14 that looked near steady, and below that, the plainer grades appeared to get a better call, going higher. It was an uneven steer trade and very few prime cattle were offered.

Butcher cattle were also irregular. The market tended to show a little strength in spots. Heifers of good quality and light, suitable for local butcher trade and Western hotel trade showed strength and were 50c higher than a week ago, and plainer grades, while a little higher, were good, strong sellers. Big, heavy cows, coming into competition with Western steer stuff, were little changed, but canner and cutter cows showed a big quarter advance on most sales. Bulls were bad sellers and slow all week.

Stocker call was stronger. Many buyers put in their appearance and this influence reflected on the market, shoving values up 25c to 50c over last week. Better crop prospects and plenty of fall pastures are having a tendency to revive the stocker and feeder situation at present.

Veal calves went ballooning this week, prices shooting to a new high-water mark. Top was $20.50, or 25c above the previous record of $20.25, made the fore part of August. Heavy calves were stronger also. Common yearlings, mostly of the Southern variety, were a half-dollar higher.

The severe break in hogs the previous week had a tendency to hold up receipts somewhat during last week's session; a moderate supply arriving. Influenced by moderate runs, the market showed a favorable reaction at the opening, choice hogs advancing sharply during the initial day. However, the following day witnessed a decline of 15@25c and throughout the week additional losses were put in force, with the result that Friday closed with all of the early gains completely wiped out. Market Saturday showed a favorable reaction, general trade advancing 15@25c on a light supply. This puts the market about on a steady level, with the extreme close last week on hogs. Pigs, however, have featured active selling at the week's finish and closing trades reflected an advance of 50c over Friday a week ago. Best pigs and lights at the finish were bringing $19.25 top, against $18.75 last Friday. Week's high point was Monday, with a top of $20.50 on hogs, and lowest level was reached yesterday with a high mark of $19.75.

Although the market for sheep opened no more than steady with the close of the previous week, continued moderate receipts proved a stimulus towards greater activity, and during the midweek session advances were registered on lambs which continued throughout the remainder of the week. Closing trade on [illegible] lambs was [illegible] higher [illegible] at the [illegible] Mutton sheep failed to show any favorable reaction, bulk of sales ruling steady with previous week's 50c decline, which was the first loss of any consequence in several months. Bulk of the sheep at close brought $8@8.50, choppers $5.50@6 and canners down to $3. Good choice breeding ewes are quotable at $11.50@12.50; fair kinds, $10@11, and commoner kinds down to $8@10. Fat bucks are selling around $5.50@6.

The Saturday market witnessed a loss of 25@50c on lambs as compared with Friday's trade, top on lambs being forced down to $14.75. However, the last day is always an off one at the sheep house and trade is no exact representation of the status of the general market.

Under one of the heaviest receipts ever seen at the local market for this time of the year, horse market failed to maintain previous week's level on the plainer animals. However, top Southerners showed no great change considering the unusually heavy runs, market held up very well. There were a large number of buyers on the market, but they had a large selection to pick from and were in a position to assert their demands for quality. There were a few Eastern representatives on hand, but a greater portion of the week's business was confined to the sale of native Southern horses and bronchos from the Western ranges. Of the latter there were 3500 that found a clearance.

WIDE LOSSES SCORED IN THE CORN MARKET

Week's Trading Is Influenced by Bearish Statement of Herbert C. Hoover.

Big setbacks in the price of corn took place here last week, largely owing to authoritative assertions that European ports were glutted with foodstuffs for which moneyed buyers could not be found, and that the crest of the high cost of living had been passed in the United States. Compared with a week ago, corn quotations at the close yesterday were 6¾c to 17c lower. Oats down 1c to 2½c.

Sentiment in the corn trade became intensely bearish after Herbert C. Hoover, the official representative of the United States, on the Interallied Relief Commission, had declared that wharves and warehouses in Northern Europe were overflowing with foodstuffs that were in danger of rotting, as a result of lack of purchasers who could command adequate credit.

Accompanying this statement was an embargo on all domestic grain shipments to Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Then came word from an unofficial, but none the less influential source, that not only had the peak of the high cost of living been crossed, but that a considerable drop was in prospect. Drastic liquidation followed, and it was not until Friday that buying showed any notable return of confidence. Yesterday the market was irregular at Friday's rally.

Oats, like corn, fell to the lowest prices yet this season, but the market met support and rallied Friday and yesterday, on small receipts of poor weight, suggesting that the new crop is not only a very small one, but is of very poor quality.

Cash corn was 1c to 3c higher here yesterday and in good demand.

Cash oats 1c to 1½c up and in good demand.

CORN IS FAIRLY STEADY ON THE CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Uncertainty as to the character of the Government crop report to be issued on Monday had a tendency to make the corn market today unstable. Fluctuations, however, although irregular and numerous, were not wide. The close was nervous, varying from ¼c net lower to 2¼c advance, with September $1.64 to $1.64¼ and December $1.31¾ to $1.31⅞. Oats finished ⅜c to ⅝c higher, and provisions at 22c decline to a rise of $1.75.

Notwithstanding that private reports have suggested but little change in crop outlook during August, traders on both sides of the corn market were disposed to avoid any chance of a surprise in the Government's new figures. Besides, sentiment was much mixed as to whether corn would go further in an approach to pre-war levels unless accompanied to a greater extent by other commodities than has been the case of late. Bulls took the position that the answer would depend chiefly on the farmers and would be in the negative. On the other hand, the fact that sterling exchange today had fallen to a new low record exercised at times a noticeable contrary influence.

Improved demand from Eastern shippers gave relative firmness to oats.

Provisions averaged higher owing more or less to packers buying.

COTTON 54 TO 68 POINTS DOWN IN NEW YORK TRADE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The cotton market showed renewed weakness today, with January and later months making new low ground for the movement, while December sold back to 28.55c, or even with the lowest point, with the tone easy at a net decline of 54 to 68 points. There was some irregularity at the start as a result of covering for over the week end. The opening was steady at an advance of 6 to 12 points on the near months, but later deliveries were unchanged to 3 points lower and prices weakened right after the call.

There may have been a little trade buying, but except for tce covering there was very little support, while the South was a moderate seller and later in the morning there was considerable pressure from houses with Liverpool and Wall Street connections. October broke from 28.98c to 28.30c and January from 29.15c to 28.42c, reaching the lowest levels of the day late in the morning.

The weakness of sterling exchange was a factor, particularly in the late trading, while bearish sentiment also found encouragement in continued good weather, the comparatively small amount of cotton reported on shipboard at the end of the week, and reports that declines in raw material had increased the disposition of goods buyers to hold off.

Reports from Philadelphia said that Southern yarn spinners were cutting prices and very small sales of print cloths were reported at Fall River, although Western distributors say that there is still a good retail and jobbing business. The first ginning report of the season will be issued at the opening on Monday morning.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

Evening Post Financial Expert Characterizes Violent Manipulation of Certain Shares as Stock Exchange Scandal.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"That this week's market for the speculative industrial shares has approached fairly close to a Stock Exchange scandal, is probably the opinion of the majority of sober observers. It will doubtless be alleged, and correctly enough, that the real provoking cause was the speculative public itself; that a gambling mania had got control of these outsiders; that the same impulse which makes them force up the cost of living, paying extraordinary prices for the goods they buy, was inducing them to risk their money with entire recklessness in stocks of whose intrinsic value they knew little and cared less.

"All this is a phenomenon with which the Stock Exchange has at intervals been familiar enough. If it does not excuse the very brazen manipulation of the stocks by professional 'insiders'—the alternate putting in and withdrawal of artificial support, whereby prices were made to rise and fall 5 points or more alternately, almost between the bids of the infatuated outsiders—it explains at any rate, how the thing was possible. It does not explain why the speculation should have reached its pinnacle of extravagance at just this moment.

Speculation Rather Wild.

"To account for that it is necessary to assume that the speculative contingent had dismissed all concern over the known financial influences. Nothing is more absolutely proved by all past experience than the fact that absorption of capital and credit in a wild Stock Exchange speculation, during the early autumn season, in a year of great activity in legitimate trade and industry, is bound to be demoralizing to the general business situation and dangerous to the financial markets themselves.

"The fact that it occurred this year, on top of the explicit warnings of the Federal Reserve Board, in the light of the perfectly well-established principle that the credit fund, which is being used for the speculation, will soon be needed elsewhere, and in face of a labor situation which was at least pervaded with critical uncertainty, merely indicates that the people indulging in the adventures of the week, believe the Stock Exchange to be immune from all such influences. The Stock Exchange has its own traditions, as to the outcome of markets based on that preconception.

"Like all the successive movements in this year's rather extraordinary market, this particular demonstration reflects the tendencies of the day. But the real question suggested by it is not so much why these financial extravagances should be thus violently in evidence, but what kind of situation, outside as well as inside of the Stock Exchange, is likely to follow.

The Course of Money.

"The course of the money market is as yet unscrutable, the one certainty being that if the speculators and their banking supporters have been resorting, directly or indirectly, to the Federal Reserve to finance their ventures, then the Federal Reserve authorities are absolutely bound to interfere with all the power which they possess.

"It is not at all necessary to assume as a certainty either that money market conditions will cause trouble later or that the labor situation will become formidably acute. What is essential, however, is to recognize facts, possibilities and the bearing of both on the position of the market, if this week's extravagances were to continue.

"The Wall Street money market may conceivably remain easy up to Dec. 31; but not even the banks can reckon surely on that result, when governing conditions now differ wholly from those of the past four years.

"The labor unions may arrive at a satisfactory compromise with the employers, and may abide by the decisions reached. But the laborer himself is in quite as abnormal a mood as is the patron of this week's stock market. He also is insisting that former precedent—and visible conditions have no bearing on the present situation, and it is yet to be discovered exactly what will be the outcome."

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Reflecting latest labor conditions, steel shares were moderately unsettled at the opening of today's stock market, but the tendency otherwise was toward recovery from yesterday's depression. Motors and affiliated specialties were the strongest features at gains of 1 to 2½ points. Oils were irregular, California Petroleum falling to 1⅜, while Mexican Petroleum gained 1½. Shippings indicated a revival of the recent demand, but rails lagged behind the general list. A firmer tone developed among leaders before the end of the first half hour.

Light trading attended today's short session of the stock market, the uncertain tone being ascribed to latest aspects of the labor situation. U. S. Steel was under moderate pressure at an extreme decline of 1⅜. Losses of 1 to 3 points were recorded by related issues, also equipments and rails. These were neutralized by gains of 1 to 5 points in oils, shippings and several of the motors and their subsidiaries. Dealings were of the usual week-end character, consisting chiefly of the unsettlement of outstanding accounts. The closing was irregular. Sales approximated 400,000 shares.

Dun's Review.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Dun's review says: "Business sentiment, in the present uncertain period, is susceptible to quick fluctuation, and this week brought a sudden reversal of feeling. The turn has been for the better and a less threatening labor outlook chiefly explains it. Fresh strikes of magnitude that had seemed to be impending have fortunately failed to develop, thus clearing the atmosphere, and benefits may conceivably accrue from the proposal for a conference on the industrial situation in October. The whole question of wage adjustment is obviously bound up with the high price problem, which is everywhere causing agitation and which has left an unmistakable imprint on conditions. While renewed impetus is given to manufacturing and distribution as the vacation season draws to its closing, and though there is conspicuous activity on work previously taken, yet the fact remains that new business in some important lines is now distinctly hesitating and that there is greater conservatism respecting the future."

London Review.

Special Cable Dispatch to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—"Complete details of your railroad plan are as yet unknown here. The Morning Post alone deals briefly with it. The proposal making organized strikes criminal under certain conditions is warmly approved. It is considered that such action, with the President's recent stand on wages, gives a timely lead in labor questions at a moment when there appeared to be great danger that trades unionism would degenerate into Bolshevikism.

"Were our financial capacity greater nothing would attract the attention of English investors to American securities more than your common-sense attitude toward labor problems. Financial circles believe that our past pandering to the attitude of labor is not merely suicidal locally, but harmful to other industrial centers.

"Our own railroads are in an extraordinary position, the Government having granted wages on a scale which renders it impossible for the roads to pay their way unless 'goods rates' are raised, which is against trading interests. Hence, either nationalization or prolonged Government subsidies will be necessary if dividends are to be maintained. Nevertheless, there is no faith in the competence of the Government to organize the railroads on a satisfactory basis. The experience of the postoffice, the telegraphs and telephones all give clear warning as to what may be expected in that line.

The Move for Economy.

"Considerable skepticism is expressed over the Government's move for economy. Doubtless there will be a strong show of cutting down national expenditure, but the real trouble goes deeper. Because labor is utterly demoralized by concessions in hours and wages and by the unemployment doles, discipline and efficiency in the industrial world are giving place to chaos. Moreover, the inconsistency of the Government is demonstrated by the fact that it refuses to take steps to make money dearer because such a course would be against its own interest as a borrower. It is admitted that higher money rates might check inflation, lower prices of commodities and improve the foreign exchange. The adverse position of the exchanges cost the nation far more than would a rise in interest rates.

"Unfortunately, the slackness of the Government in this direction is encouraged by money market interests, which find present conditions favorable for dividends. The Exchequer is now considering further inflation through recommencement of borrowings on ways-and-means advances, which are essentially overdrafts at the Bank of England."

Weekly Wool Review.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: "Another dull week is reported in the wool market, with prices holding barely steady and ordinary and inferior wools slightly easier. Manufacturers are well occupied, however, and the demand for goods continus strong. The situation in England is very strong. River Plate markets are easier."

New York Curb Market.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Price movements on the Broad street curb were mixed, with confused jumble of alternating advances and declines, some issues showing severe losses as the week ended. One new issue which appeared, General Tractors, started at 7¼ and dropped to 3¼. Colonial Tire broke from 32 to 15, and there was another severe breake in Savold Tire. Pressman Tire continued its downward movement, selling at $6. Columbia Graphophone was one of the strongest features in the outside market, advancing from 46 to 51. Hupp Motors were also strong, with trading at 11½ to 13¼. United States Rubber "rights" were traded in from 14 to 12½, and Industrial Alcohol "rights" sold at 31 to 28. A feature of the week's trading was the development of strength in Marconi of America, in which the transactions were on a large scale at times, with the price moving up 6½.

Following is a list of the day's highest, lowest and closing prices for the most active stocks dealt in on the Broad street curb:

Cards' Secondary Pitchers Fail to Stop Reds; Umpire Benches Schupp for Kicking

Sallee Holds Cardinals Safe Throughout Game Except When Teammates' Errors Net One Run and Hornsby Poles a Homer —Umpire Harrison Puts Crimp in Locals—Final Score, 5-2.

By John E. Wray.

PAT MORAN'S near-champion Reds jumped on the Cards' second string pitching staff, yesterday afternoon, and rapped out 10 safe hits. Aided by two errors and—so irate fans contended—abetted by Umpire Pete Harrison, the team which is expected to face the White Sox for the world's championship in a few weeks, trimmed our lowly Rickeymen 5 to 2.

Nearly all the uncertainties on the Cardinals' mound force broke into the game, which was opened for the defense by Ferdinand Schupp, who is endeavoring to show cause why he should henceforth be considered a first string hurler. Opposed to Ferdinand, for the Reds, was Sheriff Slim Sallee, who, as is customary with Slim and other Sheriffs, was "there" in the pinch—to arrest the enemy's attack.

Schupp lasted one and two-thirds innings on the hill. Ferdie would have tarried longer, despite the fact that he yielded three hits and two runs, in this brief time; but the club's nemesis, Pete Harrison, vetoed the proposition.

Schupp Benched for Objecting.

Pete's objection to Schupp was not that his pitching was bad, but that his language and actions were coarse. They reflected on his (Harrison's) efficiency.

The situation was this: Two were down and one on, with Rath up. The count was two and one, on Rath, when Schupp put over a real strike that Harrison saw as a ball.

Schupp went up in the air.
So did his glove.
Likewise his tone of voice.

But they all three came down when Harrison jerked his thumb toward the bench, and snarled: "You're out of the game!"

So Ferdie didn't have a fair chance to complete his case and show good cause why he should be considered a comeback.

Incidentally, Harrison later in the game picked on Schupp's battery mate, Clemons, and ran him to the showers, because he (Clemons) objected conversationally to having a ball called a strike while he was at bat.

Schupp Coming Back Today.

However, Schupp will have his revenge. Manager Rickey announced last night that Ferdinand would pitch one game of today's double bill. That game will be the one in which Umpire Harrison is NOT behind the plate.

The story of Schupp's brief dally in the game reads worse than his display really was. The two runs in the first inning were directly due to an error of Heathcote who, with one down, and Daubert on first by way of a walk, manhandled a single so that both runners advanced, making it possible for two runs to score when Neale singled later. The only other safety, Rariden's hit in the second, was a slow teaser which Stock reached too late to play.

Cincinnati received excellent pitching from the veteran Sallee who carefully avoided putting them across the plate at all stages and teased the enemy into biting at his offerings. The Cards made two hits each in the second, sixth and ninth; but no runs were forthcoming in any of these rounds, save the sixth, when Rogers Hornsby batted one into the right field screen, where it stuck for a home run.

The Cardinals' only other tally was made in the fifth inning. In this round Rath of the Reds caused all the disturbance and threatened to inaugurate a real rally when he muffed a pop fly off Mollwitz's bat. Molly was first up, too. When Rath fumbled Lavan's grounder putting two on and none out, the crowd began to look for the fireworks.

Jack Miller was sent in to slam for the pitcher; but his best was to hit into a double play. Schultz gave a life when he singled, scoring Mollwitz with the Cards' first run; but Heathcote died tamely.

In winning there is not much glory for the Reds. They faced only the secondary twirlers of a team that is running seventh. At no time did the visitors threaten a rout of even these hurlers. Woodward succeeded Schupp and he yielded four hits and three runs in the three and one-third innings. May, who went in at the start of the sixth, allowed four bases on balls in two innings; but the Reds' attack was unable to convert these into runs. Tuero yielded only a couple of safeties. That's the kind of overwhelming attack that is going to beat the White Sox, four out of five games, according to Bill Phelon, who smokes up for a Cincinnati sport page.

About the only brilliant playing during the afternoon was done by Johnny Lavan whose really fine efforts in handling throws to stop the stealers were little short of superhuman. Johnny ought to be a welcome player on any infield, to any catcher.

Neale a Big Factor.

Neale was the big factor for Cincinnati yesterday. His drives scored three of the five runs counted by the Reds.

Heathcote's muff in the first was on an easy bounce. Groh singled with one down and Daubert on first. The ball got away from Cliff and Jake pulled up at third and Heine at second. Roush's bounder was too slow for Hornsby to make the play at the plate and Daubert counted. Groh scored on Neale's clean single. Kopf ended the round with a fly.

After Neale had fanned in the fourth two rather lucky hits figured in a run. Kopf hit a measly Texas Leaguer back of first and Duncan drove one at Mollwitz. Molly handled it, but could not cling to it. It went as a safe hit. An infield out scored the only run of the round.

Neale's Bat Again Helps.

Rath's single, a sacrifice, a base on balls and Neale's double counted the Reds only other runs of the game in the fifth round.

Schupp to Pitch One Game Today

Southpaw Benched by Umpire Yesterday Will Get Another Trial.

Ferdinand Schupp will pitch again today. He will oppose the Reds in that game of the duoble bill in which Umpire Harrison is not behind the bat. Jacobs or Goodwin will work in the other contest.

Yesterday's attendance was about 4000. No official was given out.

Umpire Harrison has officiated in 37 games for the Cards — more than any other ump. Familiarity seems to breed contempt.

Eller and Fisher will work for Cincinnati today.

Janvrin, the new infielder recently acquired by Rickey, made his first appearance in a game for the Cards, when he batted for May in the seventh. He hit the ball solidly for a long foul, but went out on an infield drive later. He ought to be a valued asset to the club on his past record.

RICE INSTITUTE STAR HEADS ARMY GRIDIRON SQUAD FOR 1919 SEASON

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The army football squad got a hot weather workout, today, under a scorching sun. The men were drilled in "the merest fundamentals, the excessive heat precluding the possibility of anything bordering on heavy work.

Harry Tuthill, who trained the successful Army elevens of '14 and '15, reported here for duty today and will look after the physical condition of the army squad the balance of the season. Tuthill is the trainer of the Detroit American League baseball team.

Cadet Alexander George of the senior class, who was appointed to the military academy from Texas and who entered here in June, 1918, has been elected captain of the army eleven. George played at Rice Institute before coming here. He is 21 years old and is a candidate for the quarterback position.

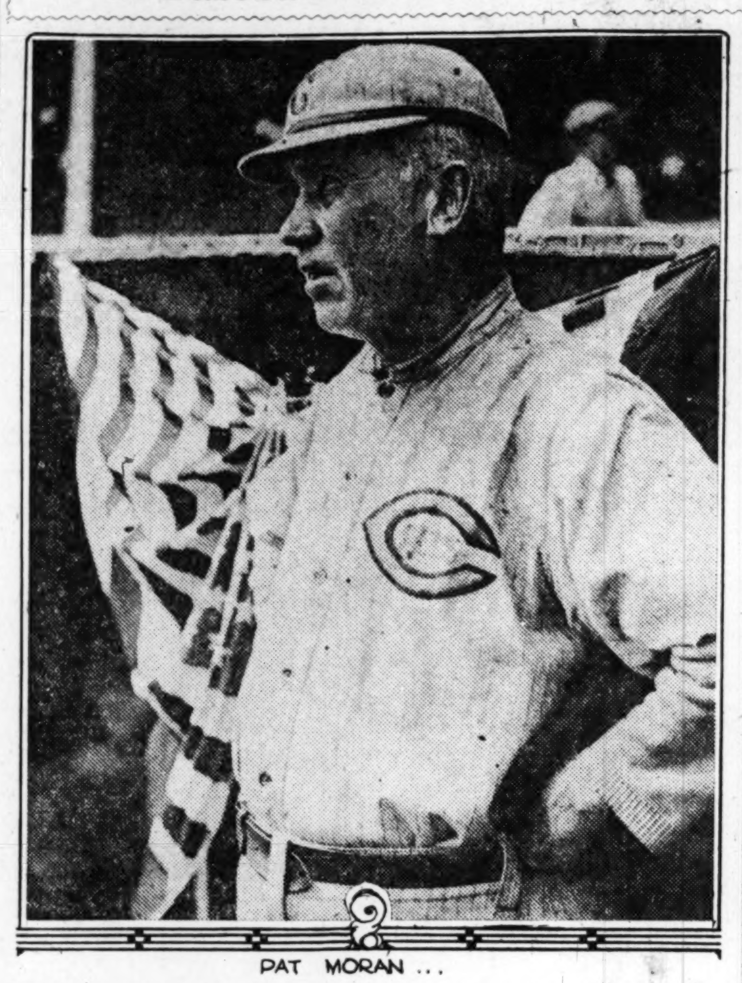
200-METER RACE TO BE RE-RUN TO BREAK TIE IN NATIONAL PENTATHLON

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 6.—Failure to catch the correct time in the 200-meter run of the National Pentathlon, or all-around championship, here today, caused the Amateur Athletic Union track officials to decide upon rerunning that part of the event Monday.

This is necessary in order to break a tie for first place between Jack Fritz of the New York Athletic Club and Bernard Lichtman of the Pastime Athletic Club, New York. Each had a low score of seven points. Daniel Shea, Pastime Athletic Club, was third with 11 points, and B. Booth, Paulist Athletic Club, New York, fourth with 15.

Michael Devaney of the Millrose A. C., New York, won the National two-mile steeplechase event in 10m 17 2-5s.

Here's the Only "Miracle Man" in Baseball Able to Come Back



PAT MORAN . . .

WHEN Pat Moran took over the wreck of a club left him, following the passing of Dooin as leader of the Phils, he astonished the world by winning a pennant with what most critics thought was a last place club. That transferred to him the unofficial title of "Miracle Man," previously held by George Stallings.

Notwithstanding his showing with the Phils, Moran yas let out by President Baker of the Quakers, last winter. New York gave him a job as coach; but McGraw foolishly put a weapon into Cincinnati's hand by releasing Patrick to the Reds, when it was found Mathewson would not return.

Moran took the club that Matty and others had failed with, and is now practically certain of winning the 1919 flag. It was a "Miracle Man" performance.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Brooklyn defeated New York here today, 6 to 5, in the last game these clubs are scheduled to play with each other this season. The game gave Brooklyn the last series, two games out of three, but New York won the year's series, 12 games to eight.

The game was a see-saw affair won by Brooklyn in the eighth inning when Konetchy doubled with two out and scored on a single by Mamaux. Mamaux, who relieved Smith, did not permit a hit in the three innings he pitched. Score:

HARRY FRAZEE WILL OPPOSE 9-GAME SERIES

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 6.—Owner Harry H. Frazee of the Red Sox is opposed to the plan to make the world series a five out of nine proposition instead of the traditional four-out-of-seven classic it has been ever since it was started by Organized Baseball.

He made this declaration over the long distance telephone from New York after sitting through the hearing on the famous Mays injunction case before the Supreme Court of the State.

He said that it was his conviction that any sporting event which had been so successful as the world series should not be changed, should not be dragged out and should retain all of its traditional regulations.

Indians Beat Sox and Pass Tigers

Cleveland Sluggers Pound Williams and Three Other Chicago Slabmen.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Cleveland won an easy victory from Chicago today, 11 to 2, and as a result the league leaders' lead in the pennant race was cut to 6½ games. The victory of the visitors, coupled with the defeat of Detroit at the hands of St. Louis, put the Indians in second place and Detroit in third position.

Cleveland hammered Williams so hard that he was withdrawn at the end of four innings. Before the finish Manager Gleason used three more slabmen.

The locals hit Bagby hard, but only twice were they able to produce runs.

Municipal Nines Play First Round of Elimination Games

Wagners, Sidney Streets, Arcadias and St. Leos Score Victories—Weis Hurls Two-Hit Game—Second Round of Play for Park Championship to Be Contested Today.

Some lop-sided scores and several close struggles resulted yesterday in the first round elimination games of the Municipal Baseball League. Striking contrasts were the 15—0 victory of the Wagners over the American Ladys of the Hamilton-Brown League and the 10-inning tilt between the Sidney Streets of the Sunday League and the Holy Trinitys of the North Side League, in which the church boys scored a 3—2 victory.

The Ely-Walkers of the Commercial League trounced the St. Johns of the South Side Sodality League, 14—2. Schwartz and Reuter held the South Siders to three hits while the losers turned nine errors.

The St. Louis Screws of the Independent League had a rather easy time downing the St. Marks of the K. F. M. circuit, grabbing the heavy end of an 8—1 score.

Another one-sided verdict was gained by the St. Leos of the Empire League over the Shapleigh League office team. The Empire winners counted 13 markers off Hageman's slants while O'Donnell gave only six runs on the 11 swats he allowed.

The Starters of the Wagner League defeated the Ever Tytes of the Manufacturers League, 9—4. The Starters got only four safe hits, but the seven miscues pulled by the Ever Tytes were costly.

The Arcadias of the South Side League blanked the Kiddie Kars of the Simmons League, 5 to 0. Weis hurled great ball, allowing only two hits. Starr allowed five, but his mates were guilty of five misplays in th field.

The second round of elimination games will be played today.

"Nine-Game Series Not Commercialism; Owners Are for It"—Herrmann

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 6.

AUGUST HERRMANN, chairman of the National Baseball Association, said today he is confident the National and American League club owners will vote in favor of a nine-game world series.

The cry of commercialism raised in some quarters, following the proposal to change the number of series games, is not being taken seriously by the president of the Red club.

"Col. Til Huston of the New York Americans was one of the first to cry commercialism, when he first heard the National Commission wanted a nine-game series," Herrmann said, "but after Huston reads a commission bulletin sent to him and other owners I do not believe he will vote against a longer series.

"The commission bulletin announces the contending clubs will turn over to the two leagues 75 per cent of their part of the receipts of the eighth and ninth games, if they are played. That ought to still the cry of commercialism."

Browns Outslug Tigers and Win; Make 18 Safeties

Burkemen, Especially Tobin, Hammer Four Tiger Hurlers; Final Score, 12 to 10.

LEIFIELD IS BENCHED

Sothoron, Sent to the Rescue in the Seventh, Is Barely Able to Hold Enemy.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 6.—The Browns vanquished the Detroit Tigers this afternoon in the heaviest batting carnival witnessed at Navin Field this season, score 12 to 10.

Thirty-three safe drives were amassed by the two teams, with a total of 47 bases, St. Louis getting 18 of these hits. It was immense sport for the 16,000 half-holiday fans, who relished the wholesale swatting. The fun started in the first inning, and never lagged for a solitary instant until the last man was out in the last half of the ninth.

The Tigers used four pitchers in the conflict, while the Browns sent in two, Sothoron relieving Leifield after two were out in the seventh.

Bernie Boland started for Detroit, but after three runs were made at his expense, he was sent to the showers and Doc Ayers appeared upon the scene.

Doc was touched up for three runs in the second, or as many hits and two errors, and when Dyer was sent in to bat for him in Detroit's half, it was made manifest that Jennings had tired of the ex-Washington hurler.

Browns' Sluggers Pound Kallio.

Kallio was the next victim of the Browns' terrific onslaught. Jacobson, Demmitt and Tobin all drove the ball to various sections of the lot for a total of four bases and one run in the fourth, when Jennings waved to Kallio to "beat it." Then Cunningham took up the burden for the Tigers and worried through to the end.

Two passes and three singles gave the Browns three runs in the first after which the Tigers counted two on Cobb's double, Veach's sacrifice fly and Heilmann's triple.

Three hits and two errors, especially the one made by Veach when Bobbie let Tobin's single get through, netted three more runs for St. Louis in the second.

The Tigers added two to their count in the second. Leifield was lucky in getting out as well as he did, in this canto. There was a close decision by Chill on Cobb, when the Georgian was called safe on a hit to Austin and Ollie heard a few things in particular and many in general as to how his vision was regarded by Burke's men.

Jacobson's double and singles by Demmitt, Tobin and Severeid gave the Browns two runs in the fourth.

In the fifth, Tobin hit safely and was advanced to third by Smith, who singled over in Flagstead's territory. Ainsmith, in attempting to nab Tobin at third, hit the runner in the back with the ball, enabling Tobin to score. Severeid's double sent Smith across the plate.

Tigers Start Two Rallies.

The Tigers threatened in the seventh and eighth, getting three runs in each frame. Just as Jennings' heavy artillery was getting into damaging action in the seventh and had a trio of runs across, Sothoron was sent into the breach by Burke and the bombardment stopped.

What proved the winning runs for St. Louis, as the game progressed, came in the eighth inning. Demmitt singled and Tobin doubled. Smith sent a long sacrifice fly to Flagstead and Demmitt counted, while a minute later Gerber squeezed Tobin home with a sacrifice bunt.

In their half of the eighth the Tigers counted three times on as many hits, two of the drives being for three bases. After walking Ainsmith, the first man up in the ninth Sothoron set down the next three Tigers as fast as they appeared at the plate.

Tobin was the hitting marvel during the afternoon, securing five hits in as many times at bat.

Roger Lord Leads in District Golf Qualifying Round

Algonquin Player Scores 75, Leading Wolff and Rhoades, Who Tie With 76.

ONLY 4 CARDS UNDER 80

Fast Greens and Fairways Make Approach Shots Uncertain —130 Participate.

Sun-baked fairways and greens so hard and fast as to make a run-up game necessary kept scores high in the 18-hole qualifying round of the St. Louis District golf tournament at Bellerive Country Club yesterday and of the 130 golfers who started, only four turned in cards below eighty. Including about 20 entries made at the Number 1 tee yesterday the event attracted about 215 entrants, although a great number failed to start.

Roger E. Lord of Algonquin let the field with a total of 75 going out in 38 and coming home in 37. Clarence Wolff of Sunset Hill and R. S. Rhoades of Ridgedale tied for second low with 76 while the forth card in the 70's was turned in by Ellsworth F. Smith of Sunset Hill, who stroked the course in 79.

Par for the course is 72. The first nine holes, par 37, stumped most of the golfers. While the greens were in fine shape for putting, a great deal of luck entered into approach shots. Spins and cuts which stop a ball on a soft green, had little effect yesterday.

Lord's card and par for the course follows:

Donald Anderson, playing from Sunset Hill, was the juvenile star of the tournament. Anderson, who is only 16 years old, stroked the course in 84 and qualified in the championship class. The youngster had a great day with the driver, the hard fairways also aiding him. On No. 4 his drive carried to a bunker just short of the green, the pin being 324 yards from the tee.

Manion Scores 84.

Jimmy Manion, city champion, and the only Municipal Links star in the tournament, took 43, 41—84 for the 18 holes, but managed to qualify. Jimmy entered from Midland Valley. Other Forest Park stars were barred by the necessity of belonging to a club holding membership in the District Association. The association has repeatedly refused to admit the public links organization.

Eddie Limberg, one of the four St. Louisans who competed in the recent national amateur tournament at Pittsburg, took 43, 43—86 for the round. He got off to a bad start and worried over the fact all through his round.

Had Wolff played as consistently with the putter as he did with other clubs over the first nine holes, he would have taken medalist honors easily. He took 39 strokes to the turn and lost several on the greens.

A Big League Pitcher Without Curves It's Possible, Walter Johnson Declares

Has Hurled Games, Using Only His Fast Ball

Great Righthander Imparts to Post-Dispatch Readers Some of the Information Gleaned in His Career.

Twirler Who Depends on Speed Has Big Edge Over Curve Ball Artist, Fireball King Declares.

WALTER JOHNSON, The World's Greatest Fast Ball Pitcher.

WALTER JOHNSON, Washington right-hander, who has been one of baseball's heroes ever since he joined the Senators in 1907, and who, through his great right arm and pleasing personality, has earned the distinction of being America's idol in the pitching world, has some interesting and instructive information on pitching, pitchers and such essential details of his profession as control, curves, speed and condition. Walter, who made hi last appearance of the season here recently, agreed to impart to readers of the Post-Dispatch some of the information gleaned in his career as pitcher.

First Johnson was questioned about his curve ball, his "inshoot, outshoot and drop," to use the parlance of the sand-lot youngsters.

"That, by the way, is the first question every youngster puts to a big league pitcher," said the "Fire-Ball King." "The average youth and even the average spectator at a ball game thinks that a pitcher must have a dozen or more curves before he can get into the majors. This is an erroneous impression. I'm not a good curve-ball pitcher. There have been great curve-ball pitchers, but they are not numerous. Jack Coombs was one. He had the best straight drop curve I recall. Bob Groom was another, with a big sweeping curve.

Entire Game Without a Curve.

"Frequently I go through an entire game without throwing a curve. In the game I finished in St. Louis Sunday, Aug. 24, working the last 2 3-5 innings, I used nothing but my fast ball. And yet probably most of the fans thought I was bending them over the plate.

"The fast ball pitcher has many advantages over the curve-ball hurler. Almost every injured arm in the game has been hurt by throwing a curve. In throwing a curve the important points are the position of the ball when it leaves the hand; the position of the hand with respect to the sweep of the arm when the ball leaves the hand, and the snap of the wrist, the twist which gives the ball its spin and resultant curve.

"This twist or snap is a strain. Frequently muscles are strained and almost in every case it is the twist that puts the pitcher on the sore-arm list.

"In the case of the fast ball pitcher all he need do to protect his arm is to warm up slowly, to get his muscles loosened and pliable before he puts all his speed into the delivery. After he is warmed up the fast ball pitcher may tire, but he never will get a sore arm, or a bad arm.

Cy Young Used Fast Ball.

"The best illustration is Cy Young. Young pitched years and years of good baseball and never knew what a bad arm was. He used a fast ball. He didn't throw enough curves to strain his arm.

"In the same way a fast ball pitcher can work oftener; he does not need as much rest between games and usually acquires his best form much earlier in the season than does the curve-ball artist.

"Another advantage is in the important matter of control. It is obvious that a ball thrown with a free arm delivery, with no jerk or twist motion, can be thrown with greater accuracy than the ball which is delivered with a wrist snap or twist. Thus, with the count three and two the fast ball pitcher can deliver his most dependable ball while the pitcher who fools 'em with curves must either desert his forte and resort to a straight one or run the risk of giving the batter a walk."

Johnson said that in almost every case of wildness in a pitcher the fault is in the hurler's "timer." As an illustration he mentioned the way a girl throws a ball on her first attempt. She invariably puts her foot forward and then brings the arm forward, or else swings the arm and brings the foot forward after letting the ball go. She does not get the maximum of accuracy or distance out of her muscles until she has trained the muscles to co-ordinate and the whole strength and weight of her body is utilized in propelling the ball.

The Secret of Control.

The principle is the same with pitchers, Johnson said. When a hurler can't get control he is stepping out of time, letting the ball go at the wrong time or the legs and arms and body are not working in harmony. Usually when a pitcher is throwing them too high, he said, the trouble is that he is letting the ball go before his arm has negotiated the full sweep. If he is busting them around the plate, too low, he is letting his arm sweep down too far before letting the sphere leave the hand.

To be a great pitcher, Johnson said, a man must have a free, natural motion. Curves, of course, are an asset, and can be acquired, but the free arm motion is the foundation on which all great pitchers are built, he explained.

"Why, when I broke into the big leagues that was all I had," said the great righthander. "No two pitchers have the same delivery. Young pitchers, youngsters with ambition to pitch, must not try to imitate pitchers they see. They must develop their own style, perfect their own delivery, learn to make all their muscles work in harmony, and the rest will come naturally. But first let them get it out of their heads that an array of variegated curves is essential."

Arnold Hauser Is Regaining Health

One-Time Cardinal Player's Expected Release From Asylum Attributed to Baseball.

ELGIN, ILL., Sept. 6.—Tomorrow is Arnold Houser day at the Elgin Baseball park, where the Elgin Nationals meet the Chicago Ashlands. Hauser, the former Cardinal star, is a patient at the Elgin State Insane Hospital, and plays on the hospital teams as well as shortstop for the Nationals.

His mental condition has improved so rapidly that hospital authorities say they will discharge him as cured in a short time.

Hauser will be presented a purse tomorrow by his team mates. He plans to move to Chicago, where his mother is located.

According to a friend and baseball fan, A. A. Jennings of Jennings and Co., 1164 Arcade Building, Hauser who early this spring was completely given up by his friends, is now playing baseball for the Elgin team and doing almost as good as in his prime when he was the sensation of the National League.

Early this spring, when Hauser was given a baseball, he looked at it curiously, held it and refused to surrender it except through coaxing. He seemed struggling to remember what it was.

Gradually, however, as the season enabled him to be out of doors, he regained his baseball knowledge and a keen interest in the sport. He was soon playing on the asylum team. His acquaintance with the game quickly returned to normal and with it his health.

Plays Like a Big Leaguer.

Recently he was so greatly improved that he was allowed to play as a member of the Elgin team in an intercity contest with the Dundee (Ill.) nine. During the course of this game, Hauser showed a complete return to form. He made four hits in five times up, scored four runs, walked once and stole nine bases. He also executed a remarkable triple play. Leaping into the air he speared with his gloved hand a screaming drive over second. He touched the runner coming to second and then hurled the ball to the plate in time to catch an enemy attempting to score.

Jennings told the Post-Dispatch that he conversed with Hauser and that he appeared in the best of health mentally and bodily.

SPORT SALAD BY J. C. Davis

The Barefoot Boy.

BLESSINGS on thee, little man,
With your smiling face of tan;
When vacation rolls around
In your bare feet you are found.

Though the price of shoes may soar
Forty-nine per cent and more,
For at least three months a year
You can fool the profiteer.

With a rag around your toe
On your merry way you go;
Blessings on your little "dogs,"
You can fool the profit hogs!

However, before taking any definite action in the premises, it might be well to find out how the ticket speculators feel on the subject.

We take it the players might be persuaded to cut in on five games instead of four if the matter were put to them in the proper light.

Murphy to Meet Jackson Tuesday

Contest at South Broadway Will Be Third Between the Rival Bantamweights.

The first indoor boxing show of the season to be staged by the South Broadway A. C. will be held Tuesday evening, with Jimmy Murphy, the local bantamweight, opposing Nate Jackson of Tulsa, Ok., in the feature contest. The pair will weigh in at 116 pounds, and are scheduled to go eight rounds.

The meeting this week will be the third between the pair. Two years ago they boxed 15 rounds at Tulsa, while six weeks ago they battled eight at Camp Pike, Ark.

Murphy has been working out with Eddie Meier and Sammy Sherman and is in tip-top shape. Jackson is expected here some time today, and probably will work out at the South Broadway Club.

The semiwindup, which also is scheduled for eight rounds, should be just as interesting as the main event, as it brings together two local lightweights—Kid Bandy and Leo Witt. It will be Bandy's first out of the season, while Witt, a few weeks ago at the Coliseum, shaded Bert Adams in eight rounds. The weight will be 135 pounds.

Officials of the South Broadway announced yesterday that they had matched Sammy Sherman and Izzy Sanders to box six rounds in the preliminary at 120 pounds.

Byrne's League Opens.

The Bobby Byrne Bowling League will open its season of 35 weeks next Friday. The teams and captains are as follows: City Sanitarium, H. B. Lagerman; Ranken School, F. H. Wolff; Merchants, F. E. McCarthy; Van Cleaves, R. Nagel; Scudder-Gales, J. Gaffney; Valley Parks, E. Vescovo; Firestone Giants, F. G. Willis; Bobby Byrnes, G. Tiffany. Officers of the league are: G. F. Willis, president, J. Gaffney, vice president; G. A. Tiffany, secretary, and R. M. Byrne, treasurer.

Hard-Fought Net Matches Feature City Tournament

Nearly All of the 27 Contests Decided Result in Lively Exhibitions.

STARS TO PLAY TODAY

Entry Total of 84 One of the Largest in the City Championship Annals.

The opening day of two weeks of tennis which will decide the men's and women's singles and doubles, mixed doubles, junior, and married couples championships of St. Louis saw 27 matches decided on the courts of the Triple A, yesterday.

The competition was confined to men's singles play, 13 first round and 14 second round matches being played. The pairings were so arranged as to give a large number of byes. The entry of 84 is one of the largest that has ever been received for a city tennis tourney.

The play was characterized by an unusual number of close matches. The first round generally results in one-sided playing; but yesterday proved an exception to this rule. Six of the matches went into three sets, while 11 sets were deuced. Only two defaults were announced.

Pasmore Wins Hard Match.

Probably the hardest fought match of the day was that between F. A. Gardner, the county star, and George Pasmore, Soldan High School's junior champion. Pasmore surprised the gallery by winning out after dropping the first set. The scores were: 5—7, 8—6, 6—3.

Herbert Bryant, the Washington University star who has made such a good showing this season, met with trouble in his first set with E. Kotthoff, but then settled down and won with ease. His victory came, 7—5, 6—0. The other Pikeway entrants, Walter Haase and Wray Brown, won with ease, as did Fred Josties.

Ted Drewes, Central States and city champion, will get into action today when he meets J. H. McCaleb Jr. Drummond Jones, a former title holder, plays Theodore Meyer. Roland Hoerr is not entered in the play, as he expects to leave the city early this week.

BROWNS AND CARDS NOT AFFECTED BY NEW YORK INCOME TAX DECISION

The tax ruling on the income of ballplayers, contained in news dispatches from New York yesterday, will not affect members of the Browns and Cardinals. At the New York Comptroller's office it was explained that incomes of ballplayers and umpires whose residences and home teams were in other states would be taxed for that portion of their salary earned in New York State, provided it amounted to more than $1000. As the seven other clubs in the league play only about one in 14 games in New York in the American League and two in 14 in the National, a ballplayer would have to receive $14,000 a year to be taxed.

However, it may put a double tax on some of the New York players and umpires whose homes are out o' the State, they having to pay their home State tax and the New York levy. However, New York players will have to pay a tax on their earnings outside the State. So the only hardship the ruling works is on nonresidents.

In Missouri only residents are taxed.

American Net Stars Clinch Right to World Honors by Humbling Australian Team

Johnston and Tilden Score Brilliant Victory Over Brookes and Patterson in International Doubles Match—Visitors Fail to Score a Triumph in Series of 4 Singles and 2 Doubles.

By J. P. Allen,
(The Post-Dispatch Eastern Tennis Authority).

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Sept. 6.—America's tennis players clinched their right to be declared the greatest in the world by winning the three matches of the international series—Australia against the United States—on the turf of the West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills today. The victory of the men, representative of all that is best according to the American type, was most convincing as the famous team from the Antipodes was denied the satisfaction of even one insignificant triumph throughout a series of four singles and two doubles.

William M. Johnson, the little marvel of the racquet, and William T. Tilden 11, twice runner-up for the national championship honors, stood forth as the truly scintillating performers of the day on the courts that produced battles fought to the limit of speed and endurance.

The rivalry of national feeling was ever uppermost. No matter how brilliantly Norman F. Brookes fought, nor how stubbornly Gerald L. Patterson braced himself to withstand the fury of Tilden's flashing drives, the Americans always soared to greater heights.

Johnston in his engagement against Brookes plainly showed the signs of the severe strain of the championship series. The wearer of the American crown of the courts defeated the most world famous of the masters from the antipodes by the score, 6—4, 7—9, 6—2, 6—2.

Tilden Has Hard Battle.

Tilden had a terrific battle with Patterson, winner of the world's championship honors at Wimbledon, fighting away for dear life until he had dulled the edge of the big Australian's game to score of 3—6, 6—3, 6—4, 9—7.

The doubles in which Randolph Lycett and Ronald V., Thomas represented Australia, was so packed with flashing rallies, sensational "gets" and acrobatic performances by the men, as they struggled for the points, as to furnish the crowd with abundant opportunity to applaud and express its appreciation of the marvelous performances.

The Australians played well and ably. Lycett especially distinguished himself by accomplishing some of the most startling cross court shots and smashes ever seen in a lawn tennis match. It was all futile. Richard Norris Williams II, and Wallace F. Johnson, the Americans, outstayed and outplayed them to win after five of the most stirring sets of the day at 6—2, 6—4, 2—6, 3—6, 6—0. Williams in the final set reached the topmost pinnacle of his game. The Australians could not hold his invincible service nor his lashing, cracking volleys as he accounted for six games in a row, for the match.

The recapitulation so far as the Americans are concerned, is impressive. They conquered their rivals in a manner that has left no doubt as to their position in the world of the courts. They won all six of the matches and in the accomplishment of that feat outplayed Brookes and Patterson, the recent winners of the American doubles titles, and completed this decisive strain of their work by mastering Patterson with the second string man on the American side.

Americans Win 18, Lose 5 Sets.

On the set score the Americans won a total of 18 sets to five lost to the Australians. The game score was even more of a surprise for the stars of this country carried off a total of 131 games to the 93 that were scored by their rivals from the underside of the world.

By all odds the defeat of Patterson proved the sensational finale of the series and the day, while the crowds in the stands—and it was an assemblage of 7000 spectators—hung breathless on the rallies as the Australian vainly tried to stem the tide, the overwhelming power of Tilden's game as he gradually attained to speed and accuracy. The American was very wild in the early games, his service was a dismal failure and it had nothing of its vaunted cannon ball speed about it.

Cobb and Cravath Leading Batters

Georgian Has Mark of .371 for Season, While Phillie Manager Is Hitting .340.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—As the clubs of the American League swing into the final month of the pennant race, Ty Cobb is driving for the batting championship, which, with the exception of two seasons, has been in his possession for 12 years.

Unofficial averages released today show the Georgian hitting .371—21 points ahead of Oscar Veach, his teammate, and closest batting rival. In 104 games, Cobb has whaled out 155 safe blows for a total of 210 bases. Thirty of Ty's hits went for two bases, while 11 were of the three-bagger variety and one home run. The averages include games of Wednesday.

"Babe" Ruth, the averages show, is within one home run of tieing the world's four bagger record of 25 established by Buck Freeman. In addition to driving out 24 homers, Ruth tops the league in total base hitting. He has stretched 118 hits bagged in 111 games for a total of 240 bases. His home run record is topped off with 26 two-base hits and a dozen triples.

Sisler Leads Base Stealers.

George Sisler, the St. Louis star, continues to show the way to the base stealers with 27 with Harry Hooper of Boston runner-up with 25. Eddie Collins of Chicago is third with 24. Chapman of Cleveland is the leading sacrifice hitter with 43.

Other leading American League batters for 40 or more games: Jackson, Chicago, 348; Sisler, St. Louis, 345; Peckingpaugh, New York, 340; Jacobson, St. Louis, 334; Fewster, New York; 325; Shorten, Detroit, 319; Ruth, Boston, 318; Heilman, Detroit, 317; Collins, Chicago, 315; McInnis, Boston, 315.

Roush Falls Down in National League

Ed Roush, the Cincinnati star, suffered a setback in his attack for the National League batting honors, dropping into third place with an average of .323. Cravath of Philadelphia clung to the leadership with 340, while Thorpe of Boston swung back into second place with 324.

Roush, however, leads the league in total base hitting. Competing in 116 games, the Red's outfielder has slammed out 143 hits for a total of 198 bases. Heinie Groh, the Cincinnati third baseman, leads in scoring, having registered 75. Cutshaw of Pittsburg continues to show the way to the base stealers with 31. In home run hitting, Cravath is out in front with 11, while Williams of Philadelphia and Kauff of New York are tied for second with nine each.

Other leading National League batters for 40 or more games: Meusel, Philadelphia, 318; Groh, Cincinnati, 311; Doyle, New York, 302; Young, New York, 301; Myers, Brooklyn, 300; Deal, Chicago, 299; Barber, Chicago, 299; Stock, St. Louis, 297; McHenry, St. Louis, 297.

VALLEY ASSOCIATION MEETING SEPT. 18

Zone 4, Which Includes St. Louis, to Discuss "Present Business Crisis."

"The Present Business Crisis" will be the theme of the first zone convention of the Mississippi Valley Association, an organization of agricultural, manufacturing, jobbing and banking interests of 22 states comprising the Mississippi Valley, which has been called for Sept. 18 at Hotel Statler. The association is endeavoring to create an increased north and south channel of trade, using the Gulf Ports for shipments in lieu of routing via Eastern ports.

Ora E. Chapin of Chicago, advocate of foreign trade, and secretary to Harry H. Merrick, president of the association, who is in St. Louis to arrange for the meeting, yesterday outlined the purposes of the conference, which will take up a discussion of current economic subjects and problems concerning the high cost of living.

St. Louis is headquarters for zone No. 4, which comprises the southern half of Illinois and Indiana, west half of Kentucky and nearly all of Missouri. There are seven other zones, each having headquarters in the large cities in their respective territory.

"In First Stage of Crisis."

"We are in the first stage of a business crisis," said Chapin, who is at Hotel Statler. "The first era in a period of this kind is the high ascending cost and excessive demand for loans, with which we are confronted today. As a result of the war our factories have been stimulated to an unusually high state of efficiency. Most are now overloaded with orders. These orders are chiefly domestic and because of what our frineds call 'frenzied buying' a riot of insane expenditure is going on on the part of every one from the wage earner to the wealthy class. Why, my ice man in Chicago wears a silk shirt at work delivering ice.

"During the war we were an agricultural or raw material producing country. The war placed us in the manufacturing class so that domestic demand would not consume the factory production by 40 per cent. Our banks now are loaded with money, and they have an amazing demand for it.

"New Trade Route Needed."

"One half of the manufactured goods of the United States are manufactured in the Mississippi Valley; one-fourth of the manufactured products of the world are manufactured in the Mississippi Valley. Our solution of the reconstruction period begins with foreign trade, and the Mississippi Valley cannot expand without expansion of North and South flow of exports and imports. We cannot get any foreign trade unless it is financed both from the standpoint of the manufacturer and from the standpoint of the foreign buyer trade."

Capt. R. E. Beach, business manager of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and representatives of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce will hold a meeting in Mayor Kiel's office at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning to discuss final arrangements for the convention. This city was selected for the first convention at the solicitation of the St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau.

The association was organized at New Orleans in January, and the first general convention was held in April at Chicago. F. Ernest Cramer of St. Louis is vice president of Zone No. 4, and Charles Sutter of St. Louis is one of the directors of the organization.

URGES WOMAN LAWYER FOR CITY

Committee Asks Mayor for Change in Free Legal Bureau.

A committee of 12 women, headed by Mrs. Frank P. Hayes, prominent in suffrage movements, called yesterday on Mayor Kiel and asked him to father an ordinance for the appointment of a woman lawyer in the office of the free legal and bureau for the benefit of women.

The appointment was urged on the ground that a woman in such a position could do more for the women of St. Louis than the men now in the office, as they would have a more sympathetic understanding of women clients. The embarrassment of telling one's troubles to male attorneys keeps many women from availing themselves of the benefits of the bureau, the committee pointed out.

Mayor Kiel referred the committee to Director of Public Welfare Schmoll, telling them that he would approve any recommendation in the matter made by that official.

Corner Stone of Monument to U. S. Laid in France

Commemorates Landing of First Contingent of American Troops in 1917 at Pointe de Grave.

By the Associated Press.

POINTE DE GRAVE, FRANCE, Sept. 6.—France paid lasting tribute today to America's active entry into the great war by laying the cornerstone of a monument here commemorating the landing on the spot of the first contingent of American troops in 1917. Appropriate speeches by President Poincare and Hugh C. Wallace, the American Ambassador, were the chief features of the exercises, appropriately held on the birthday of Layfayette, who sailed for America from this same spot in 1777.

The weather was none too propitious, the addresses of President Poincare and Ambassador Wallace being delivered during a slight drizzle. None the less the scene was a brilliant one, numerous detachments of French and American soldiers, sailors and marines assembled among the sandy dunes of the Pointe giving color to the picture. The guard of honor, for instance, was composed of United States marines, many of whom were veterans of the fighting on the Marne in 1918.

Other Prominent Americans.

In addition to Premier Clemenceau, Marshal Foch and other distinguished Frenchmen, numbers of prominent Americans assisted in the ceremony, among them Frank L. Polk, Under-Secretary of State, Gen. Tasker H. Bliss and Brigadier-General W. D. Connor, now commander of the American forces in France. The French representation included also the Marquis de Chambrun, a descendant of Lafayette, and a member of the Joffre mission to the United States in 1917, Andre Tardieu, and Deputy Maurice Damour, chairman of the committee in charge of the exercises.

Poincare on Special Train.

President Poincare arrived on a special train, accompanied by Premier Clemenceau, Marshal Foch and Ambassador Wallace. With Mr. Wallace were Rear Admiral Andrew T. Long, navy attache, and Capt. John H. McFadden, assistant military attache at the American embassy in Paris. Ten Senators and 25 members of the Chamber of Deputies were the official representatives of the French Parliament on board the train. When the party reached this city it was greeted by the Commemoration Committee headed by Deputy Maurice Damour and Senator Gaston Menier.

Deputy Damour, who with Senator Menier has prepared a souvenir sketch entitled "From Lafayette to Wilson," said that the sculptor, Barthelemy, who is designing the monument, will complete his work on the drawings in a few days and that the work of construction will proceed immediately.

President Poincare, in his speech called to America to continue that close relationship which caused the United States to come to the aid of France.

Sacrificed to Ideal.

"In the plains of Picardy, Lorraine and Champagne," said he, "sleep your Americans whose mothers do not know their tombs. They all sacrificed to the same ideal the French died for.

"Let us bend down over those tombs and listen. It is the same voice which everywhere arises from the depths of the earth. We have suffered, they say, in order that the world should become free. To you now falls the duty to watch that never again may leap up this danger which we have removed. Do not allow France and America to estrange themselves one from the other. Do not draw apart those hands which are now joined. Be on your guard that there shall never be kept between you understandings which sooner or later might be transformed into disagreements. Tomorrow no more than yesterday can you dispense with each other. Separated you will see offensive return of violence. Side by side the people who have won the war will be strong enough to make such war impossible."

POLICEWOMEN SAY DRUGGIST OPERATED AS A PHYSICIAN

Federal Agents Raid Store, Finding Hypodermic Needles but No Narcotics.

Several visits by policewomen to the drug store of Calogero Trusso, 43 years old, 1939 Franklin avenue, resulted in his arrest yesterday on charges of holding himself out as a physician and a search of his apartments and store by Federal agents seeking morphine and cocaine which he had told the policewomen could be obtained at the store. No narcotics were found. A number of hypodermic needles and other articles used in drug administration were confiscated.

The policewomen first visited the store Thursday. Policewoman Buckley complained of feeling ill and Trusso, she reported, examined her with the stethoscope and said she had a weak heart and a weak lung. He told her she was bordering on consumption, she says.

She reported he wrote out a prescription on a blank headed, "Dr. William Mayfield, physician and surgeon, 1939 Franklin avenue" and giving office hours on it. He signed the prescription "Dr. Buschmann." He also gave her two bottles of medicine for which he charged $3.50.

Friday the policewomen returned to the store and asked for morphine. Mrs. Buckley reported that Trusso instructed her if she would return later she could get all she wanted.

Later in the day Policewoman Haffey went to the store and complained of being ill. Trusso, she reported, put his arms around her and tried to lead her into a room at the rear. She broke away and left the place. The raid followed. Trusso gave bond.

COLLIERIES STRIKE ORDERED

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 6.—The convention here of all the collieries of the Hudson Coal Co., in the Lackawanna and Wyoming Valleys, has ordered a general strike for Monday morning. This will involve no less than 20,000 employes.

District board members gave the leaders of the proposed strike to understand that the strike was contrary to rules and agreements of the United Mine Workers, but they declare it is impossible to continue work unless conditions complained of are remedied. The committee declared nothing but a conference with Supt. Dorrance could avert a strike.

50 RED CROSS RELIEF STATIONS TO BE OPENED

Trained Workers and Supplies Will Be Available in Case of Disasters.

Fifty "flying squadrons" of disaster relief units are to be placed by the Red Cross in a like number of cities and towns throughout the nation, according to a statement made last night by Edward B. Orr, director of the Bureau of Disaster Relief of the Southwestern Division of the Red Cross here.

"Inasmuch," Orr said, "as St. Louis is a Red Cross division point, it is likely that one of the units will be stationed here. In co-operation with the Surgeon-General's office, arrangements are being completed whereby the 50 base hospital units equipped by the Red Cross and sent to Europe and which have now been returned to the United States, shall be kept intact as reserve organizations, each equipped with Government stores sufficient for a 1000-bed hospital.

"The doctors and nurses who were attached to these units during the war will return to the practice of their profession, but their names will be kept on the rolls and they will be subject to emergency call. It is in contemplation that these units may be increased to 100 and so disposed throughout the nation that any locality swept by a sudden disaster will have a source of aid conveniently accessible.

"Steps already have been taken to place emergency stores, consisting of medical and other supplies and readily procurable, at strategic points in the five States—Missouri, Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas—comprising the Southwestern Division.

"To date auxiliary stores consisting of cases of bandages, compressed, splints, blankets and hospital garments have been stored in warehouses in Little Rock, El Paso, Kansas City and St. Louis. Red Cross chapters in the vicinity of flood districts will shortly be furnished with special stock of relief supplies which they will be expected to carry on hand at all times.

"Efforts were being made," Orr added, "to obtain the assistance of United States Weather Bureau officials in order that special reports touching on flood conditions and upon the location of territory particularly menaced by flood disaster might be obtained.

"The aid of charitable organizations in all cities throughout the division has been promised," he said. "These associations have written the Red Cross of their willingness to furnish trained relief workers on call during such emergencies as floods, earthquakes, cyclones, epidemics, fires, explosions and other holocausts.

"Red Cross files now contain complete lists of relief workers, ambulance units, State Governors and Adjutant-Generals, railway officials, public health service workers, motor corps volunteers and others whose services will be needed in forthcoming crises so that on a moment's notice emergency organizations may be gotten together with record speed."

GOLDEN JUBILEE AT CENTENARY CHURCH

Services Will Mark 50th Anniversary of Building at Sixteenth and Pine Streets.

Golden jubilee services, in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the present building of Centenary Methodist Church, South, at Sixteenth and Pine streets, will be held today. In the morning, the Rev. Dr. O. E. Goddard of Nashville will preach, and at night Bishop W. F. McMurray, a former pastor, will be the speaker. Murray Carleton, for the membership, and the pastor, the Rev. Dr. C. W. Tadlock, and former pastors, will also speak.

The original Centenary Church, at Broadway and Pine street, was built in 1844, and in 1845 the congregation became affiliated with the Methodist Church, South. One of the early pastors was E. M. Marvin, later a famous bishop of the church.

The Pine street site was purchased in 1868, and the cornerstone of the present building was laid May 10, 1869, by Bishops Andrew and McIntyerie. The dedication took place May 27, 1871, Bishop Marvin preaching the sermon. The building cost $130,000, and the lot $36,000.

At the time of its construction, Centenary Church was one of 12 or 15 English-speaking Protestant churches within what is now the downtown area. Today there is only one other—Christ Church Cathedral, at Thirteenth and Locust streets. The others have moved, and several of them have moved twice, in the westward sweep of residential growth. It has been the fixed policy of Centenary Church to remain in its downtown location, and it now has a membership of about 2200 with 700 children in the Sunday school, and with large attendance at both morning and evening services.

The Splendid New Fall Models Now on Display

IT IS our pleasure to announce that the new shipments of pianos and players are now unpacked and ready for inspection. The years have witnessed a gradual refinement in the lines of all such instruments, but we believe that in these new pianos and players the effects have reached that point where designer and artisan can do no more. It is very doubtful if touch could be more responsive; it is unlikely that tone could be more sweet. It would seem as if the utmost had been achieved in beauty of line and musical resources.

See these instruments are the products of reliable manufacturers, and this is one of the largest assortments of pianos and players shown in America.

The long winter evenings are on the way and now while the weather is so delightful, is a good time to choose the piano or player that will give to your home the heartening joy of song, the fascination of dance and the uplift of classical compositions.

The choosing of such an instrument is one of great importance, because it must be of that character that will make it companionable for a lifetime.

Here where you can closely compare the merits of many instruments, of so many different makes at about the same price, the conditions are ideal for making your choice. You cannot remember touch; you cannot remember tone—here comparisons can instantly be made and you can choose intelligently and satisfactorily.

'FAT POT' IN REALTY MEN'S PICNIC GAME

Evidence of Prosperity Mingles With Many Thrills at Annual Outing.

Two hundred real estate dealers attended the annual picnic of their Exchange at the Riverview Club yesterday afternoon and evening. They met at 2 p. m. at the Exchange, in the Title Guarantee building, and were conveyed in 40 automobiles to the north side club.

The feature of the afternoon was a baseball game between the married men and the single men, from which the former emerged as victors by a score of 12 to 11 after five innings, when the game was called because of heat. The players for the married men were Will Heckman, Charles Roeder, John J. Reardon, Moore Faherty, Ben Cox, Erwin Homer, Chauncey P. Heath, Charles A. Weber, Marion Fuqua and Martin Newberry. The single men were Walter Scott, Eddie Mack, Frank King, B. J. Huth, J. K. Walsh, Harry Brinkop, Louis Fornoff, A. Parkinson, George Feldhaus and Edward Bokern.

Although a "soft" indoor ball was used, a pair of broken glasses and numerous bruises resulted. The decisions of C. M. McDonald as umpire met with universal disapproval, and after the game he admitted that he had not called Reardon out when he crossed the plate for the winning run because "he is a good friend of mine." In the same play he ruled that Mack, the catcher for the single men, had tagged the coach, who ran alongside of Reardon from third base, instead of the runner.

Mack was the object of attack in the final inning, when Weber, the opposing pitcher, ran violently against him, "so that he wouldn't hold the ball." Several other runners also "slid into him."

McDonald, before the game, abrogated the customary baseball rules, allowing 11 players for the married men and 10 for the single. The married men said they would agree to stop the game any time they were in the lead.

The game was arranged by Frederick J. Miller, attorney for the exchange. Roeder, a former major-league player, captained the winning team.

Following the ball game the afternoon was occupied with various games, poker, penuchle and "galloping dominoes" being favorites. Among those around the tables were John J. Dowling, James P. Blake, Maj. James Barngrove, Joseph Hanauer, Albert G. Blanke, B. F. Dickmann, Thomas Grace, Otto J. Dickmann and A. R. Schollmeyer, a former president of the exchange.

Dinner was served at 6 o'clock. Recorder of Deeds C. F. Joy, referring to present prosperity of the real estate men, stated that he based his remarks upon the fact that "only $11 was in the dice game last year, while this year there is much more." Hanauer read a fictitious letter from Assessor Wollbrinck in which the Assessor declined an invitation to the picnic because of lack of sufficient police protection. The time set for adjournment was indefinite.

Barney Dickmann of the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co. was master of ceremonies.

'WALK TO YOUR WORK,' IS NEW BLAKEMORE SUBDIVISION SLOGAN

The Kilgen-Rule Real Estate Co. is occupied with its new industrial subdivision. Blakemore, which consists of 3000 feet of high lots with streets, sewers, gas, electricity and sidewalks all made and on which it is erecting attractive bungalows.

It is close to the many large industries in that section, and there is more than $10,000,000 being spent for factories within walking distance of Blakemore, and the company's slogan is "Walk to your work."

APARTMENTS APARTMENTS

THE BRANSCOME APARTMENT HOTEL

5370 PERSHING AVE.

SECOND ANNOUNCEMENT

Last week an invitation was extended to those having application on file for suites in this new apartment hotel to inspect the furnished apartment. Those who had not filed their applications were requested to defer their visit for a few days in order that everyone might receive personal attention and be advised as to just what this building is going to be, and as to its operation.

More than 300 persons visited the building last Sunday and on account of the number, it was impossible to explain to each one what we have, and the advantages of this type of building.

Now that the public may be informed as to what we have and as to how we propose to operate it, we are advising them through this medium.

The building is eight stories in height and fireproof throughout. It is located on a lot having a frontage of 275 feet. The building proper has a greater frontage than any other hotel or apartment building in St. Louis. From the rear, a beautiful view is offered of Forest Park, Washington University and Art Hill, as well as of St. Louis County.

One wing of the building will be given over to hotel suites, completely furnished and with all hotel service. These suites consist of dressing room, living room and outside bath. Other suites have additional roofs.

The other wing of the building is devoted to efficiency apartments. These may be rented furnished or unfurnished. These apartments contain breakfast rooms, the walls of which are canvassed and paneled. In the rear, connected with the breakfast rooms is the kitchen, having a system of fan ventilation which draws all the odors and fumes from cooking up through the ventilating shaft which is connected with exhaust fans on the roof. This is one of the few buildings in the country that have gone to the expense to furnish this service, which the undersigned considers a very necessary and important one.

Besides the breakfast room and kitchen, these efficiency apartments have a living room, dressing room and outside bath and other suites having in addition to this, a sun room or bedroom.

This building will be operated as a first-class hotel, having a complete hotel service, with large cafe, lobby, ladies' parlor and smoking room on the ground floor.

Ames Place Values Are Permanent and Certain

THE class of people who have bought Ames Place lots and the kind of houses they are building, are all the arguments we need to give you.

There isn't anything else like it in St. Louis at $60.00 a foot. St. Louis residence property like this is not for sale anywhere at these figures.

It won't last long. There are only a few choice lots still unsold. Go out today and see for yourself how rapidly and completely Ames Place is building up.

Construction is the order of the day. A home of your own is the only solution of high living costs. Don't let prices stand in your way. Building will not be cheaper for years to come.

You will find building your own home an easy matter. We have a liberal plan for financing your home. Pick out your lot and ask us to help you improve it.

See our representative at Pershing and Pennsylvania (University car) today. He will give you prices and show you lots for sale—every one a self-evident bargain.

I have at least a dozen cash buyers for small homes in the above districts.

JUNIOR ADVERTISING CLUB OPENS MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

Teams of Six Men Each Will Work With Slogan, "Every Young Man Interested in Advertising."

Last week's meeting of the Junior Advertising Club started things off again with a spirit of pep and push.

The speaker, Paul W. Brown, publisher of America at Work, spoke on "The Unrecognized Service of Advertising in Developing the Richest Country in the World."

In his speech he said that "through advertising the people of America have been educated to demand standardized products and standardized products have increased production and made for better times and lower prices."

The speaker for the meeting next Tuesday is M. E. Holderness, vice president of the First National Bank, who will talk on "Charter Member Week as an Advertising Feature." The meeting will be held in the Advertising Club headquarters, Hotel Statler.

J. V. Corrigan, president of the Juniors, says that the Employment Committee is especially busy in securing positions for their members just as fast as they are returning from the service, and requests anyone in need of a young man to do advertising or selling work, to advise him.

A membership campaign has been announced, commencing the first part of last week, to continue until Oct. 1. While they are not expecting to sign up any great number of men, they do believe they will live up to their adopted slogan, "Every young man interested in advertising." Hubert Echele is chairman of the campaign. The members are organized into 16 teams of six each.

Silently the shades of evening
Gather around my lonely door,
While alone I sit thinking of that sweet face I'll see no more.
But some day I hope to meet him and this aching void to fill.
But now all I have is memories and that grave on a distant hill
So sadly missed by his wife.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Sergt. Bernard S. Reuter, Company E, 354th Infantry, Eighty-Ninth Division, who was killed in action Sept. 10, 1918. He bravely gave his life for his country. May that precious peace be with you that God alone can grant. We shall never forget our hero who lay in No Man's Land. Sadly missed by MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER, 3311 Illinois avenue.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

UNFAIR COMPETITION.—Advise you see Internal Revenue Collector, second floor, east wing of Postoffice, Olive and Eighth sts. and get his full advice on the matter.

A. H. H.—There being no contract of employment he could not collect; however, this depends upon your actions in the matter and facts of the case. As to the paper, accepting same after your subscription has expired makes you liable for price of same; if not acceptable do not accept from the postman.

CRISIS.—Your brother as administrator of the estate of your mother, had no right to collect the rents of the realty unless such were necessary to pay your mother's debts, and then only upon an order from Court. Presuming that letters of administration were taken out shortly after your mother's death, the estate should be settled at this September term of the Probate Court. Ask the Clerk of said Court for the files of the estate when you can go over the accounts and if funds have not been properly accounted for you can make exceptions to Court.

CONSTANT READER.—If your father has been dead 10 years, filing of the will is sufficient, but if a few more years must elapse before expiration of the 10-year period of limitation in order to clear the cloud of possible debts being proved against your father's estate, then it is best to proceed and administer upon his estate, when, after one year from date of publication of notice to creditors the cloud aforesaid would be lifted and you should have no trouble in selling and passing a clear title, if otherwise perfect. The will acts to put record title in your name; no other formality necessary.

F. E. D.—It is likely this is an organic condition, in other words, a damaged valve, although if you are anemic it may be functional only, corrected by improvement in your health. I notice you think you are underweight and perhaps below par. A heart murmur would not interfere with your gaining weight, but your underweight might account for the murmur. Diseased valves often do not cause any inconvenience, in fact, they never do so long as the vigor of the heart compensates for the leak they cause. Many people live long lives and die of other causes with such heart lesions. Moderate exercise is beneficial, avoid all violent exercise. Don't worry about your condition.

LANDLORD'S VICTIM.—The law is one month's notice before you could be forced to vacate and notice given you after Aug. 5 (your rent day) to vacate by Sept. 5, is not binding; such being the case, therefore, should you receive no other notice (a proper one) which must be delivered prior to Sept. 5, demanding that you vacate, by the 5th or on Oct. 4 next, you would not only have the right to stay up to Oct. 5, but up to Nov. 5 as well. The notice to be good must be delivered before rent day and not on or after that day; it must also be in writing, a verbal notice will not bind. Be sure to pay the rent upon demand, or if you haven't it be sure to tender it to him before the day is gone, or you may be sued the following day either for rent, or for only the possession; in the former case, by paying the rent and costs you could stay until your time is up in the usual course, but if the latter case, there is no rent to pay and in about 12 days you could be ousted.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our dear brother, Clement Fransiole of Paducah, Ky., who passed away Sept. 3, 1918. Gone, but not forgotten. Sadly missed by his sisters,
ISABELLE AND ADELE FRANSIOLE.

In loving memory of my dear mother, Margaret Doran, who departed this life Sept. 7, 1912. Sadly missed by her daughter, Mrs. Mamie Born. Anniversary mass, Sept. 9, 1919, at 8 a. m., St. Lawrence O'Toole's Church.

In loving remembrance of Christ Finke, who died Sept. 8, 1917.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow,
For memories keep you ever near me,
Tho' you died just two years ago.

Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That's in our hearts concealed.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND STEPDAUGHTER.

In loving memory of our daughter, Katie Koch (nee Wind), who departed this life Sept. 7, 1916, three years ago today.

Peaceful be your sleep, dear daughter—
'Tis sweet to breathe your name.
In life we loved you dearly;
In death we do the same.
Sadly missed by PARENTS.

In memory of my dear daughter, Lizzie Mull, who died Sept. 6, 1918.

In loving memory of my dear sweetheart wife, Lillie Erkert (nee Bischoff), who departed this life Sept. 7, 1918:
Days of sadness oft come o'er me,
Tears in silence often flow,
Love shall always keep you near me,
Though you left one year ago.
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from my memory fade,
A loving heart will always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.
Greatly missed by HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

In memory or our darling son, Lester Abeln, who passed away Sept. 7, 1918:

Our hearts in deep sorrow returns to the day
As memory recalls how death bore you away
And left us in tears in grief and in woe,
When we stood by your bed one year ago.
One year with all its changes,
Since death strangely bade us part;
But our child, all these changes
Cannot take you from our hearts.
Gone in the best of your day,
Blighted in manhood bloom;
Gone from the hearts that loved you,
To sleep in the silent tomb.
Sadly missed by
FATHER AND MOTHER.

In memory of our dear daughter, Edna Dietrich:

Not so many months ago,
Although it seems like years,
A kind and dear girl was called away.
Little did we think that on that morn
Our dear Edna would be called to heaven,
Although God knew her longings,
Awaiting her sweetheart from France,
He came on the 3d day of May,
But too late, God had called her suddenly to higher life,
And Edna, dear, these words will always ring in my ears,
O mamma, dear, those awful longings;
Edna, dear, your birthday is Tuesday,
And all we can offer
To the one we love so dear
Is your silent, peaceful grave.
And O God give her a peaceful rest,
And in all memories
May you forever be
As dear and sweet to others
As you are to me.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, BROTHERS AND SWEETHEART.

JUST PLAIN COMMON SENSE

You have probably been surfeited with selling argument as to why you should buy this or that make of used car, but when all is said and done very little real reason has been advanced, which would convince a business man. We believe a man buys a used car with the same cold, sane, precise business judgment that he makes any other investment, and we conduct our business accordingly.

TENT CITY RIVALS FRONTIER TOWNS FOR LAWLESSNESS

Nomad Settlement of 5000 People in Texas Is Scene of Much Riotous Revelry and Vicious Crime.

STATE RANGERS SENT TO PRESERVE ORDER

Gamblers, Bootleggers and Thieves in Wild Scramble to Get the Wages of Highly Paid Oil Workers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BURKBURNETT, Tex.—Riotous revelry and lawlessness of all kind have made the unnamed tent city of 5000 population situated on the site of the Northwest extension oil pool of the Burkburnett field the most notorious community in all the feverish, excited petroleum producing territory of Texas. It is a distance of five miles from Burkburnett to the tent city and the only means of reaching there is by automobile. The charge for the trip by service car ranges from $5 to $10, depending largely on whether the road is muddy or not.

This lack of transportation, or rather the exorbitant charge for the trip, caused the oil field workers in the pool to set up their own tents in the midst of the wells that were being drilled. In almost a day, following the bringing in of the discovery well, a town of several hundred people had sprung up there. It has continued to grow until it has become the most hodgepodge, freakish municipality in all the world. It is a town without a name. It is called Newton by some and by others it is known as Waggoner City.

Appeal to Governor.

Lack of incorporation or organization of any kind has caused the riff-raff of the country to flock to the mushroom town. Within the past few weeks it has taken on the appearance of frontier towns and Western mining camps of the early days, with a dash of respectability here and there. Conditions became so bad that an appeal was made by the respectable element of the community to Gov. Hobby that a detachment of State Rangers be sent there to put down the gambling, thieving, bootlegging and various other kind of lawlessness that were being carried on more or less openly.

The situation has been investigated by Adjutant-General James A. Harley, who found the town about the wildest specimen of a municipality he had ever been in, and he is an old-timer when it comes to knowing something of the wild things in Texas of former years. He has ordered Rangers to the place and they are doing their best to bring order out of chaos.

Only a small part of the population of the tent city are engaged in the legitimate oil business. They ply almost every conceivable kind of trade, ranging from the legitimate to the most nefarious. It is the one town in this country that makes no pretense of having streets. It is a city of nomads. The tents are located promiscuously without regard to who may be the owner of the lots that they occupy.

Craziest Town in World.

In appearance and reality it is the craziest town of its size in the world. The chief purpose of every other man in the place is to separate the well drillers and other field workers from their wages as quickly and deftly as possible. All of the oil field employes are highly paid. They spend their money freely in whatever comes along that seems to offer a chance for excitement or diversion. Then, many of the oil operators of great wealth are not averse to taking a fling at the card table, the dance hall and even the bootlegger's joint occasionally, when business calls them to the scene of the intensive well drilling that is going on through all the hours of the day and night.

How the whisky peddlers manage to get through the cordon of officers that guard the railroads and highways leading to the oil fields is an unsolved mystery. That they manage to keep themselves well supplied with the illicit liquor is shown by the magnitude of the traffic that they carry on. It has been reported from time to time that whisky was being brought into the Burkburnett and other oil fields by means of airplane, but so far as the authorities have any knowledge there is no warrant for this belief.

TWO WOMEN DEFY DANGER IN AUTO TRIP OVER PLAINS

But After Crossing Continent Without Mishap They Fall Among Thieves Upon Arrival in New York.

THEIR LITTLE BLUE COUPE IS STOLEN

And in It Was the 45-Revolver With Which They Shot at Wildcats and Things Along the Way.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK.—To lose the car in which she had motored clear across the continent, alone save for one other young woman, to have it stolen from her directly on her arrival, is scurvy treatment for a girl from the Golden Gate to receive from Father Knickerbocker on her first visit to his town. But that is what happened to Mrs. Marie Hudson of San Francisco, who is stopping at the Brevoort, hoping against hope that her dark blue coupe will be returned to her so that she can take it back West and keep it forever as a memento of the exciting experiences she and Mrs. Iva Place had as they drove through the sandstorms of the deserts, the snowstorms of the Rockies, over the bumps of the Lincoln highway and round by Niagara Falls into New York City.

"Whoever stole that car got some good California air along with it," Mrs. Hudson said. "We only had one blowout in all the journey. That was at Reno, Nev. The other three tires came through all right with the same air we pumped into them at Los Angeles, where we started.

They Carried a Pistol, Too.

"Why did we make the trip? Oh, we just thought we'd like to be able to say that we had done it, two women alone. I was the driver, and I got very tired sometimes, but we didn't have much trouble. Twice we were held up on lonely Nevada roads by men who pointed guns or pistols at us and wanted to know if we had any stuff to drink. But no Californian is afraid of a gun, and besides we carried a good .45 pistol in the right-hand pocket of the car. So we covered the men and told them, yes, we had some gin and things in the back of the car to keep ourselves alive during the long journey, but the stuff wasn't for them, and to beat it. They beat it.

"We tried the pistol on a big wildcat and a huge badger we saw in a 150-mile stretch of desert sand that we labored through, but missed them both."

The two women motorists made the try in 14 driving days, but they were longer than that on the way, because of frequently getting out of money and having to wire back home for a few hundred. Then they'd just have to stay in whatever town they happened to be in till the funds arrived.

Though they didn't start till late in May, they encountered considerable snow in some places. Near Colfax, Nev., they got stuck in a 500 foot snowdrift, but the part of it where their car floundered was only five feet high. A little Ford came along and pulled them out. In Lexington, Neb., they narrowly escaped death from a sudden hailstorm, in which the stones, Mrs. Hudson says, were as big as medium sized oranges.

"German shrapnel couldn't be worse than those hailstones," she said. "They do have some storms out there. Well, we went across the Continental Divide where sometimes it is so cold that cattle freeze to death standing, and we drove through Danner Lake, the place where some years ago, several hundred persons were snowed in and starved to death.

First Over Mountains This Year.

"Our car was the first that crossed the summit this summer, I am sure—that's the highest point in the Rockies. Oh, but the mountains weren't as hard as the sandy stretches. I remember one 60-mile stretch of sand in Nevada without a farmhouse to break the monotony.

"We stopped at hotels or farmhouses and fared pretty well except in Nebraska. Those Nebraska people are lazy. At Big Springs they gave us oleomargarine instead of butter and water when we asked for milk—and all the time cattle standing in the fields just asking to be milked and the people too lazy to milk them. And the roads in Nebraska were bad. I never would drive again over the Lincoln Highway. It was terrible all through Nebraska and Nevada but better in Wyoming."

In Utah Mrs. Hudson and Mrs. Place stopped in the house of a Mormon Bishop, which was "full of children," she says, but very interesting. In fact, they had no unpleasant adventures till, reaching New York and calling on a friend on Riverside Drive, they came down to the street to find their car missing.

SOME FORECASTS OF FALL AND WINTER FASHIONS

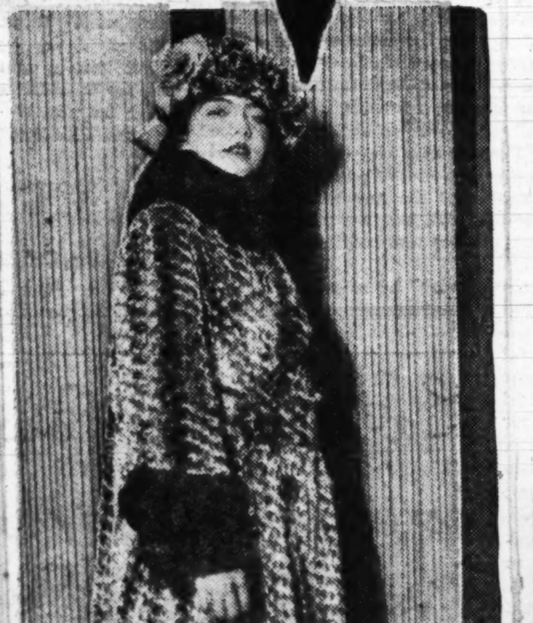
The top picture, an evening gown of chiffon velvet, shows the revival of the fishtail train and the continuance in winter styles of the tunic effect. The simple lines of this style make it admirable for heavy materials.



Below it is a girl's coat of baby Persian lamb trimmed with seal. The high collar and wide, loose skirt is suggestive of comfort in severe weather.

ST. LOUIS SOLDIER MODEL FOR PAINTING - THAT MADE PARIS ARTIST FAMOUS -

Sergt. George L. Fisher of 128th Field Artillery, posed for masterful figure of doughboy in Reni-Mel's heroic canvas, entitled "America" — Furore created by picture's recent exhibition in French Capital—Youthful artist plans to bring work to America for exhibition in important cities, including St. Louis

OUT of Paris comes again one of those familiar but always fascinating romances of art—the story of a young painter's sudden bound to fame and fortune, after years of privation and unheeded toil. Only those aware of the terrible competition among throngs of artists for the renown which only a few can conquer will be able to appreciate what it means for one individual to detach himself from the multitude and spring aloft into celebrity. And the most recent of these romances will be of particular interest because a conspicuous role among the persons of the drama was taken by a St. Louis soldier.

During, May, June and July of this year there was exhibited at the Grand Palace on the Champs Elysees, Paris, a painting of heroic size, entitled "America." It was signed with the name of Reni-Mel, concerning whom inquirers learned that he was 26 years old, that he had served two years as a Lieutenant of artillery and that he had been assigned by the French Government to visit the various war fronts and make pictures of battles, to be preserved in the War Museum at Paris.

The painting immediately gained a sensational success. It was hung in the place of honor at the exhibition, and was viewed by great throngs of people. The newspapers and art journals printed columns of praise and enthusiastic articles upon Reni-Mel's meteoric rise. To the masses the painting's subject and sentiment made an irresistible appeal; connoisseurs pointed with admiration to the consummate workmanship. Reni-Mel descended from his chill and barren attic to discover that he could sell his painting for $25,000—an offer which he refused. The picture's immense popularity may be judged from the fact that no less than 20 printing houses in Paris obtained permission to reproduce it upon postcards, which have been sold by the thousands.

The painting's power lies in the fact that, in a most dramatic manner, it concentrates within one frame, with only two men depicted, an event of world significance and triumph. There is a French soldier in horizon blue, his head bare and his hair disheveled, and his fine-carved features writhing with pain, for he has been grievously wounded. He still clutches his rifle and his face still confronts the foe.

But he remains upon his feet only because of the supporting arm of an American soldier, stalwart, erect and fearless, whose other arm, with the palm foremost, is outstretched imperiously towards the enemy, while there seems to issue from his open mouth a cry of defiance. Such authority is there in his attitude that one feels as if this single doughboy, by his sole word of command, is hurling back the German armies from their prey. In this one figure, indeed, is typified the decisive might which America flung into the doubtful struggle. It stands masterful and undismayed against the flames and havoc which ravage the painting's background.

Many persons at the exhibition inquired as to who served as the model for the tremendous figure of the American. The reply was that the original was Sergt. George L. Fisher of St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A., a member of the 128th Field Artillery, Thirty-fifth Division, American expeditionary force. In this St. Louisan's sturdy frame, undaunted bearing and vigorously cut features Reni-Mel found his ideal of the American soldier. And the painter limned him so faithfully that even the lines of the upraised hand are the identical lines of Fisher's left palm. The model for the second figure in the picture was a young French infantryman.

The train of circumstances which brought painter and model together for the creation of a work of art may be said to have begun in 1914, when Fisher, coming to St. Louis from Washington, D. C., joined Battery A. He had previously, for 14 years, been a member of the District of Columbia National Guard.

He served with Battery A on the Mexican border in 1916, and when the regiment was mobilized in this city for service against Germany he was placed in charge of food contracts and subsistence. When Battery A went to Fort Sill for training and gained its new name, that of the 128th Field Artillery, he was appointed Regimental Color Sergeant by Col. Rumbold.

SERGT. GEORGE L. FISHER.

Fisher was the only man in the regiment who could talk French, although many of his companions were fluent in German. His mother was a Parisian, and he learned her tongue in infancy. On account of this accomplishment he was sent to France ahead of his regiment, arriving at Paris in March, 1918. He was attached to the Criminal Investigation Department of the army, with duties ramifying into the Military Postal Express Service. He was employed before the war—and has since resumed employment—as a dispatcher in the St. Louis Postoffice.

Fisher reluctantly took leave of his friends in the regiment, but his orders came from the Adjutant-General himself. His comrades hurriedly collected a purse for him and, although it was between paydays, a substantial sum was raised for "Bud" Fisher, as his regimental nickname was.

On the other side of the ocean his headquarters were in Paris, but his duties gave occasion for him to travel extensively in Northern and Western France. So important were his errands considered that he bore a card forbidding the military police to arrest him for any offense he might commit. They could make a report, but they were ordered to let him go on his way without hindrance.

It was in Paris that he first met Reni-Mel, who was also doing much traveling about the various war sectors in quest of material for his war sketches, since published under the title of "Les Soldats: Album de Guerré." The two men became fast friends, and Reni-Mel confided to the American that he had conceived a subject for a painting which he was certain would make him famous. The theme was to be that of America coming to the aid of France.

Soon after the armistice was signed, the painter found an opportunity to begin work on his masterpiece. He declared that for the American figure he could not use a French model, maintaining that French faces were not "strong enough." He wanted an American, and Fisher was just the American he wanted.

The St. Louisan consented, and then commenced an ordeal which continued eight weeks, during which Fisher posed several hours every day. The months were December, January and February. It was bitterly cold in Paris, and fuel was rarely to be had.

"I would go to Reni-Mel's studio every morning," Fisher recalls, "and breakfast with him, on 3 cents worth of bread and a pint of wine. Then I would pose from 9 o'clock until noon.

"The studio was an attic, about 20 by 20 feet. It was cold and desolate. There was no fire. Reni-Mel, who was busily working, would have to stop every little bit and blow on his hands to warm them. I suffered still more, because I had to stand still in a pose. Frequently I had to get permission to drop the pose so that I could stamp my feet, beat my hands together and slap myself with my arms, in order to restore circulation.

"At noon we would stop for a lunch of rabbit, or sometimes macaroni, with bread, wine and occasionally a dab of potatoes. In the afternoon I frequently posed another hour.

"My foremost memory of that eight weeks is one of Reni-Mel's supreme confidence. He was a young man, he was living on barely enough food to keep him in health, and he painted with hands benumbed by cold. But he was unshakably convinced that his painting would be a great success. 'This work will make me famous,' he said continually.

"Many Paris artists visited the studio from time to time, for they were interested in Reni-Mel's undertaking. They all encouraged him. One day, when the picture was nearly finished, there came a venerable old man, whose name I have forgotten, but he was called the dean of Parisian painters. He looked at the picture, and then said: 'Young man, you have achieved a work of genius.'

"Many officers of the 128th will remember Reni-Mel and his studio, for I took them to call on the painter while his 'America' was in progress."

Fisher was not in Paris when the painting won its celebrity, for in May, under Gen. Pershing's personal orders, he was relieved from duty in Paris and sent directly to Washington, as a first-class courier, with 16 cases of confidential mail for the War Department. He was mustered out last June at Washington.

He is now living at 3361 Folsom avenue. He is 40 years old, is married and has a grown daughter. He is 5 feet 8 1-2 inches tall, weighs 142 pounds and is noticeably sturdy of facial lineament.

Since his return he has received several letters from Reni-Mel, the latest of which inclosed an engraving of his picture. In this letter the painter described the furore which his work had excited in Paris, and also announced that he was planning to bring the painting to America in the near future and place it on exhibition in the important cities. Among these will certainly be St. Louis, he promised Fisher.

Fresh Air Best Preventive of Flu

ALTHOUGH man has lived in houses of one kind or another for several thousand years, and in Western Europe since the introduction, somewhere in the fifteenth century, of glass for domestic windows, in houses which can be almost hermetically sealed, yet a human strain capable of withstanding the evil influences of unventilated rooms has not so far been evolved, says the British Medical Journal. Our ancestors of a few centuries ago immured themselves in tightly closed houses, slept in bedrooms with windows closed, sometimes even in cupboards or box beds, with shut doors. The result was reflected in their mortality, in the prevalence of the plague.

Though we are wiser than they, and pay lip service to the virtues of fresh air, and talk much and learnedly on ventilation, the severity of the present pandemic of influenza is enough to show that we need to grow wiser.

Dr. Leonard Hill, who has done perhaps more than anyone else to give a scientific explanation of the air conditions of health, relates some interesting experiments on himself and other volunteers. They lead him to urge as the best means of combating the infection of influenza the deep breathing of cool air brought about by exercise and by sleeping in the open air—this last perhaps a counsel of perfection and highly pertinent in light of a recent warning by St. Louis health authorities that the disease may be expected to return during the coming winter. The advice applies not only to influenza itself, but to the colds and catarrhs which, in the aggregate, are responsible for so much discomfort and loss of efficiency.

A striking illustration has been related to us by Col. C. T. C. de Crespigny, D. S. O., A. A. M. C. During August, 1918, a transport left Australia bound for Great Britain. The 1200 troops which she carried were accommodated in four troop decks of about equal capacity. Three decks were well ventilated with windsails, but the fourth deck was in this respect very unsatisfactory. Early in the voyage a form of infective pharyngitis and epidemic of catarrh broke out among the troops. The incidence of the infection was 10 times greater among the men occupying the badly ventilated decks than it was among the others.

"Double 'scuse. And this is the best place in the world to get well. Some little old ranch, and Kurt Walters is some foreman."

"Aren't you foreman now?"

"When Kurt is here, I'm nothing but a cow hand; when he is away, I'm only acting foreman. I'll never be anything but just acting-something, I guess."

"Kurt Walters was only acting Sheriff."

"That's so. We seem to be mostly actingers or actorines," he allowed. "Say!" turning ferociously to Francis, "what business has a boy looking like an owl? Loosen up, and have some pep!"

The boy's fair face flushed.

"It's none of your busines how I look, Jo Gary."

"Wow! Now you're talking. We can't fight before a lady, though."

"Cook says you look like a wishbone, Jo," taunted Billy, coming to his brother's defense.

"She did, did she? Well, the cook can hang me over her door, and then—I'll kiss her."

"I'll tell her, and she won't dance with you tonight."

"If you do," threatened Jo, "I won't tell you where there are four little, new kittens what haven't got their peepers opened yet."

"Oh, where, Jo? We'll not tell her. Please, Jo!" pleaded Betty.

"I choose to name them," said Francis. "Tell, Jo."

"I'll not tell, unless you get your little new playmate here to promise me a dance tonight."

"Are you really going to have a dance tonight?" asked the girl, eagerly.

"Sure thing we are. Right here in this mess hall, and"—looking at her fixedly, he added, slowly—"you can dance, too—with me."

"Oh!" she cried, her eyes shining. "It will seem so beautiful—to dance again. What do they dance up here—foxtrot?"

"We dance any old thing the music tells us to."

"Same as they do in—Chicago?" she asked demurely.

"Now tell us where the kittens are," demanded Betty.

"Follow me, little Black and Tan."

In her excitement Betty forgot to resent Jo's pet appellation for her.

He led the way to a corner of the toolhouse.

Reposing in a nest made of pieces of carpet lined with soft flannel, were four puffballs of maltese which were quickly gathered and garnered by Pen and the children, while the mother-cat looked on with proud but apprehensive eyes.

Who fixed them such a nice bed?" asked Francis.

"Your Uncle Kurt. But they tell me he rode away at the first crack of daybreak, so he didn't see them."

"And they'll have their eyes open before he gets back, maybe!" lamented Francis.

"Perhaps," put in Jo, "he'll get his eyes opened wide while he's gone. Then he and the kits can meet on equal terms."

"He'll miss the dance, too," said Betty sorrowfully.

"Whom do you men dance with?" asked Pen.

"Well, there's Betty here, stays up for three dances anyway, and there's Mrs. Kingdon, and Ag, and the cook and the other girl—and everything else failing, we make Gene Dossey play gal."

"What music do you have?"

"We've got two of the finest fiddlers that ever drew a bow. Sleepy Sandy and Jakey Fourr. Say, Billy Kingdon, if you squeeze that kitten so hard, it's eyes'll bust open before the nine-day limit. Put them all down now, or their ma'll have a kitnip fit."

"I choose to name them," said Francis. "Uncle Sam is this biggest one; the one with white on is Gen. Joffre and the little one is King George and"——

"Hold on there!" cried Jo. "Uncle Sam and Gen. J. goes all right, all right; but there ain't room for another gent's name. You'll have to change King George to Georgette."

"I won't have her named Georgette!" said Betty. "Her name is Fairy Queen, and that other one is"——

"It's my turn!" said Billy. "Mine's going to be named Mewstral."

"You mean Neutral," corrected Francis, scathingly.

"No; he's said it," declared Jo. "She's mewtrawled all the morning. She don't seem to like her boarding house. Now, all you kidlets run to the kitchen and ask cook for a cup of milk and a clean rag. I'll force feed Mewtral, 'cause she's a little suffragette. Don't hurry back too fast."

The children went with alacrity and returned in the same way; but Pen and Jo improved the opportunity for conversation without the three interested listeners.

"Here, Jo," said Billy, handing over the milk when they returned. "Let's see you feed Mewtral. She must be hungry."

"If she were me," said Jo, whose eyes were shining, "she'd be too happy to eat."

He fed the kitten and then tried in vain to obtain further converse with Pen alone, but the children outmaneuvered all his efforts and finally Pen took them back to the house.

"When?" half-whispered Jo, as they were leaving.

"When Mrs. Kingdon says," she murmured in reply. She turned back for another glance. He was standing, cap in hand, with the air of a conqueror.

"What's the verdict on Jo?" asked Kingdon.

"Jo's inimitable," she replied lightly.

"Wait until you dance with him," he said. "Jo dances his way into every girl's heart."

"I can believe that."

"He's one of those sunny-hearted fellows that people take to be shallow, but under the surface brightness there's a tolerably deep current. And he never nurses a grudge. If anyone should stick a knife in Jo, he'd only make a question mark of his eyebrow and give a wondering smile."

"What I can't understand," said Pen, "is why the children don't like him."

"He plagues us all the time," complained Betty.

"It's very odd, though," commented Kingdon, meditatively, and with a twinkle in his eye, "how you do like to be plagued. You are always tagging at his heels. I think you must be coquetting with Jo."

"He's so different with them from Kurt," said Mrs. Kingdon. "Kurt is so patient and so sweet with children. He understands them."

"Kurt," said Pen, "seems to be like some things that are too good for everyday use. He should be laid away on a shelf for Sundays." Then, meeting Mrs. Kingdon's wondering eyes, she added with a little flush: "That isn't true—and it's unkind! I don't really mean it."

"We are all ready for our sewing bee," observed Mrs. Kingdon, smiling. "What shall we begin on?"

"I'm wondering," said Pen meditatively, "if I hadn't better rig up something evening-like for the dance tonight. If you could let me borrow a white muslin curtain, I could easily rig it up into an impromptu dance frock."

"Jo said he knew a man who turned an automobile into a lamp post," said Betty.

"Oh, Betty!" laughed Pen, "maybe there is hope for a sinner to be turned into a saint."

"We won't have to resort to curtains," said Mrs. Kingdon. "I have a white satin skirt that is too short for me, and you can fashion a waist from a piece of white muslin."

"And Doris left her white slippers that were too short for her," reminded Betty.

"To think," meditated Pen presently, as she deftly cut out a waist, "that the thief should be making evening clothes, when it was only but yesterday she was booked for bars instead of balls."

CHAPTER V.

THE two fiddlers were tuning their instruments when the party from the house entered the rosy-lighted mess hall. Jo started forward with an air of assurance to claim. When he beheld her, he stopped abruptly, lost in admiration of the daintily clad young person whose Castle-cut locks had been lured to a coiffure from which little tendrils escaped in babyish rings.

Jakey Fourr, second violin, glimpsed her at the same time and noticed Jo's hesitating halt.

"'Ladies' choice!" he shouted with a grin.

Jo looked at her expectantly but vainly; for she gladdened the pride of Francis by choosing him as her partner. Betty and Billy mutually chose each other. Mrs. Kingdon selected a newcomer. Agatha and the "other girl" asked their particular friends, and the cook spitefully "sat it out." Pen had to follow the prim little steps learned by Francis at a city dancing school the winter before, and Sleepy Sandy thoughtfully timed his tune thereto and shortened the number. Then Jo started for the belle of the ball, but a youth in combination attire of hunter, cowboy and soldier was ahead of him.

"Would you honor me, ma'am?" he asked.

She would and did, but she never learned the name of the wonderful dance with which she "honored" him. It had been a case of "whither thou goest, I will go."

Again Sleepy Sandy was considerate and cut this number short also.

Then Betty came running breathlessly up to Pen.

"Jo says if you don't dance with him this next time, like you promised, he'll drown the kittens. Please, Aunt Pen!"

Jo was promptly on hand this time.

"This is mine," he asserted, "unless you're danced out by that gink."

"My dancing blood isn't up yet," she said, slipping into his arms. She didn't care to know the name of the dance. All she knew was the ecstasy of the moment in the flowing, melting rhythm. Jo had the easy assurance of the dancer born, and she went where he willed, as if she were floating on silver wires. Finally, Sleepy Sandy, watching them in envious admiration, was aware that he had played as long as the law of limit allowed.

"Isn't this better than Reilly's?" she asked demurely.

"There will never in the world be to me a night like the one at Reilly's," he replied.

"Jo, why don't you go into vaudeville? Your dancing would bring you twice what your work here must."

"Mine is a man's job," he retorted. "I'd rather dance horseback than on any stage. I have to go over to Farley with a lot of cattle tomorrow. It will take me three days. You will arrange to see me again when I come back?"

"I surely will, Jo," she promised.

"Don't let Jo monopolize you," said Kingdon, coming up to them at the close of the dance. "We try to give the boys plenty of recreation, and they don't get many girls to dance with. None like you."

Pen dutifully promised to do penance with the rank and file.

"I'll go and ask the cook," said Jo mournfully, "else I won't get half rations. Then I'll come back for you."

Reluctantly he gave way to Gene and approached the cook.

"Say!" he asked with a quirk to his mouth, "want to hook on to the wishbone?"

"Those darned brats fetch and carry everything they hear," she exclaimed.

"Forget it. A wishbone's the best bone to pick anyway."

Thereafter he waited patiently for Pen to do her duty dances and slip one in with him.

Pen went to sleep that night with blissful recollections of her wonderful dances with Jo and a vague curiosity as to whether Kurt Walters could dance.

For the greater part of three days she sewed assiduously, surrounded the while by three admiring children, who listened entranced to a new kind of Scheherazade tales. Between times she gathered flowers for the many jugs and jars, learned to make salads and to perform little household duties hitherto unknown. Then suddenly there came a swift change of mood. The sense of uneasiness, the need of freedom, the desire that pervades the wistful note of the imprisoned bird was in her blood.

"My life is too full of workdays," she declared. "Three days of domesticity! I can do no more. I will see if Jo hasn't returned."

Seeking new fields that night, she slipped surreptitiously down to the mess hall.

"Halloa!" greeted Jo rapturously. "I've been watching for you, Li'l Penny Ante. Just got back. What you been doing since the dance?"

"Behaving. And I must get even some way or go stark mad. What have you been doing?"

"Me? Jakey here and I've been entertaining ourselves with a game of craps."

"Play it with me instead. It's the only game I've never learned."

"Sure, I'll show you. Sit down here on the floor."

La-May Face Powder Is Harmless to the Most Delicate Skin

A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that positively will not cause enlarged pores, blackheads and irritations. In fact, while it is considered the best face powder, it is also a remedy for complexion troubles. It is guaranteed pure and harmless to the most delicate baby skin. It beautifies wonderfully because it helps to clear and lighten the skin and protect the complexion from blemishes. This new kind of face powder is made largely of an ingredient that skin specialists use in the treatment of the complexion. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. Of course, saying this, every one knows we mean the famous La-may Powder (French, Poudre L'Ame). This is the powder that does not contain starchy rice powder or dangerous white lead to make it adhere. White lead is a deadly poison and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that makes enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder irritations. Because La-may is so pure and because it stays on so well it is now used by over a million American women. All dealers carry the large box, and many dealers also carry the small trial size. Be sure to try La-may. Then you will really know a perfect face powder. You will be sorry if you take a substitute. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion, you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in America. Save this notice.

Marvelous Messages of the 20th Plane

A PUBLICATION COMMITTEE was organized in the Other World early in 1918 to present in formal fashion to humans on the earth plane the fact of life after death. This committee consisted of Abraham Lincoln, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Walt Whitman and Robert G. Ingersoll. The report was made to Dr. Albert Durrant Watson of 10 Euclid avenue, Toronto, Canada, through a medium named Louis Benjamin, and is published in a volumn entitled, "The Twentieth Plane," by the George W. Jacobs Co., Philadelphia.

Dr. A. D. Watson, head of Canadian psychical research, entered as a skeptic into the experience which brought these eloquent messages purporting to issue from spirits of the greatest philosophers, poets, statesmen, artists and musicians of the world's history

WHETHER one regards this extraordinary statement derisively or with reverence, "The Twentieth Plane" is a remarkable book. It presents messages, explanations and statements purporting to issue from the spirits of the greatest philosophers, poets, artists and statesmen in the world's history. Lincoln speaks, also Shakspeare; Plato and Socrates contribute wisdom; Shelly is heard, Edmund Burke claims to be the author of the "Letters of Junius," Elbert Hubbard talks at length—he predicted, early in 1918, the end of the war. Many of the passages and dialogues are of literary value and beauty.

Dr. Watson, who signs himself "The Reporter," is a fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, and is president of the Association of Psychical Research of Canada. He is the author of "The Sovereignty of Ideals," "The Wings of the Wildbird" and other essays and poems, and seems to be a man of character and influence in Canada. While he believes in spirit communication, Dr. Watson declares he is not a spiritualist. He says he entered into the experience of which this book is the product as a skeptic. He does not claim that the messages are authentic, but does assert that they were received and accurately reported.

The medium through whom the messages were given was Louis Benjamin, a commercial man, 32 years of age, born in Chicago, who left public school at 12 and is admittedly not capable of the thought or expression emitted through him. The communications were received over a board on which are printed the alphabet and the digits, or by automatic writing, or uttered by Benjamin in a trance state. He is called in the book "the instrument."

Dr. Watson tells in his preface the origin of these communications. On the morning of June 20, 1918, Benjamin was told by a spirit friend over the board in his own home to call up the Watsons and arrange a meeting in which "a wonderful message would be given in the atmosphere of their home." The first circle meeting was held that evening, several members of Dr. Watson's family being present. These meetings continued for a period of six months. Dr. A. H. Abbott, associate professor of philosophy at the University of Toronto, attended a number of the seances and interrogated the alleged illustrious.

In presenting these incredible claims contained in the volume, it should be said that Dr. Watson seems to be aware of all the accusations of imposture and self-deception that may be cast on "The Twentieth Plane." He can prove by witnesses that the messages were received under the conditions and in the substances presented. He asserts his own good faith and that of the instrument, and he declares he has not the information and cannot write in the form and manner of the communicants. It should be understood, he says, that the words "purgatory to be" preface each identity claimed in the messages.

Out of a perfect wilderness of philosophy, poetry, serious, inspirational discourses, a few extracts may be given herewith.

The book begins with a description of the twentieth plane, the home of most of the spirits who are giving the messages. It is a zone 500 miles beyond the earth, and the conditions set forth agree with what other spiritistic revelations have told us.

The spirit calling himself Coleridge explains that the most important avocation of twentieth plane people is to inspire higher aspirations on the earth plane. He says: "We study to be the ego to enter into the consciousness of those on your plane who deserve our entry into their subnormal life."

The spirit of Dr. Watscn's mother, who is one of the group of communicants, gives this as the mother prayer of the twentieth plane:

"To Mothers Everywhere: I kiss the heart of the maternal, and say to the God of all: It is all in all to be a mother. On the mountain top just as the day breaks one sees the heavens lighted from angel eyes, but this is not nearly as sublime as the light in the eye of a mother for her child. So to the Being of all I send the spirit of thankful women. It is the highest station in life to be the valley through which crept one of the souls of men. This is the function of the mother. Mothers are humble through pain, worry and the misery of anticipation of the long waiting, and often then, the ideal crashed to pieces at the base of the cliff of earth life, but God said it is well, so I, in the mother's prayer, simply say, as Jesus said, 'Thy will be done.'"

George Meredith is interviewed. He says that a great writer writes as much with his vision as with his education. Here is his prose description of a garden:

"A path of barrenness. A lonely woman walking in that path. She feels that the world is cruel and without beauty. The moon rises full and clear. The woman, walking aimlessly into the garden, passes a rustic gate, her thoughts bowed down with grief. The air is still. Silence as profound as death. The woman hears a strange whispering. This awakens her mind to a little alertness. She opens her eyes and sees she is alone. She says to herself: Is this talking in a garden where there are no people? It is almost a breezeless night. She wonders. Soon the silvery orb of soft mellow glory shows to her the varied and almost unearthly bed of beautiful flowers. She realizes that her soul is so still that she hears the language of the flowers—the love and sympathy of each to the others. Then the perfume bathes her aching temples. She feels the perfect flower-repose, and so vision, order, truth and beauty are angels which tell God's purpose to her soul."

Edgar Allen Poe explains that "the raven is forever more, and is the imprisoned soul of myself."

Shakspeare explains that Bacon assisted him as only the mentor does the scholar, in a scholastic way. Hamlet was not insane, but was as lucid as the personification of all the truths of life.

Here is his description of the scene on the twentieth plane:

"Behold a temple set in a valley, whose opaline sides as if with jewels were dissolved, then kissed by Sappho and polished to reflect the gorgeous splendor of exalted nature. Hear the bell in yonder church tower. The walk to this edifice is like pearls. The trees are all swaying in rhythmical harmony of pulsations of ether. The people are all moving with steps of princes newly ordained to a higher throne; and all is lit with the close resemblance of the pale pink of sea shells."

Wordsworth says that only a Shakspeare can write free verse.

"Not that it is nearest to the essentials of poetry, but that it requires infinite genius to overcome its difficulties of expression. Verse without rhythm is neither good poetry nor good prose."

Tennyson says we are at the beginning only of a renaissance in poetry. His fault on earth was "too much attention to technique." His greatest poem is the latter portion of "In Memoriam."

William Morris describes some of the furniture and decorations of the twentieth plane:

"Robert Louis Stevenson is sitting in a chair I created by thought. The chair is simply a back, seat and legs; but the back moves in motion as one moves. Here all things of utility conform to personal use.

"We often sweep out of our homes the articles in them and slowly recreate new things of beauty, such as beds shaped like shells, like a sunflower, window sills like sands golden-hearted by the incense sun, chiffoniers all glass-like with drawers that open as noiselessly as the fall of a flower petal. We have rugs something like a blend of fur, silk and the kashmir of Arabia.

"We have here hooks to hang headgear on made of crescent moonbeam shadows, and I could go on forever enumerating these external objects of beauty.

"Our walls are made of glass, and as one dreams, thinks, loves, the life is pictured on the wall—a moving picture of the tenants."

Lincoln, who contributes on several occasions, replies to a question as to what are the pointing fingers to the greater ideals of the people:

"Until profits are eliminated, there must be social distinction, and they constitute hell.

"The people can exploit any great national utility without profits.

"Three fundamental positions are slowly emerging from the body politic: First, the elimination of profits; second, the evanishment of social distinctions; third, equality of education.

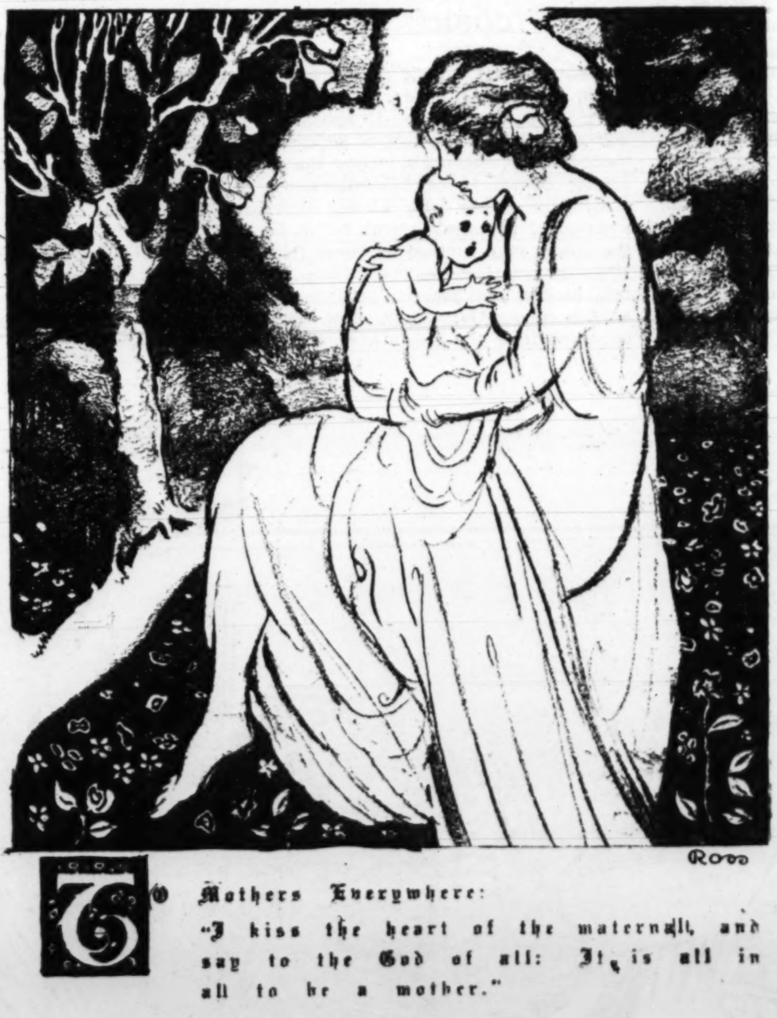
"There is more true democracy in equality of education than in any other department. A great poem cannot be cornered. All the higher as well as the lower schools will soon be state-owned."

Alfred Russell Wallace describes the mechanics of communication between the twentieth plane and the earth plane:

"I am here on a plane about 500 miles above your world. I am speaking now through a process of thought into a delicate instrument which sends out wave vibrations exactly in the same way as a Marconi instrument sends waves out to a receiving station."

Coleridge thus defines life:

"Life. The planets revolve in space, the world tumbles in rotation, humans are in transformation, all is flux, change, motion, but the archtectonic process of thought holds together, in definite individualistic forms, humans and planets, of the universe. This is God."



To Mothers Everywhere:
"I kiss the heart of the maternal, and say to the God of all: It is all in all to be a mother."

Count Lynar: A Many-Sided Swindler

point, the type finds the only practicable way open to be the shady one. First a questionable act, then an open piece of roguery, finally a crime.

The world comes more and more to the sense, as the study of the mind progresses, that it is not only the weak and obtuse among the lowly who are tempted to criminality, but often the bold and the brilliant—those whipped to the deed by stronger desires. The dolt may be led into the anti-social act by evil company. The able knave is forced thither by desire for better company.

Does this fit our picturesque hero? His story will show that he wanted to be rich, admired and titled. He was ambitious and proud. The poor inkeeper's lad would be a Count, remember. No doubt he watched the ways and manners of people of title from the beginning, unconsciously at first. He studied the pose and poise of his officers, we may be certain. He absorbed like a sponge the way and walk of the superior world.

And Max Schiemangk is an unquestionable genius, quite aside from his masterly peccabilities. His ready and facile mind could grasp and hold; his imagination could leap across barriers and classes where common men might not follow. The man is in truth an inventive prodigy. He might have been an Edison, a Westinghouse. His fertile brain has thought up a thousand clever devices, but, alas, as many deceits. What accident of mental makeup, what inner condition or trick of environment decides which man of this type shall become the great contributor to life and which the consummate rogue?

Of the man's inventive faculty in a moment. Let us glance at one or two of his reputed strokes of deceit:

On one occasion Count Lynar, as one may quite as well call him from this point forward, was in Berlin. He wanted certain approaches, certain social entree. So Lynar became the widely known American Gen. So-and-So. Certain Berlin sets did him the homage his title demanded, put a chateau at his service, entertained him and had him invited to the fall maneuvers of that great war machine which collapsed last November, from which Lynar had been chased as a private 20 years before.

Some time later a gentleman of the same description appeared at Governor's Island, posing as a notable German General. With him was his wife. The officer displayed his decorations and said he was in New York on his honeymoon. Unusual courtesies were extended to him. He was even taken for a trip on a Government yacht.

Meantime, Count Lynar-Loudon-Passy had been the principal in various gallantries, including a number of marriages. Once he wedded a Miss Rose O'Brien of Albion, N. Y., who appeared some years later to prosecute him for bigamy. On another occasion a Miss Lilla Allendorf was wedded to him at the city hall.

All these various peccabilities were part of the history of this man previous to the outbreak of the great war. Even more diverting and astounding things came after Europe had been thrown into the vast and bootless carnage just brought to end.

For some time a Count von Lynar had been seen driving about New York in a showy limousine, with a most military looking chauffeur. He was a familiar in various cafes and hotels, a figure to see once and remember, and one to excite wonderment and question. It was in the summer of 1915. The preparedness campaigns were on, the militarist fever was running high, there was a solid interest in everything warlike and destructive of life.

One morning the editor of a certain defunct magazine, then making a bid for metropolitan favor, telephoned and suggested an interview with Count von Lynar—a most interesting man, a great inventor, the conceiver of instruments that would end any war overnight. A good story. The writer assigned to it tells of his experience as follows:

"That afternoon I called on the Count in his Fifth avenue offices, in New York. I found myself in a comfortable suite, furnished in imitation of the Continental manner. A heavy, thick, military man, with an uptilted black mustache, a knowing, holding eye and a powerful soft hand, came briskly to me, shook my hand with violent cordiality and brushed me into a chair. He fixed me with his glittering gaze and began to talk, by turns in English and German, with a spicing of casual French, volubly, but with grace and graciousness.

"Here was the Count Lynar, outwardly at least part business man, part soldier and the largest part courtier. He had the ways of an easy charmer of men or women, the pretensions of a person needing only to be seen to be trusted. Unhappily, I saw and distrusted.

"The Count began to barrage me with personal questions and an all too flattering interest in my humble affairs and origin. I reminded him that I'd come to see his marvelous inventions, and he began to exhibit them in the form of models—an improved field kit, the latest in equipment for the soldier; an automatic lantern; an unsinkable battleship; an airplane that was to rise from any position and alight where it liked, a thing half plane, half helicoptre; and finally a device for bridging a stream under fire that had a real touch of genius about it.

"The mechanical wonders and advantages of all these things this suave gentleman explained glibly and clearly enough to convince any layman at engineering. I was impressed with the models if doubtful of their creator. My host sensed this at once. Instantly he turned from the business back to the personal. I might accept his solemn word, that of a gentleman, as to the inventions. They would do what was promised. I would see. The Government was interested—was, in truth, already building at the unsinkable battleship.

"For the rest he would show me personally. I ought to know some friends of his. Was I acquainted with the Princess P. d'A.? (The name of a very wealthy American girl who had then just married a titled Italian, and was much in the papers.) Shocking that I did not know her. We must meet. She was in the habit of having tea with him on Thursday afternoon. Would I come? To be sure; he would telephone me and make the invitation definite. Meantime here was his card. He got it from a box in his wall case—a gold coronet in the corner and under it the words 'Graf zu Lynar.'

"I found a Graf zu Lynar in the German Freiherrenlist. The facts about him fitted my inventive friend very badly. Also, I met the gentleman again casually, not with the lovely Princess, but with another German titled person whom I knew to be a fraud. An editorial doubt as strong as my own prevailed as to Count Lynar and his wares. The article was not printed. The whole thing turned out just another little contribution to the mirth of men and nations.

"Not long afterward the debonair Count Lynar was lodged in jail to face bigamy charges and shortly sent to prison to expiate his weakness for uxorial plurality. From jail he made a sensational if Quixotic offer to reveal a German plot for the kidnaping of the President and the invasion of Canada. By dint of this and certain credit his inventions got for him he was released somewhat later, and sank back into mild obscurity.

"Then one heard of him again through his inventions, particularly his unsinkable ship and a boat that was to drive the submarines out of the deeps. It seems our incorrigible one stands accused of having used these chimeras to get money out of a list of men and women and with misusing the money. For this he must stand trial again. The dark gates of prison open and yawn for him as often before.

"Never mind! If the donjon gets him it will not be for long. Such a man is superior to jails. Depend on him to reappear."

Each soldier was buried with his side-arms, canteen, belt and bayonet, in case these remained. Often the dead soldier's gas mask and steel helmet were found upon his grave in the Argonne Forest. These were reserved, with any trinkets and letters that might be found, for dispatch to the soldier's relatives, in case they so desired.

The smallest unit in the cemetery is the individual grave. Twenty-six individual graves, side by side in the same trench, but eight inches apart and five feet deep, form a plot, and eight plots form a section. In the center, about the flagpole, are four sections for officers, comprising about 800 graves. Officers and men are buried in the same sort of coffin, and over their heads are the same crosses of wood, painted white, four feet high, with a cross bar 26 inches wide. Stenciled upon each cross in black letters, are the soldier's name, rank and organization. In the records of the cemetery each grave is identified by its individual number and by the numbers of its plot and section.

Assigned to the cemetery were 2000 German prisoners, captured by American soldiers. Lieut. Priester found them the most docile of workmen, as they were convinced that any military officers—whether German, French or American—was a sort of superior being, to be obeyed without question. They built an ornamental retaining wall of stone, which runs along the entire frontage of the cemetery, and set up all the crosses. They did this latter task with such precision, according to Lieut. Priester, that every row is mathematically correct. He found the Germans slow, but thorough and exact. Yet, hustled along by American system, they contrived in one day to set up 8000 crosses.

On Decoration day Gen. Pershing visited the cemetery and took part in memorial exercises in honor of the Argonne dead. The creation of the cemetery was in charge of Col. L. I. A. Chapman, a regular army officer.

As described by Lieut. Priester, the Argonne Cemetery, viewed from the front wall, gives a sunken garden effect. It also has an effect of lying in a valley, although it is itself on high ground, because it is neighbored by hills. The graves are sodded, with gravel walks between, and in the center are star-shaped designs of flowers of many colors.

Lieut. Priester feels that the relatives of American soldiers buried in the Argonne Cemetery should let their bodies remain there.

"Our boys should rest where they fell as soldiers," he says. "The Argonne Cemetery will remain, as long as the United States endures, a monument to American valor. We who made the cemetery felt that it was an honor to do the best we could for the men who fell."

Count Lynar: A Many-Sided Swindler

The son of an obscure German innkeeper, arrested in St. Louis, who has played in turn the roles of soldier, traveler, inventor, secret agent, financier, adventurer, lover, society man, swindler and bigamist — Always with the genial grace of the nobleman born :: ::

COUNT MAX LYNAR-LOUDON, that most extraordinary person, is again in jail. Some persons of little understanding, notably the public prosecutor, seem bent on sending this member of the aristocracy of his own world, if of no other, to Sing Sing and "the damp vault's dayless gloom." One can have no quarrel with these excellent people. In a case like Lynar's there are always two points of view. The world, says the ancient cynic, is composed of fools and knaves—and who shall standardize them? Who shall say which is which? or, having said, who shall determine their relative culpability?

There are those who consider Count Lynar (or Max Schiemangk, for sake of accuracy), one of the most engaging knaves at present agitating this sad old earth. But Schiemangk will probably disagree—and there you are. Let us see.

No long ago, Count Lynar was arrested here in St. Louis and subsequently taken to New York to face several charges of swindling. A number of men and women had complained that this gentleman's inventions and their faith in them had cost needless effusions of gold. This aureous bleeding having been painful, the complainants demanded the punishment of the Count. What will happen remains to be seen.

Perhaps not the least of the problems of the Court will be a decision as to the name under which this volatile hero will be tried. For he is at once Count Lynar-Loudon, Max Schiemangk, Max von Chimang, Count Max von Loudon, Count Loudon, Count von Loudon, Count Lynar, Graf zu Lynar, Count Marcel Passy, Count Lynar Passy de Chimang, Count Albert Marcel de Passy, Count Jean Marcel Peyrgne de Passy, Colonel This, General That, etc., etc., ad lib., and often ad nauseam.

When it is considered that this peccant paragon is as well endowed with talents as with names, some faulty estimate of his greatness and grandeur will be approached. For Max Schiemangk is or has been soldier, traveler, inventor, secret agent, financier, adventurer, lover, society man, swindler, bigamist—and, let us never forget, one of the blithest poseurs who ever broke a heart or scuttled a competence with a posture.

No one knows the complete story of this marvelous fellow's life. To judge from the various versions he has personally purveyed, he isn't clear about it all himself. But certain entertaining episodes and interludes are in the chronicles, and they give a vivid if not a full picture of the gentleman.

Count Lynar-Loudon-Chimang-Passy Peyrgne was born in a vague little hole called Staupitz, probably the place of that name in German Bohemia. The day and date were Aug. 30, 1869. Our hero is thus about to consummate his fiftieth journey about the sun. Oddly enough, he was not born to either exalted name or multiplicity of titles. He was, in fact, one Max Schiemangk, the son of an humble inn keeper. So saith the accurate and German police gazette, in whose files this gentleman has his own niche. Count Lynar, etc., denies all this and avers that he first greeted the dawn with wailing in the old Astor House, New York. Be that as it may.

"COUNT" MAX LYNAR.

At 20 or thereabouts, it appears, Max Schiemangk was already in some sort of scrape. One version says that he was dismissed from the German army for taking advantage of his comrades. Another report credits his father with having sent him to America, wearied of his son's genius for evil. In either event, the young man arrived on these friendly shores about 1889. For a time he was in the American army. In 1893 he met and married in Poughkeepsie a Mrs. Arnold, a substantial widow. Not long afterward he disappeared from the lady's life, only to re-enter it after the lapse of some 20 years, when she appeared against him to press a charge of bigamy.

In 1896, the records show, this protean gentleman was serving in our army at Fort Wadsworth, in the exalted rank of Sergeant. At the time he was sought by officers who wished to arrest him for a minor swindling concerning a postoffice money order. He was caught and released on bail, but when the date of his trial arrived he was in Germany. An investigation of the man by the Postoffice Department followed, and some interesting data was disclosed. He had been convicted of frauds in Germany, he was a deserter from our army and he had deserted wife and child.

In 1898, however, Schiemangk reappeared. It will be remembered that there was a slight altercation with Spain at that time, and that various worthies were raising regiments to fight for free Cuba. Among them was Schiemangk. However, there was something amiss as before, and the raising of this particular régiment was stopped by official action.

In 1899 Germany offered to sell the United States Government certain discarded military supplies and stores, deeming them useful to us in the then waging Philippines fighting. Our officials were considering the purchase when one Col. Schiemangk appeared on the scene and offered to buy these stores in the name of one of the Latin republics. He blundered slightly, and an investigation which resulted disclosed that Col. Schiemangk was in fact Private Schiemangk of the engineer corps. The man was back in the army. The old charge against this temerarious rascal was recalled, but Schiemangk had foresensed such a contretemps. When guards appeared to arrest him he had once more taken French leave, and reposed again on German soil.

At this point in his life the fates changed horses for Max Schiemangk. From the poor soldier, attempting occasional small fraudulent emprises, he expanded into a Count, an officer of highest rank in the American, German or French armies—quite as occasion demanded—into an international adventurer, a lurer of woman, a player of high roles. In a twinkling, it seems, he laid away the garb of the common and sordid for a kind of panoply of the illicit.

How a common young soldier may accomplish such a metempsychosis and metamorphosis is perhaps the most interesting detail of the whole business. Not many men born in an inn and trained in the barracks succeed in sloughing their skins in all the tenure of life. Manners, speech, bearing, point of view, are stamped indelibly on the lowly. Long years and vast stages from their origins these men are betrayed by their invisible and ineradicable birthmarks.

But Schiemangk had perhaps never been humble. Is that the explanation? It is at least an important part of the truth. Where his fault is not due to mental defect of one kind or another, the man who commits offenses against property is most likely to be actuated by ambition, or by pride, which is ambition's spur. He is poor and of low origin. He resents it; he wants the good things. Spite all the moral assertiveness on this

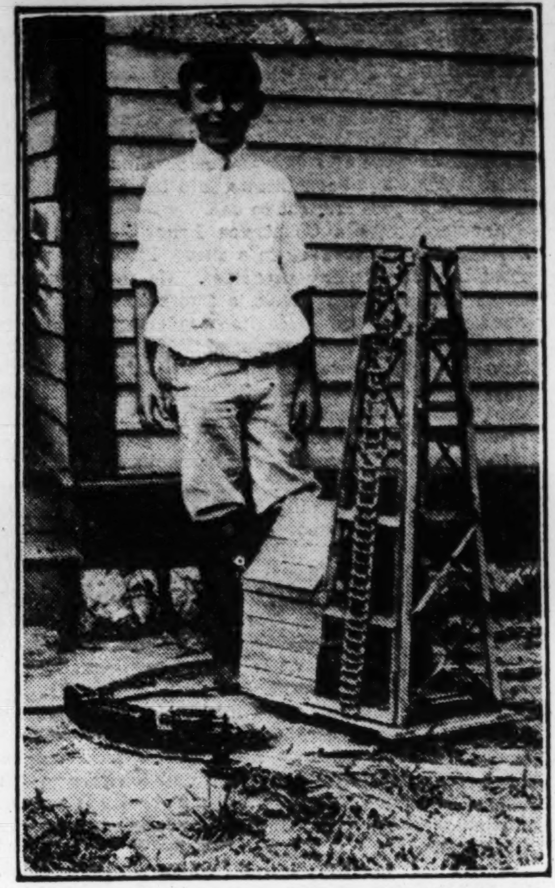
St. Louis Boy Mechanic Builds Oil Derrick in Yard

Holland Ferguson, 11, puts into practical effect knowledge gained by him in the Texas fields.

MASTER HOLLAND FERGUSON of 6448 Southwest avenue has made an early start in launching his career as a designer, constructor and mechanic. Though he has just celebrated his eleventh anniversary, he has fully decided that his technical training will be in the direction of mechanics, and that he will not follow in the footsteps of his father, who is a dentist by profession, but who elects to give his time and efforts to some oil interests in the Ranger and other fields in Texas. It was while living in the oil regions that the younger Holland made a close-range study of the wells and the methods of operating them, when they were sunk on producing territory. His investigation led to his erecting several of his own, one of which is here shown with the little constructor overlooking his creation.

Young Ferguson has had a year of manual training at the Wyman School and will continue this character of study while he pursues the other requirements of the grades. He is in the fifth grade, and when he completes the grammar school program he hopes to branch out on a larger scale with his mathematics and mechanics with the Massachusetts "Tech" or some other important school which specializes in such training in view. This course has been definitely planned in the boy's mind and he is optimistic enough to see no impediment ahead.

In his neighborhood Holland is regarded by his companions as a genius and when he gets his construction work under way he finds his back yard a popular place of assembly. Boys and girls alike gather regularly when the young mechanic is laying out his plans and getting his tools ready for some new project.



Holland Ferguson, 11 years old, and the oil derrick he has built in his back yard.

His oil well and derrick were constructed on a rough plan, scaling a half-inch to the foot, and the miniature has been pronounced perfect in proportion and detail by those who are familiar with such construction. He has a steam engine in his power house next to the tower which supplies the energy to drive the drill. He also has a pipe to carry off the gas released by the drill as it makes its way into the earth, shale and rock. Then there is a pipe which supplies a stream of water to the drill as it makes its way in the direction of the oil. The railroad which surrounds the plant is an electric affair and a new drill he proposes to build will be driven by the same power. To make his layout more realistic, he has a storage tank close by, marked to hold 90,000 gallons of crude petroleum. He says that it is always a good idea to have the tank ready before the drill gets to going, so as to insure a place to put the oil when it begins gushing.

"You see," he says in his matter-of-fact way, "lots of oil has gone to waste through the carelessness of the drillers in not having the tank ready before they began drilling. In all my plans I get the tank in its place to hold the oil when it does come. I have seen some of these wells come through, and it is sure worth looking at. They drill and drill and watch all the stuff that comes up, and they whoop in earnest when they see the oil at last and know that they have succeeded in getting just what they went after.

"But I can't say that I would like to live and spend all my days in the oil fields, as they are pretty 'smelly' places. You get that all the time, and I didn't like it very much, but I guess you might get used to it if you just had to be there all your time. Still, the engineer could make his plans and see that the work was started all right, and then beat it to some place where those odors couldn't reach him. In other ways I found it very interesting."

Young Ferguson heard so many marvelous oil stories while he was living in the Texas fields that his mechanical bent runs principally in the direction of machinery associated with the drills and tank construction. He believes most of the roseate accounts he has heard of the illimitable wealth that is in store for those who go after oil, and keep on going until their hopes are realized, but his aim is more in the direction of the mechanical accompaniment that must be furnished to those who get the lands and finance the drilling operations. Despite his few years he understands that intelligence and energy will always work together to bring about improvements and increase efficiency. Therefore, there is at all times an opportunity for the engineer who can improve on the present methods of getting and handling the oil.

Haddon's Mermaid - -

could in the month to come? She could exorcise the Other One—he was sure of it. As for her—as for her —— Suddenly he sat up and swore aloud in frank self-disgust. The action seemed to open the closed windows of his soul, and the fresh air blew through it. If that was the way he was feeling, he'd make short work of the matter. He'd pack that girl home in the morning and never see her again.

He knocked the ashes out of his fourth pipe, covered the embers of the fire, arranged his blankets on the ground, and stretched himself between them. Almost at once he fell asleep.

When he awoke the fire was burning and breakfast was under way. His guest, in her noiseless moccasins, her short skirt and leather tunic, was moving about among his possessions quite as if she belonged there. Haddon rolled out of his blankets and slipped down to the river for a morning plunge. When he returned breakfast was ready. She greeted him with this information and a flash of her beautiful teeth.

The day was glorious—clear, brilliant, with a fresh breeze whipping the tree tops. He let her wait on him, as she evidently intended to do. It was merely the proper carrying out of her role, he reflected. Had the mermaid slept well? She had. She added that the only times she ever failed to sleep well was when she was within four walls. Haddon seized his opportunity.

"Then you usually sleep out-of-doors?"

"All my life," she said, simply, "except when I was at school."

Together they cleared away and washed the breakfast dishes, the host insisting on doing his share of the work. As they were finishing she asked if he would lend her his boat, to be sent back to him the following morning.

"But I promised to row you down," Haddon reminded her.

She shook her head. "Please do not."

"But why not? I've all the time there is; and if you went alone something might happen to you."

He had not changed his overnight decision; but at least, he reflected, he could do the decent thing by helping the girl on her way.

His words brought the eye glint and the flash. "Nothing has ever happened before," she reminded him. Then her manner changed. "You have been very kind," she said again. "Please do this last thing that I ask. Let me go alone."

Haddon felt an inward pang, followed by a great relief. This simplified the carrying out of his resolution.

"And I'm not to see you again," he asked politely, "nor even to know who you are?"

She ignored this, as from the first she had ignored what she chose to ignore. "Please let me go alone," was all she said. "And I must start at once."

"Very well," he agreed. He filled his thermos bottle with coffee and packed a luncheon for her in his portable lunchbox. As he worked she watched him, with a look in her eyes which had not been there before. He added a box of matches and a candle to her equipment, tossed an extra blanket into the bottom of the boat, and stood ready to push off. She held out her hand.

"Thank you," she said again.

He took the hand, and as he did so his heart contracted. The old depression settled upon him like a substance. He could feel it fall. How could she leave so coldly, so definitely, so indifferently, while he was experiencing an almost intolerable sense of loss? In that moment he felt that he had known this girl not one night, but for a thousand years—as if they two had always been together in some such primeval setting as this. Yet she was saying good-by as casually as if she had just met him at an afternoon tea.

As she turned with a swing toward the boat, the sound of oars and voices came from the water near them.

"There's a tent there," cried one voice, excitedly. "I see it through those trees!"

It was a young voice, the voice of a boy. An older voice, precise and academic, replied to it.

"I think you are right," it said, "but"——

The girl uttered a cry.

"Father!" she called. "Jack!" She raced along the water's edge, and Haddon followed her more slowly. Less than 20 yards from the shore a canoe was coming toward them, propelled by a man and a boy. The boy looked like an Indian. His hair and eyes were as dark as the girl's, his skin was as brown as hers, and he was dressed in deerskin shirt and trousers. But the man was white, though heavily tanned.

The next five minutes were full of excitement. The canoe was beached and explanations filled the air. Of course, they had been looking for her all night, the boy explained. Had she imagined that they were going to stay in camp and snore while she was missing? A dozen searching parties were on the river. Now that she was discovered safe, his exhaustion and hunger had turned to a slight irritability. The man had the girl in his arms. There were tears in his eyes, and he could not speak. Haddon came forward.

"May I introduce myself?" he asked. "My name is Haddon, and I'd like to have the privilege of offering you some breakfast."

The boy uttered a warwhoop. He was barely 16.

"Breakfast!" he shouted. "Wow! Three rousing cheers. Come on, dad."

The older man looked at Haddon and then at his daughter.

"Mr. Haddon," she said, "this is my father, Dr. Edward Illington. And this is my brother, Jack. Father, Mr. Haddon has been very kind and hospitable."

Haddon shook hands in a daze. Jack was again referring to breakfast. Illington was somewhat formally expressing his appreciation of Mr. Haddon's courtesy, while his host recalled all the things he had heard of this eccentric man of genius, this great biological expert, whose textbooks had been among the bugbears of Haddon's college days. Bit by bit, as if they were leaves of memory drifting down the years, Haddon mentally gathered the things he had heard of Illington's domestic life. He had brought up his children as much as possible in the open, though he was educating them at the best schools here and abroad. Haddon had been told that Illington had a camp and a laboratory somewhere along the river, but he had forgotten the fact. There had been nothing said about the girl and boy. Now the professor was rubbing his hands and advancing toward the fire.

"I admit," he said, almost gayly, "that the prospect of breakfast is distinctly agreeable. So is the aroma of coffee in the air. But I fear we are late—you have breakfasted."

"Your daughter was just starting off," Haddon explained, "but we'll have another breakfast ready in 10 minutes. Will you help me, Miss Illington?"

And at last he saw what he seemed to have been vainly awaiting for years—the entire illumination of her beautiful face as she laughed.

"A guide!" he teased, as they walked toward the fire together, after the tent had been turned over to the professor and Jack.

"A guide to knowledge," she reminded him. "Surely you can't deny he's that."

"Of course," he laughed. "And I won't deny him any golden attribute. You see," he added, "I have the greatest personal interest in him."

"Yes?" she said, blushing with pleasure.

It was plain that she adored her father and was very proud of him. She waited expectantly for the tribute she believed was coming.

"Yes," explained Haddon, serenely. "You see, Mermaid, he's going to be my father-in-law!"

Where Sleep St. Louis' Brave in France

Description of Argonne Cemetery, near Verdun, where are buried all Americans who died battle deaths in great final thrust of war—St. Louis officer, in charge of excavation, reinterment and the setting up of crosses, tells how Government has created beautiful monument to American valor, to stand as long as United States endures. **::

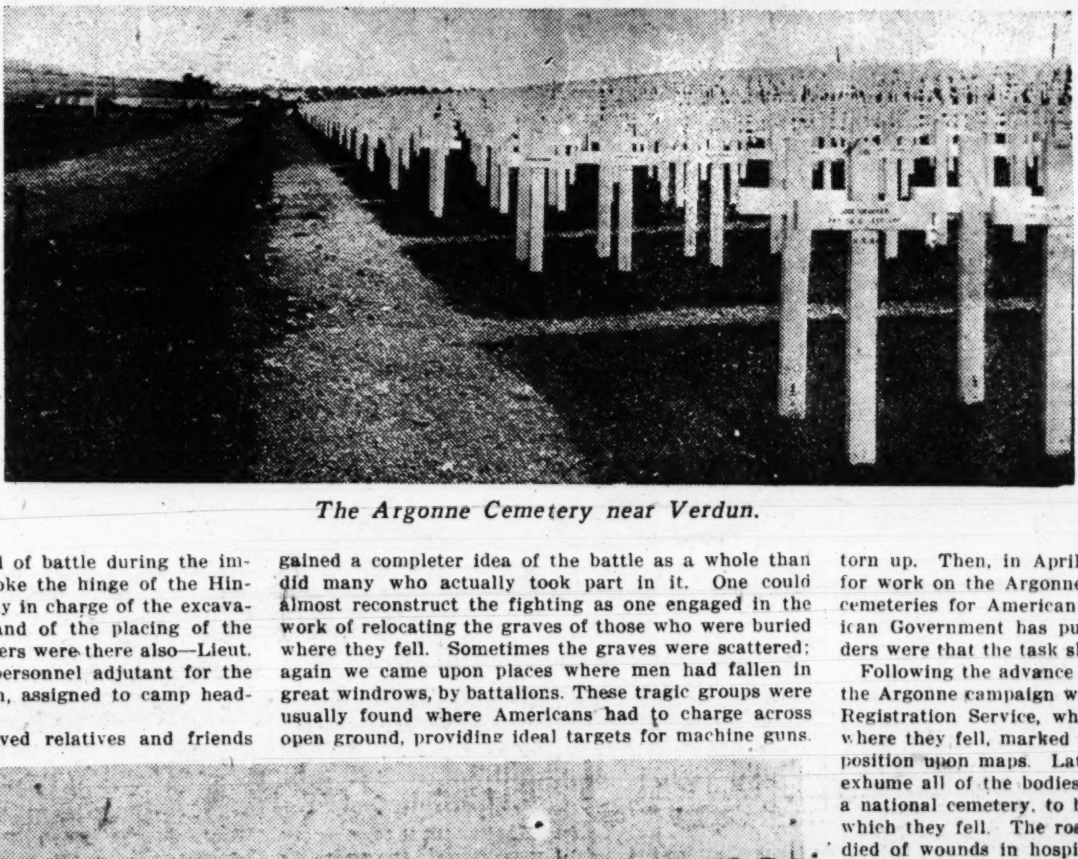
WHEN the ways of international travel are again free, a pious pilgrimage for St. Louisans will take them first to Verdun of immortal memory; then they will turn northwest for about 45 kilometers, until they come to Romagne-sous-Montfaucon, hard by which, to the west, lie the glorious villages of Charpentry, Cheppy, Exermont and Baulny; and then, in a beautiful valley surrounded by hills, they will come upon serried ranks of white crosses marking green-sodded graves. Over them float the Stars and Stripes, flowers bloom near them in many-colored hues, and in letters of turf, against a slope of gravel, stand the great words: "Argonne Cemetery."

Here is the eternal resting place of all the Americans who died battle deaths in the Argonne campaign, which delivered the final mace blow to the reeling hosts of German militarism. Here lie the St. Louisans of the Thirty-fifth and Eighty-ninth Divisions, of the 138th and 354th Infantry Regiments, and the 128th Field Artillery, who made the supreme sacrifice that popular government might not perish from the earth. There, in the plot at the center, surrounding the flagpole, which is reserved for officers, repose Maj. August Sauerwein, Capt. Clarence J. Sodemann, Lieut. Philip J. Seeger, and other St. Louis officers. Any St. Louis pilgrim who, as Lieut. Ralph M. Priester of 3536 Magnolia avenue recently did, strolls along the pathways through the cemetery, will frequently come to a pause, as he did, before crosses bearing the names of former St. Louis friends and acquaintances.



The Argonne Cemetery near Verdun.

Lieut. Priester, who recently returned from France, had an important part in creating the great cemetery, six acres in expanse, in which rest nearly 22,000 Americans, slain on the field of battle during the imperishable campaign that broke the hinge of the Hindenburg line. He was directly in charge of the excavation and filling of graves, and of the placing of the crosses. Other St. Louis officers were there also—Lieut. Walter Boehmer, who was personnel adjutant for the camp, and Lieut. R. B. Allen, assigned to camp headquarters.

For the comfort of bereaved relatives and friends of the dead St. Louis heroes, Lieut. Priester has outlined for the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine the painstaking methods by which the United States Government is caring for its slain crusaders. First, he pays a tribute to the valor of the Americans who fought in the Argonne.

"Making many automobile trips over the entire terrain of the Argonne offensive," he says, "I possibly gained a completer idea of the battle as a whole than did many who actually took part in it. One could almost reconstruct the fighting as one engaged in the work of relocating the graves of those who were buried where they fell. Sometimes the graves were scattered; again we came upon places where men had fallen in great windrows, by battalions. These tragic groups were usually found where Americans had to charge across open ground, providing ideal targets for machine guns.

"The Argonne Forest is a natural ambuscade; and in many places it seemed impossible to believe that human beings could have gone through. Yet the Americans did it. Soldiers who went through these places would go anywhere. To us, recreating the battle as we searched out the graves, came an overwhelming conviction that the American soldier is a most wonderful fighter."

Lieut. Priester was a member of the First Regiment, Missouri National Guard, and saw service on the Mexican frontier in 1916. He was chosen for the first officers' training camp, at Fort Riley, and won a first lieutenancy. He was assigned to the 816th Pioneer Infantry, a labor and fighting unit composed, save for the officers, exclusively of drafted negroes, trained at Camp Funston. This unit did not reach France until September, 1918, and was never under fire, although attached to the First American Army on the Verdun sector. Its first assignment to duty came after the armistice, when it rebuilt a railroad from Verdun towards Metz, which the Germans had torn up. Then, in April of this year, it was detailed for work on the Argonne Cemetery, one of the several cemeteries for American soldiers for which the American Government has purchased sites in France. Orders were that the task should be completed by June 30.

Following the advance of the American troops during the Argonne campaign went detachments of the Graves Registration Service, which buried the American dead where they fell, marked the graves and indicated their position upon maps. Later the Government decided to exhume all of the bodies and reinter them together in a national cemetery, to bear the name of the battle in which they fell. The roster did not include those who died of wounds in hospitals, and were laid to rest in the various hospital burial plots.

The maps and other data were supplied to the officers in charge of the Argonne Cemetery, who sent out burial parties to find the graves, disinter the bodies, identify them and place them with the bodies of their comrades in the cemetery. There were many buried already on the cemetery's site, for this was an open field across which charged the Fifth Division, leaving many dead in its wake.

The burial parties were composed of negroes, under the charge of white officers. They found that some of the bodies were inclosed in coffins; others, buried more hastily, were not. The bodies were exhumed, placed at once in coffins and driven on trucks to the cemetery. The routine required that each body be identified by four different officers. Unless some unusual problem of identification arose, each body was buried within a half-hour after it reached the cemetery. The burial was always done at night, under the light of electric lamps. In one record-breaking night, 1242 bodies were laid to rest.

"I am taking out my first papers, you see," she announced, pointing to the miniature menagerie.

"Where did you learn to do that?" he asked.

"A man showed me," she said noncommittally.

"What else can you cut?" demanded Francis.

"I can cut an airship."

"Cut me one."

"Tomorrow," said Mrs. Kingdon. "The time limit is up."

"Did you ever go up in an airship?" asked Billy eagerly.

"No; but I know a man who flies," she boasted.

"Come upstairs and tell us about him," demanded Billy.

As his mother cordially seconded the invitation, Pen accompanied them to the nursery. When the last "good-nights" had been said to the children, Mrs. Kingdon led the way to her room.

"The moon shouldn't seem so far away," declared Pen, looking out of the broad window. "We are up so high."

"I haven't yet ceased to wonder at these hills," rejoined Mrs. Kingdon. "We bought this ranch merely for a vacation place, but three-fourths of our time is spent up here, as we have become so attached to it. Mr. Kingdon is an artist, so he never tires of watching the hills and the sky. Sometimes we feel selfish with so much happiness—when there isn't enough to go around."

"I know you take but a small percentage of what you give. Shall I tell my story now?"

"I think I know it—or some of it, at least," replied Mrs. Kingdon, looking at her intently.

Pen looked up with a startled gesture.

"You do! How"——

"When I was in your room just before dinner it came to me where I had seen you before. It was about a year ago—in San Francisco—in a police station. I made inquiries; was interested in you and tried to see you, but we were suddenly called home. I should like to hear more about your life and what brought you to these hills."

"I wish no one else need know it," she said, entreatingly, when she had told her story in detail.

"Kurt is surely entitled to know it all," replied Mrs. Kingdon.

"I suppose he is; though I wish he didn't know as much as he already does. It isn't necessary to tell him tonight, is it? I am still tired, in spite of my long rest."

"Tomorrow will do. If you like, I will tell him, and I wish you and he would leave the entire matter—about Jo and all—in my hands."

"Most gladly," assented Pen. "But where is Jo?"

"He is on a neighboring ranch—temporarily, only."

"There is something else I should like to know. Why is Kurt so different from most men? Doesn't he ever look pleasant, or was his gloom all on my account?"

"His life hasn't been exactly conducive to jollity. He was born in New England and brought up on pie and Presbyterianism by a spinstered aunt who didn't understand boys. He ran away and came to the West. He has been cattle herder, cowboy and everything else typical of the hill country. We came here, tenderfooted, and were most fortunate in finding a foreman like Kurt Walters. He has a wonderful way of handling men. He is of good habits, forceful, keen; very gentle to old people and most adorable with children. We make him one of our household. There is the fortunate flaw that keeps him from being super-excellent; he is not merciful to wrongdoers and, as you say, he is too serious—almost moody. That is accounted for by the long night vigils of the cattlemen. They get a habit of inhibition that they never lose. I think the men find him very good company at times. There is one splendid thing about him. In spite of his rough life and the many years in which he has had opportunity to meet only the—misguided kind of women, he has never lost faith in his ideals of womanhood."

"I certainly rubbed him the wrong way," said Pen comprehendingly. "He looked upon me as if there were no place on his map for my kind, and yet he struggled hard to be good to me when I was suffering from cold and hunger. I never met his sort of a man before. The men I have been thrown with think goodness stupid. No matter what crime a girl commits, providing she is attractive in any way, they applaud and call her a "little devil."

"He talked of you a great deal today, and about your chances for reformation."

Pen smiled enigmatically.

"He said he would have felt more sympathy for me if I had not been educated and knew the enormity of my sins. If he knew more of the world, he would know that the intelligent criminal has the least chance to reform. When he took me so unexpectedly from Bender, I wanted to see what he was going to do with me. When I found he was bringing me out here, I could easily have given him the slip and escaped, but I was curious to see the 'best woman in the world.' I never had faith in a man's estimate of a woman, but as soon as I saw you I knew he was right. May I stay? Will you really let me?"

"I quite insist upon your staying. We will go downstairs for a little while now."

Below, Mrs. Kingdon lingered to give some directions to a servant and Pen went on to the library.

Kurt was standing there alone. She stood small and straight before her warden, looking squarely into his eyes.

"You needn't," she said, "put any locks on valuables here—not on my account. The crookedest crook in the world wouldn't steal from her."

"I am glad you recognize a true woman," he said earnestly.

"Thank you for bringing me here. I feel it's the turning point in my life."

"Then," he said earnestly, "I feel I have done something worth while. You shall not leave here until—you see I am speaking plainly—you have overcome all desire to steal."

"Not a severe penalty, O Sheriff Man!" she thought, as she replied meekly: "Tonight I feel as if I could never do anything wrong; but you know the strongest of us have our lapses."

"I know that too well," he said, gravely, "but—you'll try?"

"I'll try. Good-night, Mr. Walters."

In the doorway she paused and looked back. He was gazing meditatively into the flames of the open fire. She shook a little defiant fist at him and made a childish grimace, both of which actions were witnessed by Kingdon as he entered the room.

"Do you know," he confided later to his wife, with a chuckle of reminiscence, "as fine a fellow as Kurt is, I sometimes feel like shaking a fist at him myself."

CHAPTER IV.

AS ON the day previous, Pen awoke at an early hour. She lay quiet for a moment, sensing to the full the deliciousness of being cosily submerged in soft, warm coverings that protected her from the crisp, keen hill winds that were sweeping in to her room.

"The air smells as if it came right off the snow," she thought, as she drew on some fur-bound slippers and wrapped herself in a Navajo blanket that was on the footrail of her bed. Then she crossed the room, climbed up on the big seat under the casement window and looked out.

It was not the thrilling beauty of the covey of pink-lined dawn-clouds that made her eyes grow round, big and bright; that brought a faint flush to her cheeks; a quick intake of breath. It was something much more mundane that held her attention—the superb spectacle of Kurt Walters, mounted. The lean, brown horseman sat on his saddle as easily as though it were a cushion in a rocking chair. He was talking to three or four cattlemen and apparently paying no attention to his cavorting steed, except that occasionally and casually his firm hands brought the plunging animal to earth.

"He's to the saddle born," thought the girl admiringly. "He ought to stay on a horse. If I'd seen him yesterday on horseback, he wouldn't have had to take me. I'd have flown to him."

He gave a last command to one of the men, as he turned to ride away.

"All right, boss," was the reply, as the men dispersed to their various stations of duty.

Suddenly and psychologically the eyes of the rider were lifted to the casement window. Pen waved her hand airily toward him, the movement loosening the gayly striped blanket, which fell from her shoulders. The Indian brown of his face reddened darkly; a gleam came into his steel-gray eyes. He made a military motion toward his hat brim with his whip and then rode swiftly away, without the backward and upward look which she was expecting.

"The boss is a bashful boss," she thought, with a lazy little pout, as she took off the blanket, flung her slippers free and went back to bed.

"He's good to look at, but, oh, you comfortable cot!"

When next she awoke, it was near the breakfast hour.

"I'm glad I'm not the last one down," she said, as she came into the dining room and noticed Kurt's vacant chair.

"Oh, but you are!" Betty hastened to say. "Uncle Kurt's gone away for a whole week, hasn't he, father?"

"When did he go, Louis?" asked Mrs. Kingdon in surprise.

"A message came for him late last night," explained her husband. "The Sheriff has unexpectedly returned, and Kurt has to be in town for a week to settle up all the red-tape routine for his release; and besides, the trial of So Long Sam has been called, and he'll have to attend."

Pen had a sense as of something lifted.

"A reprieve for a week, and I can have a beautiful time, with nobody nigh to hinder," she thought. "I had a narrow escape from a real Sheriff. Luck is with me, and no mistake!"

"You will feel lost without Kurt at the helm, won't you, Louis?" asked Mrs. Kingdon. "And Jo away, too."

"Westcott returned Jo this morning. Simpson has delayed his trip to Canada for a few days."

"That is good news. Of course, Jo hasn't Kurt's efficiency, but he gets on well with the men."

"They say," remarked Francis, sagely, "that Jo is always 'right there.'"

"So is Uncle Kurt," exclaimed Betty indignantly.

"You don't get me, Betty," said her brother, loftily, "but it's no use explaining to a girl."

Pen had been a most attentive and eager listener to this conversation.

"I am sorry I didn't know Kurt was going to town," said Mrs. Kingdon to Pen, "for we could have sent him for some things for you."

"What kind of things?" asked Betty, curiously.

"I came without my luggage," explained Pen glibly, "but I can trim out clothes as easily as I can animals, and if you have any stray pieces of cloth I can very quickly duplicate what I am wearing."

"We have quantities of material," said Mrs. Kingdon. "I seem to have a mania for buying it, and there my interest in new garments ceases. Agatha is a fine seamstress, so we'll have you outfitted in no time."

"Wouldn't you like to motor over the place, Miss Pen?" invited Kingdon, as they rose from the table. Smiling understandingly at her look of alarm, he added: "I don't mean in the car Kurt brought you up in yesterday."

"Uncle Kurt made it all himself—out of parts he bought," boasted Francis.

"Dear me," said Pen, ruefully. "I wish he hadn't bought so many parts, or else left some of them out."

"It's a fine car!" declared Francis in tone of rebuke.

"I like it better than ours," said Billy. "We helped make it."

"I throw up my hands," said Kingdon. "Only the loyalty of a child would have the courage to defend such a car."

In a long, luxurious limousine the entire family made the rounds of the ranch to show Pen the squadrons of cattle browsing by the creek, thoroughbred horses inclosed in a pasture of many miles, the smaller-spaced farmyard, the buildings, bunkhouses and "Kurt's Kabin," as a facetious cowboy had labeled the office where the foreman made out the payrolls and transacted the business affairs of the ranch.

"I think you have seen it all, now," said Kingdon, as he turned the car into the driveway that led homeward.

"Oh, no!" cried Billy. "She hasn't seen Jo yet. There he is at the messhouse."

"Of course, you must see Jo, Miss Pen," said Kingdon. "I'll drop you and the kiddies here and you can call on him. I have an idea he will be more Jo-like if my wife and I are not present."

The car stopped near a long, low building, and Pen with the children got out of the car.

"Jo-o-o!" chorused the trio.

From the house came Jo, whom the men had nicknamed the "human spider," for his arms and legs were the thinnest of his species. He was saved from being grotesque, however, by a certain care-free grace, a litheness of movement. He had greenish-blue eyes that were set far apart and crinkled when they laughed—as ever and oft they did. His features were irregular, his hair unruly, but there was a lovable appeal in the roguish eyes and the charm of humor in a mouth that lifted upward at the corners.

"Halloa, kindergarten!" he called in a jovial tenor. "Who's your little old sister?"

"She isn't our sister," denied Francis, with dignified mien. "She's a young lady."

"Honest?" he asked in amused tone, looking down at the girl, whose eyes were hidden by long-lashed, down-turned lids. "How young, now?"

Then his dancing eyes grew suddenly quiet and amazed, as her lashes lifted. He read a warning in her glance.

"Jo," she said, gravely and meaningly, "I am Penelope Lamont, and I am a young lady—out of my teens."

"'Scuse," he answered, seriously, "but you don't dress it."

"She's got on Doris' clothes," explained Betty, "'cause she didn't bring any of her own, and she's our Aunty Penny."

"No," he said, solemnly. "No, she ain't. You've got it wrong side to. Her name is Penny Ante."

"It isn't either!" cried Betty angrily, with a stamp of her little foot.

"Uncle Kurt brought her here. She's his company, so you'd better look out, Jo Gary!" warned Billy.

Jo made a mock gesture of alarm and shielded his face with his arm, as if from an imaginary blow.

"Now, why didn't you say so in the first place! My, ain't it luck for me that he won't be Sheriff when he comes back! He might have had me put in the lockup!"

"I am not Mr. Walters' company—not now," explained Pen. "I came up here with him, to be sure, but Mrs. Kingdon has asked me to be her company until I am well. I have been ill."

Haddon's Mermaid

. . By . .
ELIZABETH JORDAN

PULLING against the current of a swiftly moving Canadian river had ceased to be pure joy. Haddon realized this after an hour of it, and shipping his oars drew a deep breath and wiped his intellectual brow with the back of a sunburned hand. That he immediately lost headway seemed for the moment an unimportant detail. He could do as he pleased. Nobody was watching him. It was a soothing reflection that in all probability there was no human thing save himself within 20 miles. The world was his; at least this particular part of the Canadian wilderness was his, and he and his boat could cut as eccentric figures in it as they chose.

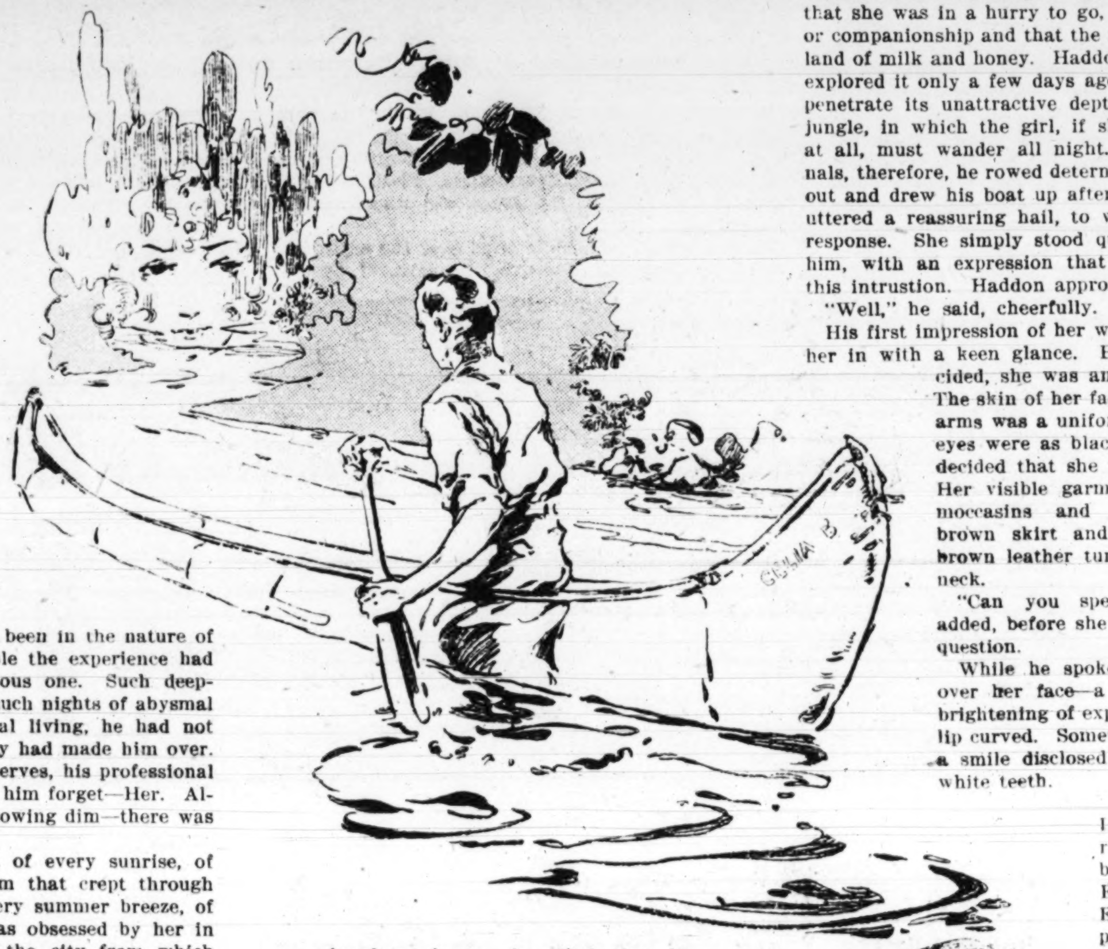
Of course, the longer he loafed the longer it would be before he got anything to eat—there was that fact to consider. Somewhere ahead of him, on the right bank of the stream, his solitary camp lay—possibly two miles away. He remembered with pleasure that in the morning before he had left it, he had practically prepared supper, leaving everything ready to his hand when he got back famished, as he knew he would be. His fire waited only for a match; the kettle swung above it ready for water from the near-by spring; the coffee was in the coffee pot; a tin of fresh biscuits and a jar of jam lay waiting to be opened, and a clean broiler begged for the fish he had caught. Not bad, all that, for a tenderfoot, Haddon told himself complacently.

In this past month he had certainly proved his claim that any intelligent city man could lock horns with the wilderness and, with little or no previous experience in primitive living, beat nature at her own game. Not but what the old girl had given him a fall or two! That 24 hours of wandering in the woods the first week had not been exactly pleasant, and—he admitted it handsomely—it was only by a fluke that he had found his camp again. Also, the little experience on the rocks last Thursday had not been in the nature of a new delight. But on the whole the experience had been a triumph, and a glorious one. Such deep-breathed days of sun and wind, such nights of abysmal sleep, such zest in mere physical living, he had not known since he was a boy. They had made him over. They had made him forget his nerves, his professional worries. They had almost made him forget—Her. Almost—not quite. But she was growing dim—there was no question about that.

At first she had been a part of every sunrise, of every sunset, of every moonbeam that crept through the open flap of his tent, of every summer breeze, of every bird note. He had been as obsessed by her in this primeval wilderness as in the city from which he had fled to forget her. Now she came more rarely; she let him alone when he was busy, and shot into the foreground of his thoughts in a moment of contemplation, as if she had been awaiting it. Sometimes he heard her laugh—that cold little laugh, so faultlessly musical, so, yes, he admitted it now, so inhuman. There was something cruel about it, just as there was something cruel about her, and about the odd, narrow, level glance of her red-brown eyes. Her hair was red-brown, too. He had often wondered how she could have that intense coloring and yet be so cold. She had kept him between her paws for two years, and even now, he knew, she had let him escape only to prove that she could pull him back again.

Still, she was lovely! In the soft evening light her face suddenly swam before him, and a wave of longing rolled over him, interrupting his steady heart beats, shaking his very soul. She still had him! Perhaps she would always have him, he reflected drearily; perhaps he must carry through life this intolerable burden, this dead weight of depression that amounted to incessant physical pain.

He took up his oars with a jerk, spurred by the immediate necessity of doing something—anything. The sun had set and the sky line of the west was delicately flushed with red and gold—her colors. He set his teeth and bent to his work. He had brooded longer than he knew. Already a spectral lavender light was stealing over the water. If he did not reach his camp before dark he might not find it at all, and the prospect of camping elsewhere or of drifting all night on a stream filled with reefs and whirlpools was not alluring. It galvanized him into greater effort, and he was pulling with a strong stroke when, as he turned a sudden bend in the river, he saw something in the water ahead of him. It was a small, dark object, swimming steadily. At first he thought it was a dog. Then, as he looked more closely, it took on the outlines of a head; and, yes, there in advance of it were the projecting arms of a swimmer. Haddon stared incredulously. Only a few minutes ago he had been telling himself that he was alone in this wilderness. But there was someone—an Indian, possibly; the small, dark head looked like an Indian's. But what was an Indian or anyone else doing in these dangerous waters at this hour? Staring about for a clew to the mystery, he realized that at this immediate point there was no landing place. A rocky wall rose forbiddingly from the water on either side! but further, on, at the right, was an incline, and it soon became clear that the swimmer was heading for this. Simultaneously something else became clear—a canoe, bottom side up, drifting rapidly down the stream, on the far left side.



—in the soft evening light her face suddenly swam before him. She still had him! Perhaps she would always have him, he reflected drearily . . .

It was all plain enough now. Haddon put it together as he redoubled his efforts and rowed toward the swimmer. The latter's boat had gone on a reef, or had sprung a leak, and the swimmer, who, judging from his size, was a mere boy, was making a gallant fight for that little haven just in sight. To encourage him Haddon shouted—twice without result. At his third effort an arm shot from the water in a straight-up salute. The swimmer had heard. Haddon pulled on, but with sudden irritation.

"Why doesn't the little devil turn and swim back?" he asked himself, "instead of bucking the tide like that and wearing himself and me all out? The water's mighty cold. He may have a cramp any minute." Then, with eyes still on the swimmer, he grinned.

"Doesn't want to be saved!" he muttered. "Wants to save himself, by Jove! Or perhaps he's afraid of me."

Whatever the cause, the swimmer was pushing on, with swift, determined strokes. Haddon, toiling in his turn, watched him with equal sensations of annoyance and admiration. The chap was at home in the water—there was no doubt of that. There was absolutely nothing about him to suggest growing exhaustion. Quite possibly he wanted to be let alone, and it was clear that he would reach the hospitable strip of shore before Haddon could reach him. Indeed, he did so, scrambling up the bank without a backward glance at his would-be rescuer, and for a moment Haddon was tempted to row on stolidly and leave him to his fate. In the next he saw something that widened his eyes. At first the slender, boyish figure lay on the shore, obviously blowing a bit; but almost immediately it sat up, and as it raised its head Haddon discovered that this bore the pleasing adornment of two long, heavy braids of straight, black hair. He whistled softly.

"A girl!" he ejaculated. "Well, by all the gods! An Indian girl, probably, or a halfbreed—and scared to death of me, I suppose. But I can't leave her there."

He was quite near her now, and he grinned again. She had sprung to her feet and was determinedly waving him away by pushing the atmosphere toward him with a pair of small brown hands. In further pantomime, she motioned toward the rear, intimating her purpose of an immediate departure. She further conveyed to him with surprising vividness the impression that she was in a hurry to go, that she desired no aid or companionship and that the region behind her was a land of milk and honey. Haddon knew better. He had explored it only a few days ago, as far as he cared to penetrate its unattractive depths. It was a trackless jungle, in which the girl, if she trusted herself to it at all, must wander all night. Disregarding her signals, therefore, he rowed determinedly to shore, jumped out and drew his boat up after him. As he did so he uttered a reassuring hail, to which the girl made no response. She simply stood quite still and looked at him, with an expression that demanded apology for this intrustion. Haddon approached her with a smile.

"Well," he said, cheerfully. "All right?"

His first impression of her was confirmed as he took her in with a keen glance. Beyond question, he decided, she was an Indian or a halfbreed. The skin of her face, neck, hands and bare arms was a uniform, rich brown, and her eyes were as black as her hair. Haddon decided that she was about 20 years old. Her visible garments were Indian-made moccasins and leggings, a very short brown skirt and an embroidered soft brown leather tunic that fastened at the neck.

"Can you speak English?" Haddon added, before she had replied to his first question.

While he spoke a change had passed over her face—a softening, a certain brightening of expression. Now her upper lip curved. Something that was not quite a smile disclosed a flash of surprisingly white teeth.

"Yes," she said simply. Her voice was deep and rich. Haddon waited, but she said no more. Evidently, if she spoke English, she felt no impulse to air that accomplishment now.

"I came to see if I could be of any service," explained Haddon.

She shook her head. Then, as if on an after thought, she added, "No, thank you."

"Where do you live?" Haddon was feeling oddly self-conscious before this simple child of nature. What the deuce was he going to do with her! She made a sweeping gesture to the south. He inferred that she lived in that direction; he knew there was an Indian settlement 20 miles or so below his camp.

"But you can't get there tonight," he reminded her. "What are you going to do?"

There was no hesitation whatever in her reply. Evidently her plans were quite definite.

"I shall camp here," she said, "until morning."

She spoke very slowly, as one choosing her words; but she conveyed to Haddon a vivid impression that he was conversing with a person who had made up her mind. He stood his ground.

"You can't do that," he asserted positively. "The nights are cold. You've got to have dry clothes and a fire, and supper and a bed. My camp is only a mile or so up the river. I'll take you there and give you what you need. Then in the morning I'll take you home."

She shook her head and stepped back with a quick gesture of refusal. He advanced and looked at her does her work by her heart, not by system. Have you ever really tried to reform?"

"Yes," she exclaimed eagerly. "I left Chicago for that purpose. I couldn't find work. I was cold and hungry; pawned everything they would take and got shabby like this," looking down disdainfully at herself, "but I didn't steal, not even food. I would have starved first. Then I was arrested up here for stealing. I wasn't guilty. Bender had no case, really; but he wouldn't give me a square deal or listen to anything in my favor, because my record was against me. You can't live down a record. There is no use trying."

"Yes there is!" he declared, emphatically. "I have always thought a thief incurable, but I believe she could perform the miracle."

"How old is she?" demanded Pen suddenly.

"I don't know," he answered vaguely, as if her age had never occurred to him before. "She has been married 10 years."

"Oh! Did she marry the right man?"

"She certainly did. Kingdon is a prince."

"Any children?'

"Three; two little fellows as fine as are made, and a girl."

"I adore children."

"I am glad to hear you say that. Every good woman loves children."

"And you really think there's the makings of a good woman in me?"

"Yes; I think so," he answered, earnestly; "and if there's but a spark of goodness in you, she will find it and fan it to a glow."

She made a wry little grimace, which, fortunately, he did not see.

"This goodness is nauseating me," she thought. "I shall beat it back about tomorrow."

"Look!" he cried, as the road made a sharp curve. "There it is!"

"You can lift your eyes to the hills! What a love of a place—way up on tiptoes. I'll be the little fish out of water up there!"

Top Hill Tavern was on a small plateau at the summit of one of the hills. The ranch house, long, low and fanciful in design, connected by a covered portico with the kitchen, dairies and buildings, was misleading in name, for a succession of higher hills was in sight. A vined pergola, flower gardens, swings, tennis courts and croquet grounds gave the place a most unranch-like appearance.

As they rode up to the entrance porch, a woman came out of the house, and instantly the big, appraising eyes of the little newcomer felt that here was a type unknown to her. She was slender, not very tall, but with a poise and dignity that compelled attention. Her eyes were gray, her lashes, brows and hair quite dark. There was a serenity and repose of manner about her—the Madonna expression of gentleness—but with an added force.

"We looked for you last night, Kurt," she said in a voice, low and winning.

"Ran out of gasoline and had to spend the night on the road," he explained. "Mrs. Kingdon, this is a little girl"——

She didn't give him the opportunity to finish.

"Come in out of the sun," she urged.

Pen stepped from the car. There was no consciousness in the beautiful eyes of the "best woman in the world" that she was aware of the shabby, tan shoes, the cheap, faded and worn skirt, or the man's sweater and cap.

Pen's eyes had grown dark and thoughtful.

"Before I go in," she said, turning to Kurt, "you must tell her whom I am. Not what you said you were going to tell her, but where you found me and from what you saved me."

His face flushed.

"My dear little girl," said the woman quickly, "I don't care to know—yet. It is enough that Kurt brought you."

"Mrs. Kingdon," said Kurt awkwardly, but earnestly, "she is a poor girl who needs a friend."

"We all need a friend some time or other. Come in with me."

She led her up the steps. On the top one, the girl halted.

"He found me," she told Mrs. Kingdon, "in the custody of—Bender, for stealing, and he took me away to save me from jail, to bring me up here to the 'best woman in the world,' he said, and I made light of what he had done all the way up the trail. And he was so kind to me—me, a pickpocket! I think I should go back—to Bender."

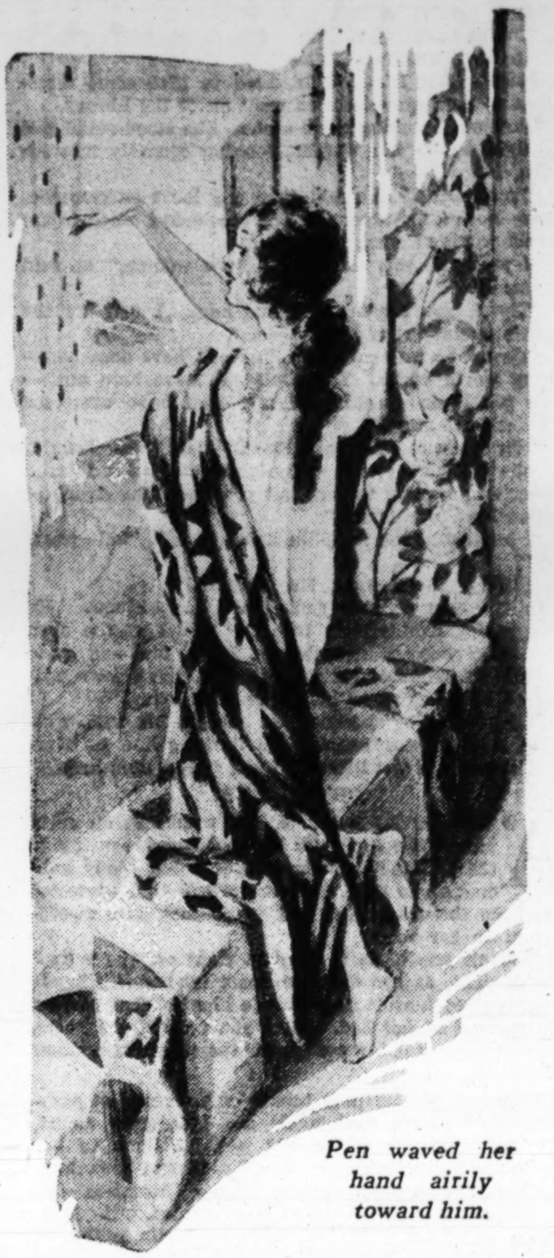
She spoke with the impetuosity of a child, and turned to go down the steps.

Kurt looked on helplessly, perplexed by this last mood of his prismatic young prisoner.

Mrs. Kingdon took the girl's arm again.

"You are going to have a bed and bath before you leave, anyway. Come with me. Kurt, you look as if you had best go to cover, too."

Pen's outbreak had evidently spent her last drop of reserve force. She submitted meekly to guidance through a long room with low-set windows. She noted a tiled floor with soft rugs, a fireplace and a certain pervading home sense before they turned into a little hallway. Again she faintly protested.



Pen waved her hand airily toward him.

"I am worse than a thief," she said. "I am a liar. I haven't told him—all."

"Never mind that now," said Mrs. Kingdon, soothingly. "You've been ill recently, haven't you?"

"Yes; I was just about at the end of"——

"You're at the end of the trail now—the trail to Top Hill. You shall have a bath, a long sleep and something to eat before you try to tell me anything more."

Pen went on into a sunward room generously supplied with casement windows. A few rugs, a small but billowy bed, a chair and a table comprised the furnishings, but an open door disclosed a bathroom and beyond that a dressing room most adequately equipped.

"This is clover," she thought presently, when she slipped into a warm bath.

"And this is some more clover," she murmured later, as, robed in a little nainsook gown, she stretched out luxuriously between lavender scented sheets. "I don't care what may come later. I know that I am going to have a real sleep."

It was 5 o'clock in the afternoon when she awoke. On the chair by her bed was a change of clothing, a pair of white tennis shoes, a dark blue skirt, a white middy and a red tie.

"Oh!" she thought. "The kind of clothes I love."

She hastened to dress partially, then slipped on a little negilgee and began to do her hair.

"I wish it would sometimes go twice in the same place," she thought ruefully. "I never can fix it as I like. It's the only thing that ever got the better of me except Kind Kurt. Well!" with an impatient shake of her rebellious locks, "go crop-cut, if you insist. I can't help it."

Mrs. Kingdom smiled when the little girlish figure opened the door in response to her knock.

"I felt sure that that outfit, which was left here by my 15-year-old niece when she last visited us, would fit you, though Kurt insists that you are 20. You had a nice sleep, didn't you?"

"I think I never really slept before. Such a bed, and such heavenly quiet! So different from street-car racket."

"My husband and the boys have been away all day, or there wouldn't have been such quiet. Dinner is ready. Kurt didn't tell me your name."

"Penelope Lamont. My first name is always shortened to Pen or Penny."

Downstairs, in the long, low-ceilinged library, she was introduced to Mr. Kingdon, a man of winning personality, a philosopher and a humorist. Beyond beside him were three appalling critics: two boys of 9 and 7 years, respectively, and a little girl of 5. They stared at her solemnly and surveyingly while she was presented to their father.

"Can you skin a weasel?" asked Francis, the oldest lad, when Pen turned to him.

"Mother said you were a young lady," said Billy. "You're just a little girl like Doris was."

"And you've got on her clothes," declared Betty sagely.

"Now you surely should feel at home," declared Mrs. Kingdon.

"Margaret," commented her husband whimsically, "our children seem to be quite insistent on recognition and rather inclined to be personal in their remarks, don't you think?"

"We so seldom have visitors up here, you know," defended the mother, smiling at Pen the while. "We will go into the dining room now."

Throughout the meal Pen was subtly conscious of an undercurrent of a most willing welcome to the hospitality of the ranch. Her surmise that the vacant place at the table was reserved for the foreman was verified by Betty, who asked with a pout:

"Why don't we wait for Uncle Kurt?"

"He dined an hour ago and rode away," explained Mrs. Kingdon. "He will be back before your bedtime."

Every lull in the conversation was eagerly and instantly utilized by one or more of the children, who found Pen most satisfactorily responsive to their advances.

"You've had your innings, Francis," the father finally declared. "That will be the last from you."

"There's one thing more I want to know," he pleaded. "Miss Lamont, do colored people ever have—what was it you said you were afraid Miss Lamont had, mother?"

"Oh, Francis!" exclaimed his mother. "I said," looking at Pen, "that I feared you were anemic, and then I had to describe the word minutely."

"Are they ever that, Miss Lamont?" insisted the boy.

"I never thought of it before," answered Pen, after a moment's reflection, "but I don't see why they couldn't be so, same as white people."

"Then how could they tell they had it. They wouldn't look white, would they?"

"Suppose," interceded Kingdon, "we try to find a less colorful topic. I move we adjourn to the library for coffee."

"We stay up an hour after dinner," said Billy, when they were gathered about the welcome open fire, "but when we have company, it's an hour and a half."

"I should think that rule would be reversed," replied Kingdon humorously.

"Then aren't you glad I'm here?" Pen asked Billy.

"Sure!" came in hearty assurance. "You can stay up a long time, can't you, because you slept all day?"

"Play with us," besought Betty.

"Yes; play rough," demanded Billy.

Mrs. Kingdon interposed. "She's too tired to do that," she admonished the children.

Betty came forward with a box of paper and a pair of scissors.

"You can cut me some paper dolls. That won't tire you."

"I don't want dolls!" scoffed Francis.

Pen was already using the articles Betty had furnished.

"Not if we call them circus ladies and I cut horses for them to ride on?" she asked him.

"Can you do that?" he inquired unbelievingly.

"Certainly. Dashing horses that will stand up," she boasted, and in another moment a perfectly correct horse was laid before the delighted boys.

A few more rapid snips and a short-skirted lady was handed to Betty.

"Now, make a clown, a lion, a tiger, an elephant," came in quick, short orders, which were readily filled.

"My dear young lady," exclaimed Kingdon. "You are really talented. It is so seldom an artist can do anything but draw."

"I can't draw. I am just a cutter," she corrected. "I can't do anything with a pencil."

They were all so absorbed in the paper products that Kurt's entrance passed unnoted.

"Betty," he said, imploringly, after waiting a moment without recognition, "you can't guess what's in my pocket?"

Pen looked up unbelievingly. The caressing, winning note had utterly disguised his voice. As he handed the delighted Betty a satisfactorily shaped parcel, his glance rested upon his prisoner, bringing a quick gleam of surprise to his eyes.

"Good night, mermaid," he said. Her straight black eyebrows lifted. "Mermaid?" she repeated.

steadily, until he forced her to meet his eyes.

"You will be perfectly safe," he added, quietly. "Do you understand? You will be perfectly safe. And there is absolutely nothing else for you to do."

Their glances held for what seemed to him a long time. Then, without a word, she moved toward the boat. Haddon followed with an unexpected thrill. She was a wonder, the girl, with her extraordinary dignity and poise. He was both touched and flattered by her sudden trust in him. She helped him to get the boat into the water, and he accepted the assistance as naturally as it was offered. When she took her place in the stern he noticed that she was shivering in her wet clothes, and he picked up his discarded woolen blazer and threw it to her. She caught it in silence, wrapped it around her knees and tucked it under her.

In the vernacular of oarsmen, Haddon, "put his back" into his stroke in the row upstream. He had an odd impulse to do his best before this Indian girl, even though she paid no attention to him. Her eyes were on the skyline, now as gray as the water, and from start to finish of the journey she spoke no words save monosyllabic replies to his. At the outset he had asked her a few questions. Was her father a guide, he wanted to know. She said yes, and, in answer to another inquiry that her home was about 18 miles down the river. After that Haddon saved his breath for his work and the boat shot ahead at a rate that did credit to his month of steady practice.

For some reason, not wholly clear to him, his depression had lifted; in its place was an actual exhilaration which mounted momentarily. Probably it was because this was an adventure, this experience; and it was simply great to have a companion after five weeks of loneliness. He had not realized before how lonely he had been. When they reached his landing place the girl helped him with the boat, as before. Then he led her to his tent, strode in ahead of her, opened his big kit, took out some garments, and handed them to her.

"The first thing for you to do is to take off those wet clothes and get into these things," he said, kindly. "By the time you've done that I'll have supper ready. Help yourself to anything here that you want. That's your bed. Make yourself comfortable. I'll sleep out by the fire."

He selected an extra pair of blankets and walked out of the tent. A few moments later the girl saw the reflected flames of a fire and smelt the aroma of coffee. As she made the elemental toilet the situation demanded, she could hear Haddon bustling about only a few feet away. He appeared to be preparing a rather ambitious supper, opening tins and struggling with the reluctant tops of bottles. Once she heard him swear softly, and the dimness of her tent was illumined by a flash of her brilliant white teeth.

When she emerged into the open the fish was broiling noisily over a bed of coals, and the coffee had been put to one side to settle. Haddon greeted her with a nod and a smile. He was slightly flushed by his exertions and by an unexpected anxiety about his cooking—an anxiety wholly new and very annoying to him. Why the deuce, he wondered, did it matter whether this Indian liked his cooking or not? Probably at its worst it would be better than anything she had ever eaten before. But it did matter, some way. His brow was knotted over the fact and the fish, but its corrugations disappeared as she came forward into the firelight. Her slight, unexpectedly tall figure was lost in the folds of the bath gown he had given her. It was a handsome gown—far too impressive for these wilds—but Haddon had brought it along for the simple reason that it was the only one he possessed, and he had had a vague idea, promptly abandoned, of sleeping in it if the nights were cold. Its color was a rich blue, very becoming, he realized, to its present wearer. Either from modesty or an unconscious sense of art, she had turned up the collar and was wearing it like a ruff. It made a wonderfully effective background for her small, perfectly shaped head, and her dark, beautiful face. For the girl was a beauty. Haddon realized fully now what he had half suspected even when he saw her in drenched clothing and with dripping hair. Her features were perfect. Her eyes, though black, were wonderfully soft and brilliant. Her long black braids hung behind her, almost to her knees. She held her small head very erect, and came toward him with the unsmiling dignity characteristic of the best Indian types.

"You're just in time. Supper's ready," said Haddon, hospitably. He pointed to a flat stone which he had pulled near the fire, and she obediently seated herself upon it. Then he selected a tin plate and cup, filled the one with fish and the other with coffee, and handed her the collation. His own toilet had been very simple. He had plunged his head and arms into the rushing brook where he got his water, but the girl who looked at him told herself that he was the handsomest man she had ever seen. He sat down on the ground facing her, drew the supplies within reach of his hands, and began his meal with appetite. He was glad to see that she was enjoying hers. She had drunk her coffee almost at a gulp—she must have been very thirsty. He refilled the cup, and now she was eating her fish—very daintily and properly, he observed, with the one fork his menage afforded.

For 10 minutes they ate in a contented silence, interrupted only by an occasional word as Haddon passed the biscuit tin or the pickle jar. The dark shadows of the woods crept toward them and closed around them, broken by the firelight and a sudden shaft of moonlight. Haddon nodded toward this.

"That's good," he said. "The moon's coming up. It will be a fine night and a good day tomorrow."

"Yes," she agreed, quietly.

He lit his pipe, and, leaning back against a tree, smoked and studied her between half-closed eyes. He was no fool. He had noticed the way the girl ate her supper. He had also noticed the condition of her hands and the clean, manicured perfection of her fingernails.

"You've been away at school, haven't you?" he asked.

She started, so suddenly that her empty plate rolled from her lap. Before he could move she bent and replaced it. The slight pause that had followed his question seemed very natural.

"Yes," she said, at last.

"Do you mind telling me where—and something about yourself? I don't want to be inquisitive, but I shall be interested."

What he wanted was to get her to talk. She had not said 10 words as yet. But it was almost impossible to ask this girl questions. Haddon realized that without understanding it. She rose unexpectedly, and he felt an instinctive nerve impulse to do the same thing—to rise because she did, but he restrained it and remained where he was. If she intended to fly like a startled fawn, why let her fly. But she at once killed that suspicion.

"I will wash the dishes," she said, in her deliberate speech, and she proceeded to do so, ignoring the protest he began.

She worked well and swiftly, and he watched her with approval. When she had put everything back into place she hesitated and moved toward her tent. For the first time there was a hint of uncertainty in her manner. He saw it and spoke at once.

"Please don't go yet," he urged. "Stay half an hour. You needn't talk about yourself if you don't want to. You needn't talk at all," he added quickly.

For an instant, in the light of fire and moon, he caught a flash of her dark eyes, and saw the characteristic little lift of her lip over her wonderful teeth. It was not quite a smile; it was merely the dawn of one, quickly checked. Haddon wondered what it would be to see the whole smile flash out; his breath came a little quicker at the thought. This girl had the most beautiful mouth he had ever seen, and her profile was perfect. When her eyes were downcast, it looked like a profile on a coin. When she opened them, the whole face took on life—life, and beauty, and an extraordinary warmth. She had sat down; with deep satisfaction he saw her prop herself comfortable against a tree

"Then," she said, slowly, "then you will talk to me? Yes?"

Some French blood, too, Haddon reflected rapidly. French and Indian. Not a good combination, usually, but it seemed to have worked out well in this case. Certainly she had been sent to school—probably to a Montreal convent. That would account for her manner.

"I'd like nothing better," he agreed, cordially. "I've been here alone for a month, and, while I didn't realize it, I know now that I've been lonesome. I've actually forgotten the sound of my own voice."

"It is an agreeable sound," observed his guest, slowly and with serious courtesy. Haddon laughed out. She was a peach, this girl, and it was ripping to have her sitting there opposite him in the firelight; it was really too good to be true. Then, to his surprise, he heard himself apologizing to her.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "But you—well, you're a bit unexpected, you know. Now, what shall I talk about. What would you like to hear?"

He had no idea what she would say. Theoretically she should be interested in the outside world—in the life of big cities, perhaps. That's what always held primitive maids in stories. Or she might have some personal curiosity about himself and his presence in this wilderness. Yet he was hardly surprised when she ignored his question and began to speak of the river—of its beauties, its treacheries, its reefs, its rapids. She described her own accident in a very few words. It was due to her carelessness, she admitted; she knew the stream, perfectly; she had followed it for years; she knew the reef that had been her undoing. Her thoughts had been wandering, that was all. Her language was stiff and precise. She used as few words as she could, yet conveyed the impression of a vocabulary back of them.

"Where do your thoughts go when they wander?" asked Haddon, hoping to develop the personal note. He desired also, and got, the eye glint, the momentary flash of teeth; but she answered indifferently.

"How should one know? They scatter like a flock of birds."

Before he could reply she began to tell him Indian lore, as if in that way she would pay for her supper. She knew many things—astonishing things, useful things; in half an hour she gave Haddon more information than all his friends and guidebooks had offered him. He found himself telling her of the problems that had come up in his recent experience; in each instance she ignored the personal application and solved the problem. Listening to her and watching her, Haddon's mind worked slowly around to the truth—or at least to part of it. She was deliberately avoiding the personal note for which he was so anxious, because, in her opinion, to strike it under these unusual conditions would be to take a definite risk. She was taking no chances whatever. Haddon understood now, admired, resented and accepted her attitude. When she rose to go into the tent he made no protest. She had given him almost an hour. He rose, too, accompanied her to the door, gave her the electric bull's-eye he had in his pocket, and asked if she had plenty of water. Reassured on this point, he held out his hand, and she laid hers in it.

"Good night, Mermaid," he said.

Her straight black eyebrows lifted. "Mermaid?" she repeated.

"I've got to call you something," Haddon explained pathetically, "as you won't tell me who you are. So it's 'Mermaid,' because of the swimming—and"——

"And?" she asked.

"And the hair," explained Haddon.

"Good-night," was all she said to that. Then the sudden soft illumination that enchanted him glowed for an instant in her face. "You have been very kind," she added, "and hospitable. I thank you."

The tent flap fell behind her. Haddon walked back to the fire, replenished it, threw himself down on the ground, filled another pipe and smoked steadily. Who was she? What was she? He would have given much to know. He held his interest up before him and deliberately analyzed it. Was it merely because she was a woman and alone with him that she filled his thoughts? Was he as much of a cad as that? He was not, and he knew it. Almost any other women in the world, save one, could have been in that tent, almost forgotten by him. But this brown girl was different. There was something about her, something quite aside from her beauty, that stirred his imagination and his blood. The knowledge that she was in his care, under his protection, gave him a thrill. A few hours ago he had not known she was in the world. Now, for this hour at least, there seemed no one else in it.

Then a thought crossed his mind at which his conscience first shied like a nervous horse, then cautiously approached. She appealed to him—suddenly, tremendously. Why not let her help him to down the big obsession of his life? Why not start a deliberate campaign the next morning, take the girl home, establish friendly relations, and then see as much of her as he

CHAPTER III.

WHEN the first faint edges of light outlined the coming day, she sat bolt upright and stared about her. As far as eye could see was the tortuous trail leading up sculptured hills that were the preface to the mother mountains of the West.

The wonder-stare in her eyes gradually disappeared as memory awakened. Down beyond the trees in a little valley the Sheriff was attending to a fire he had built.

She arose, cramped and unrefreshed, and hastened toward the welcome blaze.

"Good-morning. Any gasoline yet?"

"No, not an automobile passed during the night."

"How do you know? Didn't you sleep?"

"No."

"Guarding your car and me? No!" she added quickly. "That wasn't the reason. I had all the robes and your coat. You had to stay awake to keep warm."

He smiled slightly and spoke in the hushed voice that seems in keeping with the dawn.

"I've been used to night watches—tending sheep and cattle on the plains. What's the difference whether it's night or day, so long as you sleep somewhere in the 24-hour zone?"

"I never was up ahead of the sun before," she said, with a little shiver, as she came close to the fire.

"I am heating over the coffee that was left. That will make you feel better."

"I suppose there isn't any water hereabouts to wash in. You know, they teach us to be sanitary in the reformatories."

He pointed to the jar.

"I always carry some in the car. Help yourself."

"Arctic ablutions never appeal to me," she said, when she had used the cold water freely and returned to the fire. "I found another left-over in the shape of a sandwich minus the pork, so we can each have a slice of toast with our coffee."

She put a piece of bread on a forked stick and held it out to the blaze. He did the same with the other half of the sandwich. Then they partook of a meager but welcome breakfast.

"Look!" he said presently, in an awed voice.

The sun was sending a glorious searchlight of gold over the highest hill line.

"Swell, isn't it?" she commented cheerily.

Her choice of adjectives repelled any further comments on nature by him.

"I'm not used to sleeping out," she said, as he carefully raked over the remains of the fire, "and it didn't seem to rest me. Thank you for making me so comfortable, Mr. Walters."

She spoke gently; altogether her manner was so much more subdued this morning that he felt the same wave of pity he had felt when Bender had first mentioned her case to him.

"I am sorry," he said, "that you had to stay out here all night. It was my fault; but you will have a more comfortable resting place tonight."

A sound was heard; a modern, welcome sound, breaking in distractingly on the primeval silence. Kurt hastened to the road and saw the encouraging prelude of dust. The passing tourist gave him the requisite supply of gasoline and continued on his way.

"Come on, Pen!" called the Sheriff.

She suppressed a smile as she followed.

"You called me by my first name," she couldn't resist reminding him.

"I didn't know your last one," he responded, quickly and resentfully, as he helped her into the car.

"Let me think. I've had so many aliases—suppose I make out a list and let you take your choice. Most of my pals call me 'The Thief.'"

The look of yesterday came back to his eyes at her flippant tone and words.

"Don't!" he said, harshly. "This morning I had forgotten what you were."

"I wish I could," she said, forlornly. "We won't talk about it any more. Play I am pink perfect until we get to this 'first lady of the land' up at Top Hill. Oh, but motoring in the dawn is shivery! I loathe early morning when you get up to it. If you stay up for it, it's different."

He looked down at her quickly.

In the crisp morning air her little figure was shaking as if with a chill. Her face was very white, and there was a bluish look about her mouth.

He stopped the car suddenly.

She smiled faintly at his look of concern

"I'm all right," she said, reassuringly, a spark of raillery again showing in her eyes before they closed, and she fell limply against him.

When she had recovered the consciousness she had lost but momentarily, he was vigorously rubbing her hands.

"How warm and strong your hands feel," she said with a little sigh of content. "I never did anything so out of date before. I couldn't help it."

"You are nearly frozen," he said, brusquely. "Why don't you wear more clothes?"

"I am wearing all I have," she said, plaintively, with an attempt at a giggle.

A sudden recollection came to him. From under the seat he brought forth a heavy, gray sweater.

"I forgot I had this with me. Put it on."

"It's a slip-on. I'll have to take off my hat and coat to get into it."

When she removed her soft, shabby, battered hat, which she had worn well down over her eyes even while she slept, her hair, rippling bronze and golden lights, fell about her face and shoulders in semi-curls.

He helped her into the sweater.

"It's sure snug and warm," she said approvingly, as her head came out of the opening. "I won't need my coat."

"No; there's no warmth in it," he said, looking disdainfully at the thin, cheap garment. "Throw it away."

"With pleasure," she replied, gaily. "Here's to my winter garment of repentance."

She flung the coat out on the road.

"What did you say?" he asked, perplexedly.

"Nothing original. Just some words I st-t—I mean, borrowed."

She fastened back her hair and picked up her hat.

"Don't put that on!" he exclaimed, making another search under the seat and bringing forth a soft cap. She set it jauntily on her curls.

"How do you feel now? Well enough to ride on?"

"Yes; I'm feeling 'fair and warmer' every minute."

When they started, she relapsed into silence. The sun shine was flooding the treeless hills and mellowing the cool, clean air. Up and down, as far as the eye could follow, which was very far in this land of great distances, the trail sought the big, dominant hills that broke the skyline before them. The outlook was restful, hopeful, fortifying.

"How are you—all right?" he asked presently.

"Perfectly all right. It's grand up here in all these high spots.

"Wait until we reach the hills around our ranch," he boasted. Then he laughed shortly. "I say 'our.' I'm only the foreman."

"What are you going to tell her about me?" she asked curiously, after another silence.

He slackened the pace and looked at her closely. The sweater and the sunshine had brought a faint tinge of wild-rose color to the transparency of her skin. The flippancy and boldness so prominent in her eyes the day before had disappeared. She looked more as she had when she was asleep in the moonlight. A wave of kindness and brotherliness swept over him.

"I am going to tell her," he said, gently, "that you are a poor little girl who needs a friend."

"Is that all you will tell her?"

"You may tell her as much or as little of your story as you think you should."

"You are a good man, but," she added, thoughtfully, "the best of men don't understand women's ways toward each other. If I tell her my sordid little story, she may not want to help me—at least, not want to keep me up here in her home. I've not found women very helpful."

"She will help you and keep you, because"—he hesitated, and then continued earnestly, "before she was married, she was a settlement worker in a large city and she understood such"——

"As I," she finished. "I know the settlement workers. They write you up—or down—in a sort of a rogue record, and you are classified, indexed, filed and treated by a system."

"She isn't that kind!" he protested indignantly. "She

Party clothes to romp in-

How to launder dainty frocks

EVEN to romp in, children can now wear frocks that make them sprite-like. That is because you can wash little frocks repeatedly with Lux without harming them.

You simply stir up a bowlful of bubbling Lux suds and toss them in. It is so quick to work them about in the rich foamy suds, so easy to squeeze the suds through the soiled parts! You take them out as beautiful as the day you bought them. If water alone won't hurt a fabric, Lux won't.

Your grocer, druggist or department store has Lux.—Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

To wash fine white fabrics

Use a tablespoonful of Lux to every gallon of water. Dissolve in very hot water and whisk into a thick lather. Let white dresses and petticoats soak for a few minutes. Then dip them up and down—do not rub. Press the suds again and again through very soiled spots. Rinse in three waters the same temperature as the water in which you washed them. Dry in the sun.

Fine colored fabrics—wash as above, but in lukewarm suds, and do not soak. Dry in the shade.

No suds so wonderful as Lux for dainty things!
